GLOSSARY.

BAUDEKYN (226, 406). Cloth of baudekin or gold; it is said to be the richest cloth; now called brocade, with gold and silk. (Jacob.)

BEDELARIES (p. 465, line 20). The same to a bedel as bailiwick is to a bailiff. (Jacob.)

CARDE (406) [a kind of cloth].

CARUCATE. It appears from p. 208, line 11 from bottom, that at Leynach (a name difficult to identify) and at Crumlin, co. Dublin (p. 387), a carucate contained or was reputed at, 120 acres. It further appears from p. 252, line 12 from bottom, that 10 carucates were equal to 7 townships or villate.

CENDAL or SENDAL. Seems to be fine silk, or Cyprus silk, from the Italian Zendalo (Blount).

CINDONE (406). The silk texture called "cendal" or "sandel." A corrupt form of the classical word "sindon." (Riley's Liber Custumarum.)

COOPERTORIA. These were probably cuirasses.

CRANNOCK. It appears from No. 1067 (being an extract from the Patent Roll of 20 Edw. I.) that a quarter of wheat contained 2 crannocks, 100 quarters of wheat having been equal to 200 crannocks. There seems to have been some doubt as to the exact measure implied by a crannock.

ESANNALIS. A roll first formed by authority of Stat. 12 Edw. I., on which, in order to charge the sheriff, were entered such parts of the county as had been granted away. (Thomas, p. 193.)

GABELLARII, Rent payers.

INCROCIATA or INCROCEATA, ECCLESIA; INCROCEARE ECCLESIAM (Nos. 452 and 1075). The editor was unable to find an explanation of these words in any Glossary or Dictionary which he consulted. But he believes that they mean to annex a church to the crocia or crosier, i.e., to appropriate a church, which was to annex it to the proper and perpetual use of some religious house, bishopric, or spiritual person.

ORIGINALS (p. 6 ter). Estreats from the Rolls of Chancery transmitted into the Exchequer. (See Madox, Vol. II., p. 254.)

PANNAGE (p. 169, p. 516). The food which swine feed upon in the woods, as mast of beech, acorns, &c. (Jacob.)

PORTEORS NOTATUS (406), a noted breviary.

THOUNERIE, the bailiwick (p. 299).

VALETS (1188). This word anciently signified the young heirs who were to be knighted, or young gentlemen of great descent and quality. (Blount, quoting Selden's Titles of Honour.)

VILLATE. See Carucate.

Many tons of bones of the Irish deer have been found here, with stone implements, spears, &c., and the fine shield now, it is believed, in the Royal Irish Academy.

CALENDARS.

Instructions to Editors.

The Master of the Rolls desires to call the attention of the Editors of Calendars to the following considerations, with a view to secure uniformity of plan in the important works on which they are engaged:—

He is anxious to extend, as far as is consistent with proper economy and despatch, the utility of the Calendars of State Papers now publishing under his control: 1st. As the most efficient means of making the national archives accessible to all who are interested in historical inquiries; 2nd. As the best justification of the liberality and munificence of the Government in throwing open these papers to the public, and providing proper catalogues of their contents at the national expense.

The greater number of the readers who will consult and value these works can have little or no opportunity of visiting the Public Record Office, in which these papers are deposited. The means for consulting the originals must necessarily be limited when readers live at a distance from the metropolis; still more if they are residents of Scotland, Ireland, distant colonies, or foreign states. Even when such an opportunity does exist, the difficulty of mastering the original hands in which these papers are written will deter many readers from consulting them. Above 'all, their great variety and number must present formidable obstacles to literary inquirers, however able, sanguine, and energetic, when the information contained in them is not made accessible by satisfactory Calendars.

The Master of the Rolls considers that, without superseding the necessity of consulting the originals, every Editor ought to frame his Calendar in such a manner that it shall present, in as condensed a form as possible, a correct index of the contents of the papers described in it. He considers that the entries should be so minute as to enable the reader to discover not only the general contents of the originals, but also what they do not contain. If the information be not sufficiently precise, if facts and names be omitted or concealed under a vague and general description, the reader will be often misled, he will assume that where the abstracts are silent as to information to be found in the documents, such information does not exist; or, he will have to examine every original in detail, and thus one great purpose will have been lost for which these Calendars have been compiled.

Q 2966. Wt. 8979.

As the documents are various, the Master of the Rolls considers that they will demand a corresponding mode of treatment. The following rules are to be observed :—

1st. All formal and official documents, such as letters of credence, warrants, grants, and the like, should be described as briefly as possible.

2nd. Letters and documents referring to one subject only should be catalogued as briefly as is consistent with correctness. But when they contain miscellaneous news, such a description should be given as will enable a reader to form an adequate notion of the variety of their contents.

3rd. Wherever a letter or paper is especially difficult to decipher, or the allusions more than ordinarily obscure, it will be advisable for the Editor to adhere, as closely as is consistent with brevity, to the text of the document. He is to do the same when it contains secret or very rare information.

4th. Where the Editor has deciphered letters in cipher, the decipher may be printed at full length. But when a contemporary or authorised decipher exists it will be sufficient to treat the cipher as an ordinary document.

5th. Striking peculiarities of expression, proverbs, manners, &c. are to be noticed.

6th. Original dates are to be given at the close of each entry, that the reader may know the exact evidence by which the marginal dates are determined.

7th. Where letters are endorsed by the receivers and the date of their delivery specified, these endorsements are to be recorded.

8th. The number of written pages of each document is to be specified, as a security for its integrity, and that readers may know what proportion the abstract bears to the original.

9th. The language of every document is to be specified. If, however, the greater part of the collection be in English, it will be sufficient to denote those only which are in a different tongue.

10th. Where documents have been printed, a reference should be given to the publication.

11th. Each series is to be chronological.

12th. The Prefaces of Editors, in explanation of documents in the volume, are not to exceed fifty pages, unless the written permission of the Master of the Rolls to the contrary be obtained.

 Editors employed in foreign archives are to transcribe at full length important and secret papers.

PREFACE.

THE documents abstracted in this our fourth volume bear date from 1293 to 1301 inclusively. A portion of them consists of the following documents:—RECEIPT, rolls of, which are very numerous, and of which we gave some description in the preface to the 3rd volume; PAYMENT, rolls of; we have a much larger number of these than in the former volume; they are most valuable, including as they do payment of fees to Irish justiciaries, chancellors, judges and officers of various kinds, keepers and constables of castles, chaplains of the chapel of the castle of Dublin and the Exchequer, alms to Dominicans and Franciscans, &c.; in connexion with this subject we have 150 original writs of Liberate for payment of fees to judges, officers, and other persons; TREASURER'S ACCOUNTS of the K.'s treasure in Ireland; documents relating to the EXCHEQUER; receipts of the farm of COLP; of services of TRISTLEDERMOT and LE COMBRE; of services of the IRISH; rolls of the FIFTEENTH granted to the K. in Ireland; grants of ENGLISH LAWS to persons purporting to be IRISHMEN; letters of ATTORNEY (a vast number), of PROTECTION, and of SAFE CONDUCT, PARDONS, &c.; JUDGMENTS, orders, and proceedings in England on cases and appeals from Ireland; documents relating to Richard de Burgh Earl of Ulster, William de Vescy, John Fitz Thomas, Thomas Fitz Maurice, Theobald le Butler, William de Valence, and other notabilities. For all these we refer to the Index. Interspersed with these we have a large number of documents comprising the following among other subjects :—

Appointments.—Of William de Chiriton, David de Offintone, and Richard de Saham as Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin (67, 172, and 254); of Adam de Botinton as Chancellor of the Exchequer (68); of Alexander of London to hold pleas of the market and regulate measures (174). Grant to William de Oddingeseles of the office of justiciary (165). Appointment of Walter de la Haye as judge of pleas following the chief justiciary (168). The office of chief justiciary of Ireland committed to John Wogan (267). At the instance of Thomas Cantok, Chancellor of Ireland, the K. commands the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, that in committing the office of doorkeeper of that Exchequer, now vacant by the death of Walter of the Exchequer, they prefer John de Seleby to the other candidates (402). The K. commits to Henry de Cumptone custody of the K.'s rolls and writs of the Common Pleas (496). Custody of the K.'s Exchange in Ireland committed to Taldus Janiani and Coppus Cotenne, merchants of company of Friscobaldi of Florence (725). Assignment of Robert de Littlebury as justice C. P., Dublin (726). The K. constitutes Alexander Normanni of Lucca master of the Mint at Dublin for one year (740). The K. commits to Taldus Janiani and Coppus Cotenne, merchants of the company of Friscobaldi of Florence, custody of the Exchange of Dublin (742); to Richard de Bereford, custody of the office of the Treasury of the Exchequer, Dublin (750).

Castles.—Custody of the castle of Roscrea committed to Sir Adam de St. Albin for services (40). Grant to William de la Hacche of custody during pleasure of the castle of Athlone (703). See Index for castles of Dublin, Roscommon, Randown, Kildare, &c.

Church.—John rector of Corriton, Ireland, elected as Bishop of Connor; royal assent given; and the chancellor ordered to direct the Archbishop of Armagh to do what depends on his office. The K. further at the instance of Margaret Countess of Ulster orders fealty to be taken from and temporalities restored to the elect (12, 13, 14, 15). Writ and inquisition whether it would be to the K.'s damage to grant to Adam de Holywood licence to assign to Nicholas Archbishop of Armagh two carucates of land in Kilcloghry (605). The K. commands the justiciary of Ireland and the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, to take into the K.'s hand the Bishopric of Emly, William Bishop of Emly being indebted to the K. of the time when escheator of England (607). The K. commands the justiciary to summon John Cantok, who had long had the custody of the bishopric, to come before the Exchequer of England to render his account (606, 607, 608). The K. commands the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, to desist from the distraint which they make against Nicholas Archbishop of Armagh for 35*l.* (817). On Oct. 10, 1293, the Dean and chapter of Derry notify to the K. that having after the death of Florence their late bishop obtained licence, they had elected Michael, their treasurer, as Bishop of Derry, and they present him to the K. praying the royal assent (94). The K. grants that assent and directs fealty to be taken from and temporalities restored to the elect (121 and 122, Feb. 8, 1293–4). It may be stated here that this election and royal assent are not mentioned in Cotton's Irish Fasti, a book to the accuracy of which the editor has already borne willing testimony. From No. 156 (Aug. 12, 1294), it would appear, however, that Nicholas Archbishop of Armagh, by provision made in casu negligentiæ, nominated Brother Henry, a Cistercian monk, as Bishop of Derry. On Oct. 25, 1294, there was another licence to elect to the church of Derry in the room of Florence late bishop thereof (175); and Henry of Ardagh, a Cistercian monk, having been elected by the Dean and chapter as bishop (195, 196); the K. directed the royal assent to be given to his election, on certain formalities being undergone (196). The Dean and chapter of Derry to the K. notifying the death of Henry their late bishop, and praying licence to elect (371). The Dean and chapter of Derry to the K. praying the royal assent to their election of Geoffrey McLoughlin to see of Derry (405). Royal assent to election of Geoffrey MacLoughlin as Bishop of Derry; the justiciary to take fealty and restore the temporalities (417, 418). Record and process of an outlawry (100).

One of the most remarkable documents in this volume is a record from the Coram Rege Rolls of an action brought by William de Vescy against John Fitz Thomas before Walter de la Haye, escheator of Ireland (then acting as chief justiciary), and the K.'s Council at Dublin. The action was for defamation, William complaining that John had said to the King and Council in England that William had demanded of him a compact by oath that John had sided with him against the King; William demanded that John should avow or unsay this. John said that William never demanded a compact by oath of him, but he avowed that William had used words contained in a schedule which he produces. Suffice it to say that the words which will be found in pp. 71 and 72 are evidently treasonable, and John said that he warned the Council of them in order to save his fealty.

William having heard the tenor of the schedule accused John of uttering falsehood like a traitor, denied all charges against himself, offered to defend himself by his body against John, and hereupon tendered his pledge. John on his side avowed everything contained in the schedule, offered to prove it by his body, and likewise tendered his pledge. This was simply a wager of battel, which was in olden times, as Blackstone says, a species of trial. The K. thereupon ordered that the parties should appear before himself at Westminster, and that meanwhile the duel should not proceed.

A day having been assigned to the parties in one month of St. John the Baptist at Westminster before the K., on this day William appeared armed as a knight, namely, with an armoured war horse and other arms specified. John being called came not. The Editor has been unable to find that judgment was given in this singular action (147).

Petition of the Prior of the Holy Trinity, Dublin, [Christ Church], alleging error in a record regarding the manor of Kinsaley (110). The record and process mentioned in the petition of Geoffrey de Geynville and Matilda his wife, touching their liberty of Trim, to be sent before the K. (125). Plaint between Emelina, who was the wife of Maurice Fitz Maurice, and Thomas Fitz Maurice, of a plea of land (144, 205, 262, &c.). The Editor has searched for the judgment in this plaint, but has failed in finding it.

Nicholas de Clere, formerly Treasurer of Ireland. The K. directs the justiciary of Ireland to free from arrest a sum of money issuing out of the lands of Joan la Butillere in Ireland and Richard, Archbishop of Dublin, and to allow it to be conveyed to England (830 and 838).

Writ of Liberate for payment to Thomas of Colchester of 121*l.* 12*s.* 9*d.* due to him for 44 hogsheads of wine lately taken from him at the expense of Margaret Queen consort of England, then lying in labour at Woodstock (832). Mem. that the Treasurer deliver to the K.'s clerk sundry letters to carry into Ireland (834). Petition of John Fitz Thomas praying relief from an unjust extent of his lands (835 and 843). The K. directs the Chancellor of England to recommend the K., Queen, and their children to Brother Thomas de Thorpe, minister of Franciscans in Ireland, and to beg that the brothers will pray for the K. and the advancement of his affairs (847).

The above inadequate summary will, we trust, serve to give some idea at least of the number and importance of the documents calendared in this volume. A multitude of ancient names of places will be found here. The editor has done his best to identify all, but he has failed in the attempt. There are a great number of names of places which he could not identify; but it is something to have brought the names to notice.

This volume contains, we believe, documents relating to the ancestors of the Duke of Leinster, the Marquis of Ormond, Lord Talbot de Malahide, and probably others.

The word Iraghtus or Iraghtum in page 279 line 18 from bottom in this volume is not correctly translated. The word in question is probably a corrupt latinized form of the Irish word Urraigh as given in O'Reilly's Irish Dictionary. O'Reilly translates this word as a chief next to a King.

We may here remark that No. 310 in our third volume is misplaced. Its date is later than that which it bears. We purpose referring to it in its proper place.

It now remains for me to acknowledge the kindness of gentlemen who have aided me in different ways during the course of my lengthy and often difficult labours. To Messrs. Hans Claude Hamilton, Alfred Kingston, and Walford D. Selby, of the Public Record Office, London, Henry Gay Hewlett, keeper of records at the Land Revenue Office, and W. H. Hart, F.S.A., W. M. Hennessy, of the Public Record Office, Dublin, Richard Caulfield, LL.D., of Queen's College, Cork, and Mons. Francisque Michel, of Paris, I have to return many and warm thanks.

	Sum total of receipt from the morrow, of the clause of Easter, a. r. 21, until the vigil of Pentecost [May 16], 41 days. 2,817*l.* 12*s.* 1½*d.*

Easter. 22. The K.'s writ commanding Robert Bagod and his associates, justices of the Common Pleas, Dublin, on complaint of William de Vescy, Matilda de Kyme, and Agatha de Mortimer (coheirs and parceners of the inheritance of the Earls Marshall of the liberty of Kildare), against the Abbot of St. Thomas, Dublin, to inquire whether certain lands were Incrociatæ [appropriate] to that abbey, or to the abbey of Clonard. Stepney, April 11, a. r. 20 [1292].

Pursuant to this writ the sheriff of Dublin was ordered to cause to come to Dublin, on the morrow of the Ascension [May 16], 12 men of his county, 12 of the liberty of Kildare, 12 of the crosier land of Kildare, and 12 of the crosier land of the Archbishopric of Dublin, to inquire, and to summon the parties. On the above day came William de Vescy, by himself, Matilda de Kyme, and Agatha de Mortimer, by Thomas Darcy, then seneschal of the liberty of Kildare, and also the Abbot of St. Thomas the Martyr near Dublin, and the Abbot of Clonard. The parceners of the liberty complain that they were injured by the abbots in regard to the articles contained in the writ (the bailiffs of the liberty always claiming redress of the injuries), and this they pray may be inquired of according to the tenour of the writ.

The Abbot of St. Thomas says that howsoever William de Vescy, the coheirs and parceners, had obtained the K.'s writ to take an inquisition regarding the articles contained in it, it never can be that by inquisition the said William or his parceners can acquire right or jurisdiction by reason of lordship, because he says that William Marshall, senior, ancestor of William and the coheirs, parceners of that liberty, gave and granted to the canons of St. Thomas, Dublin, in frankalmoign, all the lands and tenements and all the ecclesiastical benefices which they held in the liberty of Kildare, so far as belongs to lordship of the land, and to the patron. The parceners say that churches, lands, or tenements, given by William's ancestors to religious within their liberty, could and ought not to be appropriate, and never were appropriate, because they say that Henry, formerly King of England, the K.'s great grandfather, gave to Richard Strangbowe [Strongbow] the lands of Leinster, with the liberty thereunto belonging, as entirely as he previously held them himself, except four pleas, to wit, Burning, Treasure found, Forestalling, and Rape, which the said King retained to himself; and this they pray may be inquired of. The Abbot of St. Thomas was asked by what title he claims to have the lands, tenements, and ecclesiastical benefices appropriate, and he answers by a composition made by William Marshall the elder, and confirmed by William Marshall the younger, which he produces as follows:—

> Pact made between William Marshall, Earl of Pembroke, and his canons of Carmel, of the one part, and the Abbot of St. Thomas the Martyr of the other, in the cause which arose between them regarding the ecclesiastical benefices of Ballysax and Ballymadan, committed by the Pope to the Bishops of Glendalough and Ferns, and the Prior of the Holy Trinity, Dublin, to wit, that the abbot and canons of St. Thomas renounced all right which they asserted they had in the benefices aforesaid, resigned all muniments which they had relating thereto, and [agreed] that any writings they retained should be void of force; and they moreover faithfully undertook that they should never seek from the Pope or other persons anything against this pact. And the said William Marshall gave in frankalmoign to the canons of St. Thomas, Dublin, 1½ carucate of land near le Corrauth' towards the East, with the free pasture of Corrauth', to wit, all the land once held by Dru, called Bahobothelan, and all the land called Selansacs' which Robert Carpenter once held; and, so far as belongs to the patron, all great tithes and small tithes of those lands; and all great and small tithes of Kynhex, reserving to the canons of

Carmel and their mother church oblations and other ecclesiastical profits, of which church of churches the occupiers [inhabitatores] of common right receive all the spiritualities.

He further granted to them for ever the free and peaceful enjoyment, so far as belongs to the lord, of all the possessions which they had acquired in his land of Ireland, from the time of the making of peace; and moreover exhorts them fully to love and promote the house of St. Thomas. Made on Tuesday before the Nativity of St. Mary [Sept. 7], 1205. Witnesses, John Marshall, Philip de Prendergast, Adam de Hereford, Milo de Staunton, Herbert the clerk, G[ ] the Archdeacon, Master Richard of Norwich, official of Dublin.

Deed Poll of William Marshall, Earl of Pembroke, confirming the agreement made between William Marshall, Earl of Pembroke, his father, of the one part, and the abbot and convent of St. Thomas, Dublin, of the other part, regarding the ecclesiastical benefices of Ballysax and Ballymadan, and the gift made to them by Basilia, daughter of Earl Gilbert, of the church of Rathfilan, in Sachereth' Onclan, with the appurtenances as is contained in the charter, which the monks obtained from Basilia. Witnesses, Sir John Marshall, Thomas Fitz Anthony, Fulk Fitz Warin, William le Gras the elder, William le Gras the younger, Walter Purcel, Master Deodatus, and William de Insula the clerk.

The abbot says that by these two deeds William de Vescy and his parceners can claim no right in the lands or benefices, and that from the time of the making of those deeds they [the abbot and convent] were always intentive to the K.

William de Vescy and his parceners of the liberty aforesaid say that the deeds ought not to avail the abbot or injure himself, because he says that howsoever William Marshall gave to the canons the lands, tenements, and benefices aforesaid, he did and could give to them, so far as belongs to the lord and patron, the right of patronage and advowsons of churches, retaining to himself cognizance of causes pleaded in his court. This appears from the two deeds in which there is no mention of a gift of cognizance of causes, and although there were special mention thereof in the deeds the religious could not have the royalty, and the lands, tenements, or benefices could not and ought not incrociari [to be made appropriate] by the deeds. It is clear that William Marshall during his lifetime never gave to the religious the liberties granted to himself, and ever after that time as well he himself, as the heirs of Leinster were seised in the court of the liberty of Kildare of all pleas as well common as pleas of the crown touching the abbot and his tenants, excepting the 4 pleas aforesaid belonging to the King, until by procuration of the abbots by reason of custody of the abbey in time of vacancy, the K.'s bailiffs, by pleading unjustly, occupied the pleas belonging to the liberty of Kildare and carried them into the K.'s court in prejudice of the liberty aforesaid, the bailiffs of the liberty always opposing. This they pray may be inquired of, saving to William and his parceners the exceptions and reasons which he may wish to propose on behalf of the liberty of Kildare before the K. and council against the abbots and against the deeds aforesaid.

William de Vescy and the other parceners of the liberty say that one Offolan Macelan [or Mac Gelan], an Irishman, gave to an abbot of Clonard certain lands which were appropriate, and whereof they do not claim any plea to belong to them and to be pleaded in their liberty, and that the same Offolan gave to a prior of St. John of Clonard the land of Kylreny', which land never was appropriate but held in medietate of the heirs of Leinster, and this they pray may be inquired of.

The Abbot of Clonard says that he and his predecessors were seised of Kylreny', as of frankalmoign belonging to his church of the gift of Offolan Mac Gelan, before the conquest of Ireland, and ever after Offolan's death without interruption they were intentive therefor to the K. and not to the heirs of Leinster, and this he prays may be inquired of.

The reasons and answers aforesaid having been heard according to the tenour of the writ, an inquisition was taken by consent of the parties, which inquisition is sent under the seal of the justices and jurors to the K., together with this roll and the tenor of the deeds aforesaid, which the Abbot of St. Thomas produced on behalf of his title. And Thomas Darcy aforesaid, seneschal of the parceners, puts in his place, in the plaints aforesaid, Richard de Penkeston, William de Nivelle, and John Wodeland.

Inquisition (on which the parties put themselves) taken by command of the K., before Robert Bagot and his associates, justices of the Common Pleas at Dublin, on Tuesday next after the quinzaine of the Holy Trinity, a. r. 20 [17 June 1292], in the presence of William de Vescy, one of the parceners of the liberty of Kildare, and Thomas d'Arcy, then seneschal thereof, for himself and the coheirs and parceners, and of the Abbots of St. Thomas, near Dublin, and of Clonard, touching the appropriation of churches, lands, and tenements of the abbots in the above-named liberty. Jurors:—Stephen of Exeter, Robert de Cruys, John Dardis, Robert Talebot, John de la Roche, William le Graunt, knights, Richard Teling, Walter Dardiz, Bertram Abbot, Thomas Mauley, John de Aleton, and Andrew Tyrel, Who Say upon their oath that Henry, formerly King of England, great grandfather of the K. that now is, gave to Richard Strongbow the land of Leinster, with the liberty belonging thereto, excepting certain lands and 4 pleas, which the K. retained to himself, from which time no Abbot of St. Thomas the Martyr of Dublin had any church or churches, lands or tenements appropriate in the liberty of Kildare. Afterwards, in the time of King John, certain lords, enfeoffed of the heirs of Leinster, gave to the Abbots of St. Thomas and their predecessors, for their own use, certain churches and lands, which gifts could not rightfully or justly be appropriate; but that the abbots and their predecessors caused by writs of the K. their feoffors to come before the K.'s court to levy fines and make recognizances in prejudice of the liberty aforesaid, whereof the heirs of Richard Strongbow were previously seised. They further Say that the title which the abbot and convent produced before the justiciary and before the jurors to be examined, cannot be adjudicated upon without the K. and his council.

As to the Abbot of Clonard, they Say upon their oath that one Offelan McKellan gave to an Abbot of Clonard Grangath, Seliune, Balnenchurry, and Corgranhanth', with the appurtenances, which lands have remained appropriate from the time of King Henry aforesaid until now. The same Offelan gave to a prior of St. John of Clonard, Kylreny, which land never was appropriate, but held of the heirs of Leinster. Afterwards the land aforesaid came to the said abbot by one Simon of Rochefort, formerly Bishop of Meath, by union made of the priory to the abbey by reason of the land of Kylreny. Certain abbots of Clonard came to the castle of Carbry in the liberty aforesaid and there answered for their transgressions. Afterwards a certain Abbot Nicholas came and made a complaint to Sir John Fitz Geoffrey, then justiciary of Ireland, of grievances inflicted on him by the bailiffs of this liberty, from the time of which complaint the abbots of Clonard did not answer at the castle aforesaid nor to its bailiffs to this day. 1293. March 30. 25. Letters of protection in Ireland for 2 years for Agnes de Valence, remaining by licence in England. Harleston. [Pat., 21 Edw. I., m. 19.]

Month and 5 weeks of Easter. 26. The K.'s writ to William de Vescy and the seneschal of the liberty of Kildare. Whereas Richard Fitz Reginald has by writ of Quare Impedit impleaded before William and the seneschal in the court of the liberty aforesaid, the Abbot of St. Thomas the Martyr, near Dublin, touching the advowson of the church of St. Moling, which the abbot and convent hold to their own use, and which crosier land is annexed to their house; and whereas the abbot had alleged that he ought not to answer regarding the advowson of the church aforesaid (because pleas of advowsons of churches incroceatæ [appropriate] ought to be brought in the K.'s court and not elsewhere), and had handed to them the K.'s writ of prohibition thereupon, nevertheless they had proceeded in the plaint, and had adjudicated the abbot out of the church, because he had not come before their court. The K. therefore commands William and the seneschal to send before the K. under their seals by the bearer of this writ the record and process of the plaint aforesaid, with the original writ and the prohibition, so that the K. may have them in the octaves of St. Hilary ensuing. Crek'. Aug. 20, a. r. 20 [1292].

William de Vescy and the seneschal sent the record, process, original writ, and writ of prohibition, the tenor of which are as follows:—

Pleas determined at Kildare before Richard de Penkeston, then seneschal of Kildare, on the morrow of St. Peter ad Vincula, a. r. 19. [Aug. 2, 1291.]

Richard Fitz Reginald appears on the 4th day against the Abbot of St. Thomas, near Dublin, of a plea that he allow Richard to present a fit parson to the church of Moling de Bablek [or Balilek], which is vacant, and is of his gift, as he says; and he thereupon complains that the abbot unjustly impedes him. The sheriff returns that the abbot was summoned to be here on this day; he does not come. Wherefore the sheriff is commanded to attach him to be here on the morrow of the Assumption [Aug. 16]. As he did not then appear, the sheriff was ordered to distrain him by his lands and chattels, and to have his body here on the morrow of the Exaltation of the Holy Cross [Sept. 15]. The abbot did not come, but the sheriff returns that he was distrained by 20 acres of land sown with wheat, 6 tassos [heaps] of wheat and oats, and ½ carucate of land at Kenneth, whereof 30 acres are sown with wheat, but there are no issues, because the corn is in campo et hagardo [in field and haggard]. Wherefore the sheriff was commanded as before to distrain the abbot by all his lands, &c., and to have his body before [the justices] at the first assize, namely, on the morrow of the Circumcision, a. r. 20 [Jan. 2, 1291–2]. He came not, but the sheriff returns that he had been distrained by his lands and chattels. And there are no issues, because the corn is in field and haggard. Thereupon a canon of that abbey, namely, Brother Henry de Hauterive, came and produced the K.'s prohibition directed to the sheriff, as follows:—

The K. to the seneschal of the liberty of Kildare. Whereas pleas of advowsons of churches incroceatæ [appropriate] belong to us and not to another in Ireland, and Richard Fitz Reginald impleads before the seneschal, the Abbot of St. Thomas, near Dublin, by writ of chancery of that liberty, touching the advowson of the church incroceata [appropriate] of St. Moling, in prejudice of the kingly dignity, &c., the K. commands the seneschal that he refrain from proceeding further in that plea, and that he direct Richard to take out, if he pleases, the K.'s writ, in the K.'s court, before the K.'s justices against the abbot. Witness, W[illiam] de Vescy, the K.'s chief justiciary. Kildare, Dec. 26, a. r. 20 [1291]. The seneschal therefore, out of reverence to the K., refrained according to the prohibition from holding the plea. Afterwards William de Vescy, feeling aggrieved by the prohibition, went to the K.'s council in Dublin, asserting that this prohibition directed to the seneschal of his liberty was obtained in the chancery of Dublin in lesion of his liberty aforesaid, as the church of St. Moling aforesaid, and the other churches belonging to the abbey never were appropriate, save only those which were so at the foundation of the abbey. William praying a remedy thereupon, the abbot was summoned to be before the council at Dublin on Wednesday next after the octaves of the feast of St. Hilary, a. r. 20 [Jan. 23, 1291–2]. On this day the abbot and William came, and the latter renewed his complaint as above. The abbot said that the church of St. Moling was incroceata [appropriate], [and] annexed to his abbey, and that he ought not to answer without the K. A day was given to the parties before the council at Dublin on Thursday next after the Purification in the same year [Feb. 7, 1291–2]. The parties then came and renewed their allegations. A day in 3 weeks of the Purification [Feb. 23] was given to them. On this day William appeared against the abbot, and the latter did not appear. William demanded judgment of the default, and chiefly because the abbot did not prosecute a false suggestion contained in the prohibition. William was told that as the abbot did not prosecute or verify the suggestion, William might do thereupon what he thought expedient. William's seneschal therefore ordered his sheriff of Kildare, as he did before, to distrain the abbot by all his lands, and to have his body at Kildare on the morrow of the clause of Easter [April 14], to answer Richard of the plea aforesaid and to hear judgment of his default. On this day Richard Fitz Reginald appeared against the abbot. The abbot did not come, but the sheriff returned that he had been distrained by his lands and chattels, as might appear by the returns of the writs of the morrow of the Exaltation of the Holy Cross and the morrow of the Circumcision. He had now been distrained by 40 acres of land sown with wheat, and 40*s.* of rent at Kenneth, and by 100*s.* of rent at Doncriste, which were taken into the K.'s hand.

Richard Fitz Reginald demands judgment of the defaults of the abbot.

Judgment. Whereas by the statutes made at Marlborough it is provided that on the second distraint judgment should be proceeded to if the defandant came not, it is considered that Richard shall recover his presentation on this occasion to the church. And the abbot is amerced for unjustly impeding. Mandate to the Bishop of [Kildare] that he admit, notwithstanding the reclamation of the abbot, saving to the abbot his right as in the statute aforesaid is contained. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 137, Rot. 30, and Edw. I., No. 138, Rot. 1.]

The K. further wishing to spare the prior and canons labour and expense, grants to them of special grace and gives power to the justiciary when the elect shall have been presented to the justiciary to give the royal assent notifying to the diocesan to do what is his in this behalf. The K. also wills and gives power that if the election be canonically confirmed the justiciary may take fealty from the elect and restore the temporalities, having first received from the elect letters patent under his seal and that of his chapter that this grace shall not tend to the K.'s prejudice or disherison, nor be converted into a precedent. Trinity. 42. [All as in month and week of Easter ante No. 26, down to end.] In pursuance of which Record the K. directs to his justiciary of Ireland a writ as follows:—

The K. to his justiciary of Ireland or his locum tenens. Whereas pleas of advowsons of churches belong to Us and to no other person in the kingdom or lordship of Ireland; and Whereas we have inspected the record and process of a plaint before William de Vesey, lord of the liberty of Kildare and Richard de Penkeston seneschal of that liberty, between Richard Fitz Reginald and the Abbot of St. Thomas without Dublin, who holds of the K. in capite—of this that the abbot permit Richard Fitz Reginald to present a fit parson to the church of St. Moling by writ of William de Vescy lord of that liberty—whereby it is found that pending the plea aforesaid Richard de Penkeston, seneschal of the liberty aforesaid, was directed to refrain from holding pleas of this nature, and to tell Richard Fitz Reginald to sue out, if he thought it expedient, a writ in the K.'s court before the K.'s justices; nevertheless William and the seneschal, notwithstanding the K.'s mandate, proceeded in the plea and adjudged the abbot out of the advowson. The K. therefore commands the justiciary to cause to come before the K. in the octaves of Michaelmas, wheresoever the K. shall be in England, William, Richard and Richard aforesaid, to answer to the K. for the above contempt, and to the abbot for the injury done to him, provided that whatever tended to the K.'s injury should meanwhile be cancelled. Witness, G. de Thornton'. Westminster, June 3, a. r. 21 [1293]. This writ is preserved among the records of the term of Michaelmas at the end of a. r. 21.

William and the abbot aforesaid appear. The abbot who sues for the K. and himself and Nicholas of Warwick who sues for the K. complain of William aforesaid as before.

William appears and defends the force, injury, and contempt, and says that he ought not to answer this complaint without Agatha de Mortimer and Matilda de Kyme, his parceners. He and they are lords of Kildare, and hold the liberty of Kildare and jurisdiction in common; a chancellor, justices, and other ministers are constituted by their common assent, &c. As this plaint touches the liberty aforesaid, he prays judgment whether he ought to answer without his parceners, and he prays aid. The abbot and Nicholas say that they are prepared to verify as the court may decide that William and his seneschal of Kildare held the plea aforesaid against the K.'s prohibition, &c. The justices directed William to answer further if he thought it expedient. Afterwards William says that the writ by which he is summoned here, the writ of prohibition and the writ whereby the record came here before the K., do not agree, and he prays judgment of the variance. He was told that this exception came too late.

William says that he did not do anything against the K.'s prohibition, because he says that Richard seneschal of himself and his parceners was forbidden to hold any plea of an advowson of a church appropriate, and if it could appear to the court that the church aforesaid was not appropriate, then neither he nor his parceners sinned against the prohibition. And he says that if the abbot and Nicholas will verify that the church was appropriate he and his parceners will be prepared to admit the verification. A day was given in the quinzaine of Easter wheresoever, &c. because judgment had not been rendered; and William was prohibited in banco from impleading in the liberty of Kildare the abbots of St. Thomas or Clonard, because it had been found in the record of William sent to the K. that the abbots in times past had answered in the K.'s court at Dublin and not in the liberty aforesaid. And moreover it was found in the same record that the Abbot of St. Thomas, Dublin, had been intentive to the K.'s court in all pleas. A day for judgment was given to them in the term aforesaid, and the abbot was directed to prosecute the original writ against Matilda de Kyme and Agatha de Mortimer of this, that they had held a plea in their court of Kildare in contempt of the K. and prejudice of the abbot.

At which day the abbot and likewise William appeared. William was told by judgment that he ought not to have aid of his parceners. A day for judgment is given in the quinzaine of St. John the Baptist wheresoever, &c. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 138, Rot. 1.]

Trinity. 46. The K. to the Treasurer and Chamberlains of the Exchequer, Dublin. Had on the 18th Feb. a. r. 18 [1289–90] granted that out of the services and fines of the Irish from the time the K. had assigned them for the defence of that country, compensation should be made to J[ohn] Archbishop of Dublin, then justiciary of Ireland, for the expenses he had incurred in the K.'s service. The K. subsequently commanded the treasurer and chamberlains that as by the archbishop's account rendered before the Treasurer and Barons at Westminster the K. owed him 1,178*l.* 9*s.* 10½*d.* for surplusage of his account, the treasurer and chamberlains should compensate him for that surplusage out of the money levied from those services and fines, and should certify to the K. if any portion of the surplusage still remained due. The treasurer and chamberlains certified that they had paid to Walter L'Enfaunt, senior, the archbishop's attorney, 66*l.* 0*s.* 2½*d.* in part satisfaction of the debt, and that though they could not certify regarding the debts which the archbishop owed to the K., yet it was certain that they did not amount to the total of the surplusage. The K. therefore again commands them to satisfy the archbishop for the surplusage, as well regarding what remains to be levied out of the above services and fines as the allowance. Witness, W[illiam] Bishop of Bath and Wells, the K.'s treasurer. Westminster, 4th July a. r. 21 [1293]. Be it known that the first writ directed to the archbishop is found among the rolls of his account, and the second writ directed to the treasurer and chamberlains among the petitions returned of Parliament, Easter a. 21 [29th March 1293] at the Exchequer. June 8. 55. By complaint received at Bayonne of the Barons of the Cinque Ports, and other seafaring persons in England and Ireland, the K. had learnt that whereas merchants from Gascony and elsewhere had under agreements freighted the ships of those Barons and other seafaring persons with wines and merchandise to be carried to divers parts, those merchants, when the ships had touched at port, removed the wines and merchandise, and transferred them to the hands of other persons by sale or otherwise before the freight was paid to the masters. The masters while awaiting payment after the ships were unladen suffered loss by the delay; and sometimes after they had long waited the merchants, contrary to the agreements, went away without paying the freight. Michaelmas. 92. Writ to Robert Bagod and his associates, justices of the Common Pleas, Dublin. Whereas on complaint of the Abbot of St. Thomas, near Dublin, and of John de Cogan that they had been injured in an assize of Mort d'Ancestor arraigned by Alexander le Chamberlain before the Prior of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem in Ireland and his associates justices in the last eyre at Dublin, of one messuage, two carucates and 60 acres of land, 1 mill, and 6 acres of wood, in Balymakelly [? Ballynakelly, co. Dublin], the K. had commanded the prior, &c. to send before Robert and his associates the record and process of the plaint. The K. therefore commands the latter in presence of Thomas Cantok, Chancellor of Ireland, and William de Estdene, Treasurer of Dublin, to examine the record and process and correct them if necessary by counsel of Thomas and William, and render due and speedy justice to the abbot and John according to law and custom of Ireland. If any difficulty occurs they shall send the record and process under their seals before the K. Heyra, Sept. 20, a. r. 20 [1292].

Pursuant to this writ, Master Thomas Cantok, the Chancellor, William de Estdene, the Treasurer, and the justices of the Common Pleas, met at Dublin, and Brother William Fitz Roger, Prior of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem, Walter de la Haye, and Thomas d'Arcy, the justices itinerant, sent before them the record and process of the assize of Mort d'Ancestor, whereof the abbot vouches John de Cogan aforesaid to warranty. Afterwards came the said justices, prior, Walter and Thomas, in presence of William de Vescy, chief justiciary of Ireland, the chancellor, treasurer, justices of the Common Pleas, and others of the K.'s council, avowed the record and process of the assize, and expressly said that they should make or avow no other record. Thereupon came Eustace le Poer, an associate of the justices itinerant, and produced another record of the same assize not according with the other record, expressly saying that he avowed this record and did not agree to the record of the justices itinerant, his associates. The prior, Walter, Thomas, and Eustace would not agree together to make a record, because the prior, Walter and Thomas, and the said Eustace [severally] abided by their own record. The justices did not answer the reasons of the abbot and John de Cogan regarding the injuries done to them. The chancellor, treasurer, and justices of the Common Pleas would make no correction without consulting the K., and sent the two records variant and contradictory with the reasons of the abbot and John under their seals before the K. And according to the K.'s mandate the justices of the Common Pleas appointed to the abbot and John a day on the quinzaine of Michaelmas. To Emelina Lungespeye, Christiana de Mariscis, and Alan la Zouche, heirs of Walter de Ridelesford, vouched to warranty by John de Cogan, they did not appoint a day because by judgment of court they had been discharged of the warranty and challenge. Further writ from the K. to Robert Bagod and his associates, justices of the Common Pleas, commanding them to proceed as directed, &c. Westminster. June 16, a. r. 21 [1293].

On this day the justices aforesaid returned that the cause why the justices of the Common Pleas, Dublin, did not previously send the record and process of the plaint was the variance between the records. The justices appointed the quinzaine of Michaelmas for the parties to appear before the K. They sent, however, another record to the following effect:—

Record and process of an assize of Mort d'Ancestor between Alexander le Chamberlain and the Abbot of St. Thomas, near Dublin.

Pleas at Dublin on the quinzaine of St. John the Baptist, a. r. 19 [July 8, 1291], before William Fitz Roger, Prior of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem in Ireland, and his asociates, justices itinerant.

The assize comes to recognize if Alexander le Chamberlain, father of Alexander le Chamberlain, was seised at his death in his demesne as of fee of the tenements above mentioned in Ballymakelly. And if Alexander is his next heir. The tenements are held by the Abbot of St. Thomas, near Dublin. The abbot comes and vouches to warranty Joan de Cogan, who warrants and vouches Emelina de Longespeye, Christiana de Marisco, and Alan la Zouche, heirs of

Walter de Ridelesford. Let them appear at Dublin in the quinzaine of St. Martin, by aid of court. Alan and Emelina Say that they cannot answer without Christiana their coparcener. Let her be resummoned on the morrow of St. Hilary. On which day Christiana Emelina and Alan demand why they should warrant to John. The latter says that Walter aforesaid gave the tenements to Richard de Cogan, his great grandfather, in free marriage with Basilia, Walter's sister. Emelina, Christiana, and Alan Say that after the tenements were given to Richard and Basilia as aforesaid, the said Alexander was seised in the said tenements of the gift of Richard, and if any injury was done to Alexander it was done by Richard, who enfeoffed the abbot, and they therefore Say that they are not bound to warrant to John the act of Richard their ancestor. John Says that Alexander, father of Alexander, had no estate or seisin in the tenements by Richard, and prays that this may be inquired of by assize. Emelina, Christiana, and Alan Say that if the said Alexander had any estate in the premises it was by Richard, and pray that this may be inquired of.

The sheriff is ordered to cause 12 men to come on the morrow of St. John the Baptist to recognize as above.

John produces a deed whereby Alexander, the father, released to the Abbot and Convent of St. Thomas, near Dublin, all his right in the tenements aforesaid. The inquisition says that Alexander, the father, had for a long time an estate in the premises, by Richard de Cogan, John's ancestor, until Richard, during the lifetime of Alexander in parts beyond the sea, entered (which Richard had previously enfeoffed Alexander) and that Alexander, the father, never afterwards acquired the tenements. A day is given to the parties to hear judgment on Friday next after the feast of St. John the Baptist. John de Cogan does not come. A day is given to the parties present on the quinzaine of Michaelmas before the chief justiciary and the K.'s council. Afterwards the chief justiciary commanded the justices itinerant to proceed to judgment. A day for judgment was given to the parties on Thursday, vigil of St. James [July 24], to hear judgment. The justices of the Common Pleas, Dublin, certified that they had appointed to the parties a day before the K. on the quinzaine of Michaelmas. On this day Alexander, the abbot, and John de Cogan appear. John and the abbot are asked why they had caused the record to come hither; they answer for manifest error, and they pray that the process, &c. be examined and corrected according to law of England. Alexander was asked if he would say anything to maintain the record, and he asked for respite until the morrow to state his reasons, which is granted to him. Afterwards he was called for 3 days, but did not appear, wherefore it was proceeded to the examination of the record.

The record of Brother William Fitz Roger and of his associates, justices in eyre at Dublin (namely, Walter de la Haye and Thomas D'Arcy), and likewise the record of Eustace le Poer, the fourth associate of the eyre aforesaid having been inspected, it is found that there is error in the process and judgment in this, that the justices do not agree in the substance of their judgment, nor in the record of the prior, Walter, and Thomas. Nor is it found in the record of Eustace that it appears by recognizance of assize or otherwise that Alexander, the father, died seised of the tenements aforesaid, nor that Alexander the son is his next heir, as the writ of summons requires. It is therefore adjudged that the process be annulled, and that the abbot have back his seisin and 55 marks recovered by Alexander against him. And that John recover his exchange if he had given any to the abbot for the land; and Alexander is amerced. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 139, Rot. 18.]

Nov. 23. 99. The K. notifies to his bailiffs and subjects in Ireland that Thomas Prior of Bath remaining in England had attorned before the K. Henry le Clerk and Robert le Pestur in all pleas and plaints in courts of Ireland. Grant that Henry and Robert may make attorneys for the abbot in the Chancery of Ireland. To endure for 2 years. Westminster. [Pat., 22 Edw. I., m. 20.]

Quinzaine of St. Martin. 100. The K.'s writ to William de Vescy, justiciary of Ireland, commanding him to send before the K. in England for irregularity the record and process of an outlawry against Philip, father of Peter de Staunton. Berwick-upon-Tweed, June 8, a. r. 20 [1292]. The justices of the Common Pleas, Dublin, sent the record, as follows:—

Pleas determined at Kildare on Monday next before the feast of St. Lawrence, a. r. 14 [Aug. 5, 1286], before Robert de Fladebury, then seneschal.

Whereas by inquisitions taken by the sheriff and chief sergeants of the co. of Kildare it was presented that Adam Brokan was a felon of the death of John Wenet killed at Kylgon, and that Philip de Staunton of Rathily forcibly took him away after the felony, so that he could not be attached, saved him from the officers of justice and retained him. And that the said Philip ,Thomas de Staunton, Adam Doroban, John, Peter, and Philip Faliach, Jordan, Adam, Peter, and John de Staunton, Martin Maynach, Richard Renach, Matthew McBothy, Bridin McKanny and Oweyn Crocyl were in company of Adam, the felon, and that all the aforesaid were robbers concerned in many robberies and thefts in the county. The sheriff and sergeants in Omorthy and Offally are commanded to take Adam and the others, and to have them at Kildare on the morrow of the decollation of St. John the Baptist [Aug. 30].

Pleas at Kildare on the morrow of the decollation of St. John the Baptist [Aug. 30], before the same seneschal in the same year.

The sheriff of Kildare, the sergeants of Omorthy and Offaly, present that Adam Brokan, Philip, and Thomas de Staunton, John, Peter, and Philip Faliach, Jordan, Adam, Peter, and John de Staunton, Martin Meynach, Richard Renath, Matthew Mc Bothy, Bridin McKanny, and Oweyn Crocyl were not found within the bailywick after the receipt of the writ so that they could be attached, and that they betook themselves to Offaly, and there keep with Fyn Odimesy and other felons, but that all their goods and chattels were seized into the K.'s hand.

The jury taken and sworn of the death of John Wynet killed at Kylgon, Says that Adam Brokan killed him, and that Philip de Staunton of Rathyly, Thomas de Staunton, John, Peter, and Philip Faliach, Jordan, Adam, Peter, and John de Staunton, Martin Meynath, Richard Renach, Matthew McBothy, Bridin McKanny, and Oweyn Crocyl were present when Adam committed the felony, and carried off Adam with them, so that he could not be attached; and that Adam after the felony remained in their company. They further Say that the parties are robbers, and that they stole from Adam Ker 5 cows, 20 sheep, and utensils of his house of the value of 8*s.*; from John de Bermesham, 280 sheep; from Walter Brunnenesing, 100 sheep; from William Juven', Thomas Meyler, and Wyting de Faunteston, sheaves by night, estimated at 1 crannock of oats; from William of Athy at Commoston', wine of the value of 10*s.*; from the men of Commeston, corn in the field estimated at 3 crannocks, and the crop of an acre of peas worth 2*s.*; from Maurice of Ardern', a horse of the value of 4 marks; from Roger de Oxenden' at Athy, 20 cestarii [sextarii, quarts] of wine worth 2 marks; from the men of Athy, bread to the value of 8*s.*; from the same, 3 carcases of mutton and ½ carcase of beef; from Thomas le Chamberlain, 1 horse worth 10*s.*, 1 hauberk, 1 iron hat, and 1 collar worth 1 mark; from Tancard Doullard at Athy, 1 horse worth 10 marks; and from John Helewys, a pair of spurs, a felt hat, and ½ crannock of oats. As it is found that Adam had feloniously killed John, that Philip and the others were in his company, that Adam and Philip and the others were robbers and thieves and took to flight, it is adjudged that they be exacted from county to county, and be outlawed according to law.

County Courts at Kildare on Monday next before the Nativity of the Blessed Virgin, a. r. 14 [Sept. 2, 1286], before Richard de Penkeston, then sheriff; at the same place on Monday morrow of Michaelmas, a. r. 14 [Sept. 30, 1286], at same place on Monday feast of the Apostles Sts. Simon and Jude [Oct. 28, 1286], and at the same place on Monday feast of St. Catherine, the virgin [Nov. 25, 1286]. At all these courts Adam Brokan is exacted for feloniously killing John Wynet, and for robbery and theft; Philip and Thomas de Staunton, Martin Meynath, Richard Renath, Matthew Mc Bothy, Bridin McKanny, and Oweyn Crocyl are exacted for robbery and theft, and outlawed because they did not come. The name of Adam de Staunton is omitted from the 2nd, 3rd, and 4th courts.

Philip, son of Peter de Saunton, now appears on the quinzaine of St. Martin, a. r. 22 [Nov. 25, 1293], and prays that the record be examined, and error, if any, corrected. He is asked where the error is in the outlawry, and he says that the outlawry is null, because the universal custom of Ireland is that if a person is put in the exigent in a liberty, and pending the exigent if he is indicted or appealed of burning, forestalling treasury found, or rape, or be commonly held of evil repute, the power of the liberty shall then cease. He says that when Philip was exacted in the liberty of Kildare, felony of burning was charged against him at the time when he ought to have gone to fight the men of Offaly. Wherefore he says that according to custom the outlawry ought to be annulled.

As the K. wishes to be certified regarding the custom, mandate to Robert Bagot, justice of the Common Pleas, Dublin, and to Thomas Cantok, the K.'s Chancellor, by the oath of good and lawful men elected of the commonalty of Ireland as well of knights as others to inquire, in the presence of the lords of Kildare and other liberties. The inquisition shall be taken by 12 knights and 12 servientes worthy of credit chosen for this purpose. They shall certify to the K. on the quinzaine of Easter what they shall do hereupon. And whether Philip went into the common war with those of Offaly and committed burnings or not, from Monday next before the feast of the Nativity of Blessed Mary, a. r. 14 [Sept. 2, 1286], on which day he was first exacted in the liberty, until Monday feast of St. Catherine, a. r. 15 [Nov. 25, 1286], on which day he was outlawed. They shall cause the lords of Kildare to know in order that they may appear on the above day to maintain the record if they deem it expedient.

On the above day Thomas Kantock, the Chancellor, returned the writ with his own hand, but there was nothing indorsed thereupon. Nothing was done in this term on account of the illness of Thomas of Spain, Peter's attorney. In the term of the Holy Trinity next ensuing Peter, who is about to proceed to Gascony on the K.'s service, appeared and supplicated that he might resume his suit, and it is granted to him, because his suit is expedient and tending to augment the K.'s dignity. And because error, if any there be, proceeds from the court, mandate to Robert Bagod and Thomas Cantok that they certify the K. regarding the custom on the quinzaine of St. Martin. On this day Peter appears and the justice does not send the writ. Wherefore it is commanded to William de Doddyngeseles, chief justice, and Thomas Cantok, Chancellor of Ireland, to certify the K. on the octaves of St. John the Baptist; on which day the justice did not do anything thereupon nor sent the writ. Wherefore it is commanded to the chief justiciary of Ireland or his locum tenens to cause the K. to be certified on the quinzaine of Easter. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 139, Rot. 57.]

Quinzaine of St. Martin.

101. The K.'s writ to the justiciary of Ireland or his locum tenens. Whereas in a complaint of William de Vescy, Matilda de Kyme, and Agatha de Mortimer, coheirs and parceners of the inheritance of Kildare, against the Abbot of St. Thomas the Martyr, near Dublin, touching that liberty, the K. had assigned Robert Bagod and his associates, justices of the Common Pleas, Dublin, to inquire into the truth of the premises. The justices sent an inquisition stating that the abbot does not answer of the plea within the liberty, and that the parceners are not possessed of any jurisdiction of the abbot; nevertheless William, Matilda, and Agatha, on account of the inquisition which they did not prosecute, distrain the abbot to appear in their court of Kildare and answer there touching divers articles. The K. therefore commands the justiciary to cause to come before him in the octaves of Michaelmas the said William, Matilda, and Agatha, to answer to the K. and the abbot. The latter shall meanwhile not be molested, and the K.'s jurisdiction shall be preserved unimpaired.

William appears; a day is given to him on the quinzaine of Easter to hear judgment on the records sent to the K., and his confession as appears on the roll of Trinity, a. r. 21 [1293]. William returns that Matilda and Agatha were not in Ireland after reception of the writ. And as William had alleged for himself before the K. that Matilda and Agatha were his parceners in the liberty of Kildare, as appears in Trinity, a. r. 21, and does not answer for them of any attachment, William is amerced. Mandate to William as before, that he cause Matilda and Agatha to come before the K. in the quinzaine of Easter wheresoever, &c. to answer to the K. and to the abbot of the transgression aforesaid. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 139, Rot. 59.]

Quinzaine of St. Martin.

102. The K.'s writ to his justiciary of Ireland or his locum tenens regarding the advowson of the church of St. Moling [all as in Trinity term ante No. 42 down to provided that whatever tended to the K.'s injury should meanwhile be cancelled]. On which day William de Vescy comes. It is certified that Richard de Penkeston is dead, and the Abbot of St. Thomas testifies the same thing. Wherefore nothing is done regarding him. Richard Fitz Reginald does not come. Regarding him it is certified that Geoffrey de Ess, John, the clerk of Bath, Richard Neweman, and Thomas Hachel have given mainprise. Wherefore they are amerced. Order to the justiciary to distrain Richard by all his lands, and to have his body here on the quinzaine of Easter. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 139, Rot. 55.]

104. The K.'s writ to William de Vescy, justiciary of Ireland, commanding him to inquire whether it would be to the K.'s damage or prejudice if he should grant licence to Adam de Sancto Bosco [Holywood] and Clarice, his wife, to give and assign to N[icholas] Archbishop of Armagh, 2 carucates of land in Kellclokyr to hold in fee to him and his successors. Westminster. By petition before the King and Council.

Who Say upon oath their oath that the land of Kylcloghyr is held in fee immediately of the archbishop aforesaid; it renders no service because a bishop's land does not render service; but yearly yields 1 lb. of wax to the archbishop; the land is worth yearly 18 marks in all issues; there are no mesne lords between Adam and Clarice and the K. save the archbishop. Adam has no other land in the said county to render services. If the archbishop should obtain possession of the land by gift of Adam and Clarice no one there would be summoned on assizes and juries, and the country would be aggrieved by want of such summonses.

Dec. 8. 105. The K. to the justiciary of Ireland and the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin. Having long ago before he assumed the reins of government granted to the Franciscan Brothers of Dublin, Cork, Waterford, Limerick, and Drogheda, 25 marks a year at the Exchequer, Dublin, the K. bearing affection towards the Brothers of Limerick, of whose house the K. and his progenitors are founders, wishes to continue and amplify this grace to them and the others. The K. therefore grants to the Brothers of Limerick 10 additional marks a year. 25 marks shall be divided in equal portions between the Brothers of Dublin, Waterford, Cork, and Drogheda, and 35 marks shall be yearly paid at the Exchequer of Dublin to the Brothers of Limerick. Westminster. [Pat., 22 Edw. I., m. 26.]

Dec. 10. 106. Roll of Inquisitions touching William de Vescy. Commission to William de Estdene, Treasurer of the Exchequer, Dublin, Robert Bagot, and Walter de la Haye, escheator of Ireland, constituting them justices to inquire regarding complaints made before the K. in his Parliament on the quinzaine of Michaelmas last against William de Vescy, justiciary of Ireland. The inquisitions thereupon shall be sent before the K. in the next Parliament to be held after Easter next ensuing. The K. had commanded Master Thomas Cantok to cause a jury to come before the justices to inquire into the premises. Westminster.

Pleas at Dublin before William de Estdene, Treasurer of Ireland, Robert Bagot, and Walter de la Haye, escheator of Ireland, justices assigned, on Monday next after Sunday in Mid Lent, a. r. 22 [March 29, 1294].

John Fitz Robert being questioned—that whereas the men of the Abbot of St. Thomas, near Dublin, had arrested in terrâ incroceatâ [land appropriate] one William Fitz Henry de Kyl [Kill] for the death of Ralph le Arch', and ought to have brought him to trial at Dublin, John with others, by precept of Thomas Maunsel, sheriff of William de Vescy, forcibly seized the felon while being led along the K.'s highway to Dublin, forstalling the men of the crocea [crosier] who led him, and carried him off with his chattels to Kildare—comes and says that the men of the abbot never took William the felon in terrâ incroceatâ [land appropriate] of the abbot, nor forstalled the men who led him, nor carried the felon to Kildare; but he says that the said William Fitz Henry having committed felony within the liberty of Kildare, he had taken him prisoner within that liberty and led him to Kildare, as it was lawful for him to do. Afterwards John Fitz Robert was told on the K.'s behalf that as the K. by the abbot's men had custody of the felon to conduct him to Dublin, John could not seize the felon within or without the land appropriate and lead him to Kildare. To this John answers that he never took the felon nor led him to Kildare, and of all these things he puts himself upon the country. Wherefore let it be inquired of. The iurors, namely, Hugh Huse, Robert de

Cruys, Stephen de Exeter, William de Lundr', Simon Feypo, Nicholas de Vernoyl, John de Feypo, David Fitz John, Nicholas de Grete, William Coytrot, Geoffrey de Tryvers, and Walter de Montgomery, Say that William Fitz Henry aforesaid killed Ralph le Arch within the liberty of Kildare, and fled with his chattels, worth 4*s.*, from that place to the land of the grange of Kill, which belongs to the Abbot of St. Thomas, near Dublin; and when the abbot's men perceived that William had come upon the abbot's land, they took and bound him and led him towards Dublin to the K.'s prison. Then came John Fitz Robert, provost of Milo de Rochfort, with others, took William from the abbot's men against their will and led him to Kildare, where he remained. They also Say that John and the others with him arrested the abbot's men conducting the felon until they had got the latter from them, leading him to the prison of Kildare, where he remained until liberated by fine.

Afterwards the said Thomas Maunsel, sheriff of Kildare, being questioned as to whether John Fitz Robert had committed the transgression by his order, came and said that he had never ordered John to do anything thereupon, and of this he puts himself upon the country. Thomas Maunsel being asked whether he would consent to the jury replied that he would not. Order to the sheriff to cause knights and free tenants to come to Dublin in one month of Easter. The same day was given to Thomas Maunsel, sheriff of Kildare, by mainprise of Thomas Dardys and John le Veel. Thomas did not come, but let his order in the premises be inquired into. The jurors, namely, William Blundel, Reginald Baret, Robert Jelous, John de la Ryvere, Michael de Bodenham, Simon le Waleys, Simon de la Chambre, Robert Beg of Clondalkin, Robert le Aveny, Roger le Marshal of the tenement of Swords, John de Stratton, and Thomas de Stratton, Upon their Oath Say, that when John Fitz Robert, provost of Milo de Rochfort, and others by force took William Fitz Henry from the men of the Abbot of St. Thomas, near Dublin, within the liberty of Kildare, he did all this by order of Thomas Maunsel aforesaid, sheriff of Kildare.

William de Vescy, lord of Kildare, being questioned before the K. in England on complaint of the Abbot of St. Thomas, near Dublin, regarding the injuries inflicted on the abbot in his manor of Kill within the liberty of Kildare, which prevented the abbot from ploughing or sowing his land, and which transgressions William committed by Thomas Maunsel, William de Kendale, Adam the doorkeeper, Thomas Darcy, and Richard de Pekeryng, demanded that the latter with William should come before the justices assigned to answer for their deed. Thomas Maunsel, Thomas Darcy, William de Kendale, and Richard [de Pekeryng] thereupon appear with William de Vescy. The sheriff certifies that Adam was in England. The abbot says that on Thursday next before the feast of St. Peter, ad vincula a. r. 19 [July 26, 1291], [William] distrained him by 6 oxen worth ½ mark each, and 5 bullocks worth 10*s.* each, and detained them in the manor of Kill for 8 days, until they escaped. William de Vescy also distrained the abbot on Tuesday next after the Nativity of the Blessed Virgin [Sept. 11] in the same year by the crops of 32 acres of wheat, value of each acre 10*s.*, of 30 acres of oats, value of each acre ½ mark, of 20 acres of meadow, value of each 5*s*., by his tithes to the value of 20*l*., and detained all the corn and hay so distrained until the quinzaine of Michaelmas in the same year. William allowed the distress to be carried to the abbot's grange in the same manor, and detained it there until Wednesday next before the feast of St. Nicholas, a. r. 20 [Dec. 5, 1291], and then he allowed it to be given up. William also distrained the abbot in the same manor on Friday next before the feast of the Assumption, a. r. 20 [Aug. 8, 1292], to wit, by the crop of 11 acres of wheat, value of each acre 10*s*., 30 acres of oats, value of each acre ½ mark, by his tithes there to the value of 20*l*., detained them in the field until Monday next before the feast of All Saints a. r. 20 [Oct. 27, 1292], allowed the distress to be carried to the gardens of Richard Jerveys and Maurice Hawyll at Kill within the liberty of Kildare, and there detained the distress, not permitting the abbot to carry it to his grange, which is a sanctuary and incroceata [appropriate]. The distress was detained until the quinzaine of the Nativity of St. John the Baptist, a. r. 21 [July 8, 1293], when he allowed it to be given up by writ of England after the abbot had suffered heavy losses to his damage of 100*l*.

Thomas Maunsel, Richard de Pikering, and Thomas Darcy say they are proceeding at common law against the abbot, and they demand judgment whether they ought to answer him without another writ. The K. having commanded the justices that the above-named parties should come with William de Vescy to answer for their acts, they were told to answer further. And as this exception was not allowed, they demanded a bill and have one.

Afterwards Thomas Maunsel, Richard de Pykering, and Thomas Darcy say for themselves that they were not present at [the taking of] the distresses, and did nothing regarding it, and of this they put themselves upon the country; the abbot the like. And William de Kendale aforesaid says for himself that he was sergeant of the liberty aforesaid, and had some estreats directed to him by the sheriff of Kildare to levy from the abbot 100*s*. in which he was amerced in the court of the liberty of Kildare, because he had not prosecuted, 40*s*. in which he was amerced for not coming when summoned, and 20*s*. in which he was again amerced for not coming, all to the use of William de Vescy, Agatha de Mortimer, and Matilda de Kyme, parceners of the said William; and he says that anything he then did was for the purpose of levying the money; that he had justly distrained the abbot, and that he cannot answer without the said William, Agatha, and Matilda.

Afterwards a day was given to the parties at Dublin in one month of Easter.

William de Vescy, justiciary of Ireland, having been questioned before the K. in England—that whereas the Abbot of Saint Thomas, near Dublin, while elect, before his consecration, took to William the K.'s writ commanding him to give to the abbot seisin of his temporalities after he had received from him fealty and letters patent that the K.'s grace should not be drawn into a precedent as regarded his successors; that the abbot after his consecration, taking with him two of his canons who had custody of the common seal of the house to seal the letters for the K. at Waterford, approaching the justiciary delivered to him the K.'s writ on the subject; that William aforesaid and John de Malton took from them their common seal and detained it for 6 weeks from the feast of the Annunciation, a. r. 19 [March 25, 1291], and did not cause the abbot to have seisin of his temporalities during all that time in contempt of the K.'s mandate, and to the abbot's damage of 100*l*.—William came before the K. and said that the K.'s writ did come to him at Waterford, but because he had not the K.'s counsel to give effect to the K.'s letters he did not execute the writ; as to the seal, he said that as danger might accrue to the house by the canons carrying it uncovered he ordered it to be closed up under the seal of John de Malton, then seneschal, and to be thus restored to the canons; that he thought this had been done and never heard otherwise until the next ensuing Parliament at Dublin; that afterwards the abbot having asked to have it restored obtained possession of it; that he did not defer through malice to give seisin of the temporalities, but to have the K.'s counsel in giving effect to the letters. The abbot says that William deferred giving seisin of the temporalities through malice, and that the seal was maliciously and with the justiciary's knowledge detained from them for 7 weeks, and of this he puts himself upon the country; William the like. The jurors, namely, Hugh Husee [Hussey], John, son of Ririch, Richard le Blund, Michael de Bodenham, John de Stratton, Thomas de Stratton, Simon, le Waleys, John Moulenham, Geoffrey Sauvage, Robert Daveny, Roger le Marshal, and Simon de la Chambre, find the facts as above, and say upon their oath that John de Malton then with William de Vescy maliciously detained the common seal, and so prevented him from having possession of the temporalities for six weeks and more, to the damage of the abbot of 50*l*.

Ralph, Abbot of St. Thomas the Martyr of Dublin, puts in his place Peter of Wilts to do what may be adjudged by the K.'s court.

William de Vescy, justiciary of Ireland, being questioned before the K. on complaint of the Bishop of Kildare—for that the bishop holding of the K. and of no other person, William de Vescy had in lesion of the kingly dignity caused his prohibitions in the name of lord of Kildare to be directed to the bishop, his officials and commissaries—answers that he does not claim to have prohibitions; but the bishop shows a prohibition which issued before William came to Ireland, as appears by its date, and further says that William after his arrival in Ireland sent his prohibition to the bishop's commissaries, which still remains with them, and it was therefore enjoined to the bishop that if any prohibitions issued after William's arrival in Ireland he should produce them before William de Estdene, Treasurer of Ireland, Robert Bagod, and Walter de la Haye, assigned to hear the complaint; [William] says that no prohibition was issued by him after his arrival in Ireland.

Elias of Winchester having been assigned by the K. to prove measures and to disseminate a standard through Ireland, Thomas Darcy, seneschal of Kildare, alone without the presence of the justices assigned, made proof of measures and punished by grave amercia-

ments transgressions against measures as well in lands appropriated as in the liberty of William de Vescy of Kildare. The said William being questioned before the K. regarding this proof of measures, says that he claims to have such proof of measures within the liberty aforesaid, because he takes the standard from the K.'s marshal, and he says that when he went through the country and found transgressors against measures, he punished them by amerciaments and placed the money in the estreats at the Exchequer ot Dublin. William de Vescy being questioned whether the K.'s marshal assigned for this purpose when he came to the liberty of Kildare ought to prove those measures says that he ought. It was said by the Bishop of Kildare on the K.'s behalf that Thomas Darcy aforesaid levied to his own use the amerciaments of transgressors of measures as well in lands appropriate as in the liberty of Kildare, namely from Osbert, the baker, a tenant of crosier lands of the Bishop of Kildare 40*s.*, and of Master Adam de Clane, tenant of the crosier, 100*s.*; William de Vescy demanded that an inquisition be taken of these matters; he also came to take the inquisition. The jurors, namely, Hugh Husee, John, son of Ryryth, Nicholas Barbedor, John Poswye, Geoffrey Fitz Leo, John de Hothom, Thomas Fraunceys, Simon le Husser, William le Wyse, Richard of Carmarthen, Luke le Chamberlain, and Richard Fitz Reginald Say upon their oath that neither William de Vescy nor his seneschals from the time he first came into Ireland as justiciary caused a prohibition to be directed to the Bishop of Kildare or his commissaries. They also Say that the said Thomas Darcy caused Osbert, the baker, a tenant of the crosier land of said bishop to be amerced in 40*s.* for transgression of measures, and this money Thomas Maunsel, sheriff of Kildare, appropriated to his own use. They further Say that Master Adam of Clane was a tenant in the liberty of Kildare, and because he brought some of the tenants of that liberty before the ecclesiastical court, of pleas not regarding wills or marriage, Thomas Darcy aforesaid questioned him before the court of the liberty aforesaid, and as Adam could not deny this he was amerced in 100*s.*, and not for transgression of measures in the crosier land. Afterwards Thomas Darcy—being questioned in presence of William de Vescy of having entered crosier land and amerced Osbert for measures as appears by the inquisition aforesaid—says that he did this as seneschal of the justiciary. And because he did not deliver estreats or money into the Exchequer, [let him go] before the K., &c.

William de Vescy being questioned before the K. in England—that whereas the burgesses of Tristeldermot and their ancestors were wont to be free so that no bailiff of Kildare was wont to enter that vill to exercise his office, and Thomas Mauncel, sheriff of Kildare, held his tourn regarding them three times a year; moreover where the quarter of wheat was worth 40*d.* the same sheriff took it, the sellers being unwilling, at 2*s.* 6*d.*; he moreover took their horses for transport, and did other things not set down in the petition—William de Vescy comes and says that he claims to have his sheriff's tourn as well in Tristeldermot as in any other vill within the liberty of Kildare; and he says that he held that tourn in purparty with Agatha de Mortimer and Matilda de Kyme, without whom, &c.; and as to the other injuries done to the same burgesses by order of the sheriff, William was told to cause the sheriff and the parceners to appear before the justices assigned by the K. And likewise regarding this, that whereas Roger de Penbroc took to Thomas Maunsel, sheriff of Kildare, the K.'s writ to levy 25 marks out of the lands and chattels of Isabella de Penbroc which he had recovered against her by judgment of the K.'s court, the sheriff did nothing regarding the writ but wholly superseded it. William de Vescy thereupon said that he should have Roger the sheriff before the justices assigned as the K. was concerned. William came, but the sheriff and William's coparceners did not come.

[Inquisition.] The jurors, namely, Hugh Husee, Nicholas Aubrey, John Fitz Ryry, Robert de Maundeville, Michael de Bodenham, William de la More, Peter de la More, Walrand Wodelok, Gilbert le Palmer, John Robert le Arch', and Richard Lopyn, Say upon their oath that the men of Kyltagan and Jacobeston', are men of John de la Roche, who holds of the K. in capite. They also Say that Thomas Maunsel, sheriff of Kildare, was wont to take corn in the vill of Tristeldermot from unwilling sellers to the best market where it could be sold. He was moreover wont to take horses in the vill aforesaid for transport of the corn and other matters against the will of the burgesses. They say that Roger Galwey took a writ to Thomas the sheriff aforesaid to levy 25 marks out of the lands and chattels of Isabella de Penbroc recovered against her by judgment. Thomas did nothing thereupon, but altogether superseded that writ on account of the hatred which he bore against Roger.

Easter. 131. Ireland. The Abbot of St. Thomas, near Dublin, appeared against Richard Fitz Reginald of a plea why the latter had prosecuted a plea in the court of Kildare, against the K.'s prohibition, of the advowson of the church of St. Moling (which is incroceata) [appropriate] in contempt of the K. and to the damage of the Abbot. Reginald not having appeared, William de Vescy, chief justiciary of Ireland, distrained him by 5 crannocks of wheat (value of each crannock, 5*s.*), 12 crannocks of oats (value of each crannock, 20*d.*), and six cows and 4 bullocks, worth 4*s.* each. Thomas de Lees and William le Ireys gave mainprise for Richard. The justiciary was commanded to distrain him as before, and have his body before the K. wheresoever, &c. on the quinzaine of St. John the Baptist. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 141, Rot. 7.]

Easter. 132. Ireland. The same abbot appeared against Matilda de Kyme and Agatha de Mortimer of a plea that whereas Richard Fitz Reginald had impleaded the abbot in the liberty of Kildare by its writ that the abbot should permit him to present a clerk to the vacant church of St. Moling, which is appropriate, the said Matilda and Agatha held the plea and ejected the abbot to his loss. Matilda and Agatha not having appeared the justiciary was commanded to distrain them to appear as above in the quinzaine of St. John the Baptist. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 141, Rot. 7.]

P., Dublin), yet the said William, Matilda, and Agatha had distrained the abbot to come to their court of Kildare. Matilda and Agatha not having appeared the justiciary was commanded to distrain them to appear with William de Vescy, as above. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 141, Rot. 7.]

As the K. wills to be certified regarding the record and process of the plaint had before them on account of which the wager of battel was made, mandate to William de Estdene, &c. to personally produce at Westminster, on the morrow of the Holy Trinity [June 14] at latest, the inquisitions with the record and process aforesaid, and this writ, to which day they shall adjourn William and John to do and receive judgment from the K.'s court in the premises. 1294.
Trinity. 141. Ireland. Further pleading between Richard Fitz Reginald against the K. and the Abbot of St. Thomas, Dublin. Cognizance of advowsons of churches appropriate in Ireland belongs to the K.; Richard had taken out a writ, quare impedit, against the abbot in order that he should permit Richard to present a clerk to the church of St. Moling, and this by writ of William de Vescy in Kildare; a prohibition thereupon issued against Richard; Nicholas de Warwick who sues for the K., says that the prohibition was delivered to Richard on Jan. 2, 1291–2, and he thereupon discontinued his suit; but renewed it to the damage of the K. of 10,000*l.*, and of the abbot of 100*l.* Judgment that the abbot recover his damages, and that Richard be imprisoned until the K. announces his will. Mandate to the chief justiciary that Richard remain in prison until he give ransom. An inquisition shall be taken as to the damages incurred by the abbot by the prosecution of the plea against the prohibition. Afterwards the justiciary announced that Richard had made a fine of 100*s.* by pledge of Ralph de Staines and Henry Mac Donewhyd, and that the abbot's damages had been assessed at 40 marks. Mandate to the chief justiciary for execution. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 142, Rot. 38 d.]

Trinity. 142. Peter, son of Philip de Staunton, puts in his place William de Graham or Walter de Etlewelle against Sir Thomas of Kildare of a plea of outlawry. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 142, Rot. 40.]

Trinity. 144. Ireland. The plaint between Emelina, who was the wife of Maurice Fitz Maurice and Thomas Fitz Maurice, of a plea of land is respited for judgment until the quinzaine of Easter. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 142, Rot. 19.]

Trinity. 145. Ireland. A day was given to the K. and the Abbot of St. Thomas, Dublin (who sues for the K. and for himself), and William de Vescy, of a plea of transgression of liberties and contempt, until the morrow of All Souls [Nov. 3], wheresoever, &c. On which day William appears, but the abbot does not appear, wherefore he is amerced, and William is without day as regards the abbot's suit; but a day is given to William against the K. in the plea aforesaid and likewise to Richard de Breteville, who sues for the K., namely in one month of Easter. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 142, Rot. 32 d.]

Trinity. 146. Further pleading between Matilda de Kyme and Agatha de Mortimer and the Abbot of St. Thomas, Dublin. It appears from the inquisition taken in the premises by Robert Bagod and his associates, justices C. P., Dublin, that the abbot does not answer within the liberty of any plea, and that the parceners are not in seisin of any jurisdiction of the abbot; nevertheless William de Vescy, Matilda, and Agatha after the inquisition distrained the abbot to come to their court of Kildare, and to answer there to the prejudice of the K. and the loss of the abbot, &c. Wherefore the K., by writ dated June 8, a. r. 21 [1293], commanded the justices to summon William, Matilda, and Agatha to answer to the K. and the abbot. The parties now appear; and Richard de Breteville who sues for the K. says that Matilda and Agatha have no jurisdiction over the abbot or his possessions, but that he holds of the K. in capite. Nevertheless the said Agatha and Matilda, parceners of Kildare, held a plea in their court of Kildare of the advowson of the church of St. Moloch, and ousted the abbot from the advowson; and they likewise cause the abbot to be cited twice a year to their assizes of Kildare, usurping the rights of the Crown, to the K.'s damage of 10,000*l.* and the abbot's damage of 100*l.*

Matilda and Agatha demand judgment as to whether they ought to answer a writ issuing from an inquisition regarding which there was no judgment. A day was given to them on the morrow of All Souls before the K. wheresoever. On which day Matilda and Agatha appear, but the abbot did not appear, wherefore he is amerced, and Matilda and Agatha as to their suit are without day, but a day is given to them in the plea against the K. and to Richard de Breteville, who sues for the K., namely, in one month of Easter. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 142, Rot. 33.]

Trinity. 147. Record delivered by the hand of Walter de la Haye. Pleas before W[alter] de la Haye, keeper of the office of chief justiciary of Ireland, and before the K.'s council at Dublin on Thursday, April 1, a.r. 22 [1294], in presence of Gilbert de Clare, Earl of Gloucester, Richard de Burgh, Earl of Ulster, John de Hastings, and other barons and magnates. John Fitz Thomas was attached at the suit of William de Vescy to answer to William for defamation. The parties appear, and William complains that John had said to the K. and council in England that William had demanded of him a compact by oath that John had sided with him against the K. and demanded that he should avow or unsay this. John says that William never demanded a compact by oath of him, but adds that he would say more if further questioned. On petition of William and the Earl of Gloucester, John avows that William had used the words contained in a schedule, which he produces to the justice aforesaid.

Tenor of the schedule:—These are the words which Sir William de Vescy said to Sir John le Fitz Thomas concerning our lord the King, namely, that the people of Ireland were the most miserable he knew, for they would be, if they willed anything, great lords, and would well maintain the lands and franchises of Ireland, notwithstanding the King. If they knew as much of the King as he knew they would value the King very little, for he is the most perverse and dastardly knight of his kingdom. He recounted a good chance which had befallen the King, and this was in spite of himself, at the time when he came to Kenilworth. The King then took many hostages, killed a great number of the host of Sir Simon de Montfort the younger, and discomfited every other; but after he came to Kenilworth he sent persons to learn what people were with Sir Simon, and hearing this he said he should return, for all the men of England would have enough to do to meet them. Then Sir Roger de Clifford said that if he returned it would be a great shame and blame to the King and all his to come, and might be the destruction of England. The King answered that then all the shame and blame were his, and he should return. Truly said Sir Roger de Clifford you take more shame and blame from this matter than the rest of England; then said he, howsoever it may happen we will go before the banners, and rode forward. The King could not for shame but go too, and so they did as is before said. Sir William then said to Sir John to speak with his friends, if they would assent to these things, and then it would be well.

I well understood that these things were against the lord our King and his state, and I warn the men of the council of this matter to save my[1] fealty. [Norman French.]

William having heard the tenor of the schedule accused John of uttering falsehood like a traitor, denied all charges against himself, offered to defend himself by his body against John, and tendered his pledge into the hand of the justice, who received it. John avowed everything in the schedule, offered to prove it by his body against William as the court should adjudge, and tendered his pledge into the hand of the justice, who received it. The matter was continued by mainprise of the parties and consent until Saturday following, when the parties appear. The charge is again repeated by John, and denied by William, &c. By the justice and others of the council by consent of the parties a day is given to them to appear in one month of St. John the Baptist [July 24], to receive the orders of the court; and the parties are held to bail by mainprise of 12 knights. Afterwards the K. sent his writ to William de Estdene, Treasurer of Ireland, Robert Bagod, and Walter de la Haye, the escheator, commanding them to cause an inquisition to be taken according to the power given to them regarding the complaints made by John of injuries done to him by William. The K. summons William, Robert, and Walter and the parties to be before him at Westminster on the morrow of the Holy Trinity next ensuing. The day of the duel which had been given to the parties before William, Robert, and Walter shall be assigned before the K. at Westminster. The parties shall appear in their own proper persons at Westminster, to receive judgment of the court. Meanwhile the duel shall not proceed. By consent of the three they shall assign a fit and proper person of Ireland to carry on the office of justiciary until their return, or further orders. Canterbury, April 21, a. r. 22 [1294].

By virtue of this writ a day is assigned to the parties in one month of St. John the Baptist [July 24], at Westminster before the K.

On this day William appears as an armed knight with military arms, namely, an armoured war horse, a lance, a shield, a poniard, a coat of mail and other military arms, and offers to defend himself against John as the court shall adjudge. John being solemnly called comes not. William demands judgment of the default, and prays if he has more arms than are proper that he may by licence of the court lay them aside, and if fewer that he may take more. A day is given to him on Monday morrow of St. James the Apostle [July 26], and meanwhile let the King's will be done.

On the morrow, namely, Friday, the K. by writ commands W[illiam] Bishop of Bath and Wells, his treasurer, if the parties shall appear before him, to order them to come before the K. Given under Privy Seal. Rughemore, July 21, 1294. Afterwards on Saturday William comes before the Treasurer in full Exchequer and says that understanding that the K. has imparted his will to the treasurer regarding this matter he prays that the K.'s will be fulfilled. John having thereupon been solemnly called comes not. William demands judgment of the default as before. A day is thereupon given to him according to the K.'s mandate on Wednesday next after the feast of St. James the Apostle [July 28], before the K. himself wheresoever the K. shall be in England, to perform what the K.'s court shall adjudge, and the whole record is sent to the K. 1294. Michaelmas. 161. The K.'s writ commanding William de Vescy, justiciary of Ireland, to send before the K. by the octaves of Trinity the record and process of a plaint between Margery, who was the wife of Emery de Derneford, and Robert Bagod and John Daundon, by writ of the court of the liberty of Bunratty, before the K.'s justices there, regarding Margery's dower. This liberty is in the K.'s hand by reason of custody of the son and heir of Thomas de Clare, deceased, who held of the K. in capite, and regal jurisdiction is as alleged exercised in its court. The justices had adjudged dower to Margery, but had deferred giving her execution. Darlington, Jan. 15, 1292–3. The following record was indorsed on the writ:—Mandate to John Bridges, the K.'s justice at Bunratty (assigned to hear and determine the plaint between the parties in the writ), to cause execution of the judgment to issue, or to send the record and process before William de Vescy and the K.'s council at Dublin on the quinzaine of Easter. On which day John said that he had no record or process thereupon. A similar mandate issued to John Archbishop of Dublin, late justiciary of Ireland, and William de Barry and his associates, justices itinerant in the county of Limerick, who all returned that they had no record or process. But it was testified by William de Weston, a justice in eyre, and others at Dublin, on the quinzaine of Easter last past, that Margery de Derneford had impleaded before the justices itinerant of the county of Limerick Robert Bagod of one villata in Bunratty. Robert vouched to warranty Gilbert, son and heir of Thomas de Clare, who is under age and in the K.'s custody, and Walter de la Haye, escheator of Ireland, warrants and answers that Margery never was married to Emery de Derneford. It was likewise shown by an inquisition that Margery was never married. Afterwards the Bishop of Killaloe, to whom the K. had written to inquire thereupon, certified contrary to the inquisition taken before the justices in eyre. In one month of Easter, 1294, Margery having come and demanded justice it was adjudged that as the record sent did not find plainly for or against Margery therefore execution could not issue thereupon. 1294–5.
Jan. 23. 193. The K. having taken under his protection the person, men, lands, and rents, &c. of Thomas de Snyterbi, remaining by licence in Ireland, commands John de Langeton, his chancellor, to cause the K.'s letters patent to be made to him thereupon for 1 year. Aberconway. [Tower Privy Seals, 23 Edw. I., No. 1.]

Feb. 16. 194. Whereas Walter Uncle, formerly sheriff of Tipperary, had writs issuing out of chancery (which were diverted to the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin), containing that they had certified the K. touching certain articles, and should do other things directed by the writs, the K. commands the chancellor to cause Walter to have under the Great Seal the K.'s writ, similar to those writs. Aberconway. [Tower Privy Seals, 23 Edw. I., No. 6.]

March 3. 195. The K. to John de Langeton, the chancellor, and his locum tenens. Brother Henry, a Cistercian monk, had presented letters patent of Peter, dean, and the chapter of Derry, announcing that they had elected the said Henry as Bishop of Derry. The letters being defective the K. sends Henry to the chancellor directing that letters under the Great Seal may be directed to the justiciary and Chancellor of Ireland, that as soon as the elect shall have presented letters patent of the dean and chapter under their seal the justiciary and chancellor may admit the elect if fit in the K.'s name, intimate in due form to the Metropolitan under the K.'s Irish seal to do what is his in this matter, and on canonical confirmation receive fealty from the elect and restore the temporalities. Aberconway. [Tower Privy Seals, 23 Edw I., No. 2.]

March 3. 196. The K. to William Oddingeseles, justiciary of Ireland. The dean and chapter of Derry having elected Brother Henry of Ardagh, of the Cistercian order, as Bishop of Derry [Derensis], in room of Florence, late bishop, the K. grants of special grace to them, and gives power to the justiciary that when the elect shall have delivered letters patent as in the above Privy Seal according to the form of the inclosed transcript, the justiciary may give the royal assent, &c. Aberconway. By writ of Privy Seal. [Pat., 23 Edw. I., m. 16.]

March 12. 197. The K.'s writ to William de Estdene, Treasurer of Ireland, commanding him as he desires the welfare and honour of the K., and the preservation of Gascony and its army, to provide from merchants or others as quickly as he can in the country about Cork and Youghal, nearest to Gascony and furthest from the K., ten or twelve or more ship-loads of good wheat and oats, and send them to that army, to Bayonne, Ryons, Bourg-sur-mer, and those parts. In order to hasten these matters the K. assigns Ivo of Guildford, bearer of these letters, more fully to explain the K.'s intention and pleasure. William shall assign one of his men on whom he relies to see in proper person to these matters in conjunction with Ivo. Further charges William to send to the K. in Wales, from other places in Ireland nearest to the K., such victuals as he can. Given under Privy Seal. Aberconway. Norman French. [Q.R., Irish Exchequer, Bundle $\frac{5}{14}\frac{3}{2}$, m. 2.]

1294–5.
March 22. 198. The K. having conferred on Nicholas de Geneville, the prebend of Castleknock in the church of St. Patrick's, Dublin (which is vacant and belongs to the K.'s collection by reason of vacancy in the archbishopric of Dublin), commands John de Langeton, the chancellor, to cause letters under the Great Seal to be made thereupon to Nicholas. Aberconway. [Tower Privy Seals, 23 Edw. I., No. 2.]

March 22. 199. Grant according to above writ of Privy Seal to Nicholas de Geynville, clerk, of the prebend of Castleknock in the church of St. Patrick's, Dublin. Mandate to the dean and chapter of the church of St. Patrick's, Dublin, to assign to Nicholas, according to custom, a stall in the choir and a place in the chapter. Aberconway. [Pat., 23 Edw. I., m. 15.]

March 24. 200. Whereas by the K.'s special licence an election of an archbishop is about to be canonically celebrated in the churches of the Holy Trinity and St. Patrick's, Dublin, the K. directs John de Langeton, the chancellor, or his locum tenens, to send by letters under the Great Seal this licence to the parties interested. Aberconway. [Tower Privy Seals, 23 Edw. I., No. 2.]

March 24. 201. Letters in pursuance of above writ of Privy Seal. The K. to the Prior and Convent of the Holy Trinity [Christ Church], and the dean and chapter of St. Patrick's, Dublin. Brother Richard de Staunford, canon of the Holy Trinity, and Master Henry de Rathenny, canon of St. Patrick's, having approached the K. with letters patent of their chapters, and prayed licence to elect, the K. grants licence, commanding them to elect an archbishop devout, fit to rule their church, and useful and faithful to the K. and to Ireland. Aberconway.

Mem. That they previously had licence on supplication of Adam de Balsham, canon of the Holy Trinity, and Thomas de Snyterby, canon of St. Patrick's, Dublin, who came to the K.; and because on the arrival of Master Thomas de Chadworth, their elect, it was understood that the canons had proceeded to election before they had the K.'s licence to elect, they were sent back to Ireland with this new letter of licence to elect; and in order to have this letter they set forth in the letter to the chancery the K.'s writ, which remains on the file. [Pat., 23 Edw. I., m. 15.]

[1295 ?] 202. John de Langton to Thomas Fitz Maurice, justiciary of Ireland, praying him to be aiding and favourable to Dame Christiana de Mareys, who had a plea before him. [Royal Letters, 2616.]

March 29. 203. The K. to the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin. Torgianus [Thoresan] Donati del Pape had formerly complained for himself, James Donati and others, his associates, merchants of Florence, that the treasurer and barons had harassed and unjustly arrested them for 300*l.* of the farm of the new custom granted to them for a yearly sum of money payable to the K., which 300*l.* Stephen, formerly Archbishop of Tuam, justiciary of 1295.

Ireland, had received from them to the K.'s use, and whereof he had promised to acquit them in the account of the farm aforesaid. The K. had commanded the treasurer and barons that in presence of J[ohn], then Archbishop of Dublin, justiciary of Ireland, they should inquire the truth thereupon, and if it appeared that the Archbishop of Tuam had received the money from the merchants, that they should discharge the merchants in their account of the farm aforesaid, and charge the archbishop's executors therewith. Although it had been recorded by the same archbishop and barons that Stephen had acknowledged in the Exchequer that he had received from the merchants, farmers of said custom, 300*l.* out of the issues of the custom, and afterwards W[alter] Bishop of Waterford, brother and executor of the said Stephen, had confessed the same, the treasurer and barons still charged the merchants with 300*l.*, and omitted to charge the executors and execute the writ, except that they caused the merchants who had been placed in the custody of the marshal (and then bailed by the Archbishop of Dublin aforesaid) and of Thomas de Chadew[orth], to be discharged. Wherefore they had prayed the K. for a remedy. The K. commands the treasurer and barons to perform what he had already commanded by his writ. As to the 300*l.* which Stephen the justiciary received on loan from Thoresan, which he caused by Robert Bagot locum tenens of Treasurer of Ireland to be paid to the same, and which are exacted from Thoresan by summons of the Exchequer, Dublin, they shall search the rolls, &c., and view the merchants' accounts as well of all the time they held the custom as of arrears of the account of the mint of Dublin, audited by Iter of Angoulême and Gregory de Rokesley, and of the amount which ought to have been applied in amendment of the mint, and of all other things regarding which they ought to render account, and make them due allowance. The merchants and Thoresan shall satisfy the K. as becomes them. If there is anything which cannot be clearly determined by the treasurer and barons of Dublin, they shall communicate it to the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer of England, with their counsel and full instructions, &c. Witness, W[illiam] Bishop of Bath and Wells, the K.'s treasurer, Westminster. [Memoranda, Q.R., 22–23 Edw I., Rot. 29 dors.]

March 30. 204. The K. and his army in Wales, being sufficiently provisioned, mandate to William de Estdene, Treasurer of Ireland, henceforth not to send to the K. without special command any supplies from Ireland, save hay and beer; but to speedily send all the wheat and oats he can to the K.'s force in Gascony, of which it stands much in need. Given under Privy Seal. Aberconway. Norman French. [Q.R., Irish Exchequer, Bundle $\frac{5}{14}\frac{3}{2}$, m. 1 and m. 3.]

Easter. 205. Ireland. Respite at the plaintiff's prayer, until 1 month of Michaelmas, of a plea of land between Emelina, who was the wife of Maurice Fitz Maurice, and Thomas Fitz Maurice, to hear judgment. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 145, Rot. 5.]

June 8. 227. The K. commands the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer to search the rolls and memoranda of the Exchequer as to the lands held by William Doddingeseles, deceased, to whom the K. had given lands in Ireland shortly before Christmas last past. June 12. 228. The K.'s writ to Walter de la Haye, escheator of Ireland, commanding him to take into the K.'s hand all the lands and tenements whereof John de Walhope was seized in his demesne as of fee at his decease; and by oath of good and lawful men of Walter's bailiwick to inquire how much land John held of the K. in capite, how much of others, by what service, what are the lands worth, who is his heir, and what is his age. The inquisition shall be sent to the K. with this writ. Witness, Thomas, Fitz Maurice, keeper of the land of Ireland, Dublin.

[Indorsed.] The land of John de Walhope was taken into the K.'s hand by the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer because the land is demesne of the K. and is not of the escheator's bailiwick. Wherefore execution of this writ could not be taken out.

The same writ repeated. Witness, Thomas Fitz Maurice, keeper of Ireland, 29 June a. r. 23 [1295].

Inquisition taken at Dublin on Friday after the feast of the Apostles, Peter and Paul, a. r. 23 [July 1, 1295]. Jurors.—Adam of Howth, Nicholas Skybras, Luke le Chamberlain, Ralph Chamberlain, John Dawe, Geoffrey Chevre, Thomas le Hunt, Bertram Abbot, Walter White, Roger de Balyardour, Roger son of David, Henry de Wylton, Who upon their oath Say that John Walhope, deceased, held of the K. in capite at his death 5 carucates of land in Balyhawyl, Balytire, Balyhamund, and half a carucate in Garvath; he held nothing of others, nor rendered any service or rent; the lands are worth 15*l.* a year; William de Walhope, brother of John, is his next heir, and is aged 22 years and more.

The treasurer and barons say that the lands aforesaid which William Walhope prays for were first of the K.'s demesne; they were given to John Walhope, and after the death of Alienor and Margaret, his daughters and heirs, the lands reverted to the said Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, to the use of the K. And they still hold the lands aforesaid in the K.'s hand until they have a writ to deliver them.

The K.'s writ to Thomas Cantock, Chancellor of Ireland, and William de Estdene, Treasurer of the Exchequer, Dublin. It had been been shown to the K., on the part of William de Walhope, that whereas lately after the death of John de Walhope, William's brother, the K., had caused all his lands and tenements to be taken into the K.'s hand, and had granted the custody of the lands and of Alienor and Margaret, his daughters and heirs under age, to William de Doddyngeseles, deceased, to hold until their age, with their marriage; Alienor and Margaret dying without heirs of their bodies, after the death of Margaret, who died last, and in whom the fee of the lands vested, the K. caused the lands to be again taken into his hand; then William appeared and asserting that he was brother of John, and uncle and heir of Margaret, demanded justice of the lands as of his inheritance, yet he could not obtain seisin of them. The K. therefore commands the chancellor and treasurer to inquire by oath of good and lawful men what lands the said Margaret held, what is their value, &c., and who is her next heir, and of what age, and to send the inquisition before the K. Westminster. Aug. 7, a. r. 23 [1295].

Inquisition taken at Dublin on Thursday on the octaves of

Michaelmas, a. r. 23 [Oct. 6, 1295], before Master Thomas Cantok, Chancellor of Ireland, and W[illiam] de Estdene, Treasurer of Ireland, of the lands, &c. of John de Walhope, deceased. Jurors.— Sir Wolfram de Berneval, knight, Thomas Mastrel, Andrew Crompe, Walter le Deveneys, William Kyssok, Richard Kyssok, Richard de Balytormot, Thomas de Glynmethan, William White de Stradbally, Simon de Camerâ, Robert Mitchel, and Thomas White, who upon their oath Say that the K. enfeoffed John Walhope of five carucates of land in Balyhawyl, Baliotire, and Balihamund for 30 librates of land, to hold to him and his heirs of the K. in capite by the service of one knight; he died seised thereof; after his death the lands descended to Alienor and Margaret, his daughters, of whom Sir William de Dodyngseles had custody by gift of the K. On the death of Alienor the lands descended to Margaret, her sister, who likewise died under age. The lands are now scarcely worth 15*l.* on account of wars and the casualties of fortune. Margaret held no land of other persons. William Walhope who now claims the lands was brother of John Walhope and next heir of Margaret aforesaid. And they Say that the said William is of full age. Aug. 18. 243. It is shown to the K. on the part of Ela, who was the wife of William de Oddingeseles, and on the part of the co-executors of his will, that whereas the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, had delivered to William his fee for half a year of the time when he was justiciary of Ireland, and William had died when the said half year was not completed, the treasurer and barons only making allowance to the executors for that fee from the day of his arrival in Ireland until the day of his death, had caused the goods and chattels of deceased to be taken into the K.'s hand for the residue of the fee for so much as was wanting of the half year, and detain the goods and chattels from the executors. The K. therefore of special grace commands the treasurer and barons to allow to the executors the fee for an entire half year, and to cause the goods and chattels to be delivered if they are in the K.'s hand for the above, and for no other reason. Dover. The 11th of the calends of Sept. [Royal Letters, 2,223.]

Aug. 24. 246. The K. to the justiciary of Ireland, or his locum tenens, the Treasurer of the Exchequer, Dublin, and the Chancellor of Ireland. Whereas John Fitz Thomas (accused in the K.'s Court at Westminster before the K. touching the caption of Richard, Earl of Ulster, and other offences and transgressions committed against the K.'s peace in Ireland) has submitted to the K.'s will, and is bound to find twenty-four mainpernors, each of whom shall have at least twenty marcates of land in fee, and of whom he had already found Walter L'Enfaunt, Peter le Butler, and Henry de Vernoyl, of Ireland, according to the form in the transcript which the K. sends enclosed in these presents, the K. commands the above to inspect the tenor of the transcript, and cause letters to be taken under their seals from 21 mainpernors from Ireland as above, to be found by the said John; to cause the letters to be inrolled on the rolls of the Exchequer, Dublin, and of the justices of the Common Pleas there; and to cause duplicates thereof to be made, one of which shall remain in the Treasury [of Ireland], and another be delivered to the said John in order to be forwarded to the K. before the feast of St. Martin [Nov. 11] next ensuing. Westminster.

Declaration and undertaking by Sir John Fitz Thomas, knight, Walter l'Enfaunt, Peter le Butiller, and Henry de Vernoyl, of Ireland. Whereas the K. had caused the said Sir John Fitz Thomas to be accused and impleaded in the K.'s Court, Westminster, regarding the caption of Richard, Earl of Ulster, and other offences and transgressions committed in Ireland against the K. and against the K.'s peace, although the said Sir John could otherwise sufficiently prove his innocence, yet, being unwilling to enter the ways of litigation with the K., he wholly and entirely submits to the K.'s will touching all charges against him, promising that he will faithfully and firmly fulfil whatever the K. shall order; he binds his person, his lands and tenements, and his goods, moveable and immoveable, thereto. In pledge thereof he will immediately on arriving in Ireland find twenty-four mainpernors, each of whom shall have at least twenty-four marcates of land in fee, and of these he has already found the said Walter, Peter, and Henry. The remaining twenty-one to be found before the justiciary and the K.'s council in Ireland, shall solemnly bind all their lands and tenements, under pain of losing them, that they will cause these promises to be faithfully fulfilled. Each of them shall draw up letters patent to this effect according to a form given by the K., and these shall be delivered to the K. before the feast of St. Martin [Nov. 11] next ensuing, wheresoever the K. shall be, in England or at the Exchequer of England, if the K. should be absent from the realm. If Sir John should not be able to find the mainpernors and to produce their letters, he will appear personally before the K. within the above term in the same state as he is in at the making of these letters; and after he has so appeared the said Walter, Peter, and Henry, and the others (if Sir John is able to find more mainpernors) shall be quit of the obligation made. Sir John further promises that after he shall have found the said mainpernors before the justiciary and council, and shall have caused their letters obligatory to be delivered to the K., he will appear personally before the K. on a day or days to be assigned by the K., to hear the K.'s will and to perform the K.'s orders. If he should fail in the premises, Sir John grants that his lands and tenements and all his chattels, moveable and immoveable, be confiscated to the K., and that his body be at the K.'s pleasure to be punished of life and limb.

Undertaking by the said Walter, Peter, and Henry, at Sir John's instance, and under pain of forfeiture of their lands and possessions, that they will cause Sir John to observe all and singular the premises, and that the mainpernors still to be found shall bind their lands in the form given by the K. to Sir John for the same purpose. In testimony whereof the said Walter, Peter, and Henry have put their seals to these presents. Westminster. Aug. 27, a. r. 23 [1295].

Form of letters patent to be given under their seals by mainpernors.

The letters are directed to the Bishop of Ossory. Berwick-upon-Tweed. [Pat., 24 Edw. I., m. 16.]

April 13. 294. The K. to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland. Whereas the K. had lately caused all the lands of Nicholas de Clere, Archdeacon of Dublin, to be taken into the K.'s hand by reason of arrears of Nicholas's account when he was Treasurer of Ireland, and had caused all his ecclesiastical benefices to be sequestrated; and whereas the K. had learned that Adam de Forneys unjustly occupies the spirituality of the Archbishopric of Dublin (in the name of the dean and chapter of St. Patrick's, and the chapter of the Holy Trinity, Dublin, keepers of that spirituality which ought by ancient custom to belong during vacancy to Nicholas Archdeacon of Dublin), therefore the K. commands the justiciary to induct and maintain Nicholas in possession of the spirituality, compelling Adam to restitution of what he had received, and to payment of damages as well to the K. as to Nicholas. The issues therefrom shall be devoted in part payment of the debt aforesaid. The justiciary shall certify under Irish seal to the Barons of the Exchequer, Westminster, what he shall do hereupon. Witness, P. de Willeby, locum tenens of Treasurer. By H. de Hengham, clerk of the Exchequer.

A similar writ is directed to the Treasurer and Barons, Dublin. [Memoranda, L.T.R., 23–24 Edw. I., Rot. 62 dors.]

April 27. 295. The K. commands Walter de la Haye, escheator of Ireland, to take into the K.'s hand the bishopric of Clonfert, vacant by the translation of John late bishop thereof to the archbishopric of Benevento. Walter shall answer for the issues at the Exchequer, Dublin. Berwick-upon-Tweed. [Fine Roll, 24 Edw. I., m. 12; and Originalia, 27 Edw. I., m. 9.]

May 12. 296. The K. took the homage of Thomas de Multon, son and heir of Edmunda le Butilere, deceased, for all the lands and tenements which Thomas de Multon, formerly husband of the said Edmunda, and father of Thomas aforesaid, held at his death by law of England of the inheritance of said Edmunda, and restored those lands. Wherefore it is commanded to Walter de la Haye, escheator of Ireland, to give to Thomas full seisin of all the lands which Thomas, his father, held in Ireland at his death by law of England, and which were taken into the K.'s hand by reason of his death. Roxburgh. [Close, 24 Edw. I., m. 8.]

May 20. 297. Whereas Thomas de Chaddeworth, elect of Dublin, is proceeding to the court of Rome regarding his election, the K. commands John de Langeton, the chancellor, to give him and his retinue letters of protection and safe conduct, to endure for 2 years, to renew and alter the letters of recommendation to the Pope and cardinals, to give him letters of recommendation to the Bishop [All . .], and to direct the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, to aid the elect in recovering his debts in Ireland. Roxburgh. [Tower Privy Seals, 24 Edw. I., No. 1, m. 39.]

May 20. 298. Safe conduct for two years for Master Thomas de Chadworth, elect of Dublin, about by the K.'s licence to depart for the court of Rome on matters touching his election. [Pat., 24 Edw. I. m. 15.]

Sept. 6. 317. The K. to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland. The Prior and Convent of the Island of Molana [Melanfeld'] having by their letters patent intimated that their church is vacant by the resignation of Brother Philip, late abbot thereof, and according to custom prayed licence to elect, the K. grants licence accordingly, commanding them to elect an abbot devout, fit to rule their church, useful and faithful to the K. and to Ireland. The K. further wishing to spare labour and expense to the Prior and Convent grants of special grace, and gives power to the justiciary to impart the royal assent when the elect shall have been presented to him, intimating to the diocesan to do what is his in this behalf. The K. further wills and gives power that if the election be canonically confirmed by the diocesan the justiciary may in place of the K. receive the fealty due to the latter and according to custom restore the temporalities, having first taken from the elect, letters patent sealed with his seal and that of the chapter that this special grace shall not turn to the K.'s prejudice or disherison, nor hereafter be converted into a precedent. Berwick-on-Tweed. [Pat., 24 Edw. I., m. 8.]

Sept. 7. 318. The K. to William de Estdene, Treasurer of Ireland. Thanks him for having sent to Gascony two ships laden with wheat, oats, and beans. Enjoins him after the present August to provide as well from the archbishopric of Dublin as elsewhere as large a store as he can of wheat, oats, beans, and peas, to load ships with them and send the ships as quickly as possible by twos, threes, or more to Gascony; and not to spare money for this purpose. Will cause the expense to be allowed in his account. Given under Privy Seal. Berwick-upon-Tweed. [Q.R., Irish Exchequer, $\frac{5\,3\,2}{1\,7}$, m. 5. Norman French.]

Sept. 8. 319. Richard de Burgh, Earl of Ulster, having testified before the K. that Eustace le Poer and Walter le Bret had well and manfully served the K, in the war of Scotland, the K. pardons to them the K.'s suit for homicides, robberies, and transgressions in Ireland, provided they stand their trial in the K.'s court if any one should charge them. Berwick-upon-Tweed. [Pat., 24 Edw. I., m. 8.]

Sept. 9. 320. Whereas John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, and Thomas de Snyterby (who had made payments to men of Ireland who had served the K. in the war of Scotland) had testified that the following persons had lost in the K.'s service in this war horses worth the sums attached to their names, to wit, Hugh Biset, 20*l.*, Thomas de Mandeville, 20*l.*, Hilary de Burgh, 10*l.*, Bynde the Lombard, 20 marks, Richard de Lathom, 10 marks, William Wogan, 12 marks, Thomas Maskerel, 10*l.*, Nicholas Crok, 100*s.*, Walter le Bret, 10 marks, the K. commands the Treasurer and Chamberlains of the Exchequer, Dublin, to pay those sums to the owners of the horses. Sept. 10. 322. The K. to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland. Trinotus O'Thomelty and Denis of Roscommon, canons of Elphin, had prayed the K. on behalf of the dean and chapter of Elphin for licence to elect in the place of Brother Gelasius their late bishop. Although the canons had not brought, as is the custom, letters patent under the seal of the chapter notifying vacancy, the K. nevertheless of special grace grants their petition on account of their poverty, and gives power to the justiciary that when the canons shall come to him with letters patent under the seal of the chapter, praying licence to elect, the justiciary may in the K.'s name give licence to the dean and chapter. Provided that when the elect shall be subsequently presented to the justiciary in the usual form, the latter may give the royal assent in lieu of the K. intimating to the Metropolitan to do what is his in this matter. The K. further wills and gives power that if the election be canonically confirmed the justiciary may on taking fealty from the elect restore the temporalities, having first received from him letters patent under his seal and the seal of the chapter, that this special grace shall not turn to the K.'s prejudice or disherison, nor hereafter be converted into a precedent. The K. will cause due allowance to be made in their account. The K. does not express the number of quarters on account of the excessive indigence of his men. Berwick-upon-Tweed. Having confirmed this election, the archbishop prays the K. to restore the temporalities notwithstanding a frivolous postulation made by excommunicated persons of Brother Marian of the order of preachers, which postulation was not presented to the K. as is the custom, nor approved by the archbishop according to the statutes of Roman Pontiffs. Easter. 387. The K.'s writ under the seal of the Exchequer of Dublin to the Barons of the Exchequer. Whereas the K. had lately directed the sheriff of Cork that he should cause to be levied out of the lands and chattels of Thomas de la Roche in his bailiwick 258*l.* 7*s.* 11½*d.*, arrears of Thomas's account of the time when he was sheriff of Cork, and that he should cause to be levied out of the lands and chattels of Henry, son of David de la Roche, 100 marks which Thomas undertook to pay for Henry in the Exchequer of Dublin, of fine made by Henry with the K. for transgressions against the peace; and that out of the lands and chattels of the same Thomas he should cause to be levied 40*l.*, payable annually in the terms of St. Michael and Easter, at the same Exchequer, out of another fine of 200*l.* made by Thomas for Henry for release of right (by pledge of John, son of David de Barry, John de Cogan, David, son of John de Cauntilon, John de la Pulle, and John, son of Philip de Barry); and whereas the sheriff had testified on his account before the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, that Thomas had no lands save waste ones or other goods in Ireland wherefrom the money aforesaid might be levied, the mainpernors having been distrained for the debt of 200*l.* had come before the same Treasurer and Barons, and alleged that Thomas had undertaken to indemnify them against the K. for 400 marks for Henry, son of David de la Roche, under penalty of distress of all Thomas's lands in England, Wales, and Ireland; and whereas the mainpernors are otherwise indebted to the K. at the Exchequer, Dublin, so that the K. cannot levy the arrears of their debts, therefore the K. commands the barons to cause Thomas's debts to be levied to the K.'s use in England and Wales. They shall certify to the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, what they shall do in the premises. Witness, R. de Saham, Dublin, Nov. 5, a. r. 23 [1295].

[Q.R., Irish Exchequer, $\frac{5}{1}\frac{3}{9}\frac{2}{}$, m. 4.]

1297. April 15. 393. The K. notifies to John Wogan, justiciary, and to bailiffs and lieges of Ireland, that he takes under his protection and safe conduct the burgesses and merchants of G[uy] Count of Flanders, of Bruges, Flanders, with their chattels and merchandise, in going to, remaining in, and departing from Ireland. Provided that they pay due customs, and do not export their merchandise to France. Mandate accordingly. Plympton. [Pat., 25 Edw. I., pt. 1, m. 8.]

April 25. 394. The K. to the justiciary of Ireland or his locum tenens. Whereas the prior and convent of Weeme have signified by letters patent that their church is vacant by the deposition of Brother Thomas, formerly abbot of that place, and have supplicated the K.

1297. according to custom for licence to elect an abbot, the K. grants licence accordingly, commanding them to elect one devout, fit to rule their church, useful and faithful to the K. and to Ireland. The K. further grants of special grace, and gives power to the justiciary when the elect shall have been presented to him to give the royal assent in lieu of the K., notifying to the diocesan to do what is his in this behalf. The K. further wills and gives power that if the election be canonically confirmed the justiciary may receive from the elect the fealty due to the K. and restore the temporalities, having first taken from the elect letters patent under his seal and that of the chapter that this grace shall not tend to the K.'s prejudice or disherison, nor hereafter be drawn into a precedent. Plympton. [Pat., 25 Edw. I., pt. 1, m. 8.]

April 26. 395. Brother Michael, canon of Weeme [Weym], announcing to the K. the deposition of Brother Thomas, formerly abbot of that place, has the K.'s letters of licence to elect. Plympton. [Pat., 25 Edw. I., pt. 1, m. 8.]

May 4. 396. The K. to Richard de Burgh, Earl of Ulster. Whereas the K. would soon want the assistance of the earl and of the K.'s other lieges in Ireland by reason of the present war between the K. and the King of France, the K. entreats and commands the earl on his fealty and affection to the K. that without delay he provide himself with horses and arms so that he may be prepared to come to the K., and to go with the K. in the K.'s own proper person wherever the K. shall demand. The K. will retain the earl by his side, and the earl never shall be sent away from the K.; wherefore it becomes the earl to be prompt in coming to the K. Prays the earl to place credence in what John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, to whom the K. has imparted his will, shall tell him with regard to this matter. The earl shall send his answer by the justiciary. Plympton.

Similar letters are directed to the underwritten, namely:—Geoffrey de Geyneville, John Fitz Thomas, Thomas Fitz Maurice, Theobald le Butyller, Theobald de Verdun, Peter de Bermingham de Anery, Peter de Bermingham de Tottemoy, Eustace le Power, John le Power, Hugh Purcell, John de Cogan, John de Barry, Walter de Lascy, Richard de Exeter, John Pypard, Walter l'Enfaunt, Jordan de Exeter, Adam de Staunton, Simon de Pheypo, William Cadel, John du Val, Maurice de Carreu, George de la Roche, Maurice de Rocheford, Maurice Fitz Thomas de Kerry, Geoffrey le Bret, Nicholas Avenel, John Comyn, Reginald de Dene. [Close, 25 Edw. I., m. 18 dors.]

May 4. 397. The K. to his lieges of Ireland. Whereas the K. will shortly need their service in the present war between the K. and the K. of France, the K. commands them on their fealty to prepare themselves with horses and arms to go in company with the K. for the defence and salvation of his kingdom. The K. proposes to retain them by his side; wherefore he thinks that they ought to be prompt and ready to come. Having imparted to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, his will on this subject, the K. prays them to give credence to what the justiciary shall tell them, to do what he shall require, and to return their answer to him. Exhorts them not to omit this as they love the advantage and honour of the K. and kingdom. Plympton. [Pat., 25 Edw. I., pt. 1, m. 7.]

May 4. 398. The K. commands John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, and the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, to cause all the ships now being laden with corn in Ireland and the corn which the K. had ordered for Gascony to be sent to the ports [of embarkation], and the ships to be despatched as quickly as possible to Gascony. No further provision of corn or other supplies shall be made for that country without special order. But money shall be immediately levied out of corn, issues of Ireland, and other matters from which it can be levied, and deposited in the castle of Dublin, where it shall be safely kept until the K. shall give his orders respecting the same. They shall certify to the K. what they shall do in the premises, and also the state of Ireland. Plympton. [Close, 25 Edw. I., m. 17.]

May 4. 399. The K. to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland. As the K. would shortly stand in need of his good men of Ireland for the war between the K. and the King of France, the K. sends letters for the Earl of Ulster and John Fitz Thomas and other good men of Ireland praying them to provide themselves without delay with horses and arms, to prepare to come to the K. in England, to go when required with the K. in person for the defence and salvation of the K.'s realm, and to put credence in what the justiciary shall tell them on the K.'s behalf. The K. enjoins the justiciary on his fealty to deliver the letters and use pains and diligence with the Earl of Ulster and others to prepare themselves to come to the K.; also to provide that the K. may have at command four hundred horsemen with armoured horses. The justiciary shall assure them that they shall not be sent away from the K., but that they shall be with the K. in person; and in order that this business be better done in all points, the justiciary shall endeavour that the day between the earl and John, touching the contest between them, be postponed as much as possible by the same sureties to be found on one side and the other, or by better if possible. Nevertheless, care must be taken that the men who come to the K. as aforesaid be well mounted and well apparelled. The K. had ordered such a small number of them in order that they might be well apparelled and well mounted, and that Ireland after their going might remain better supplied. The K. wills and commands that this order be not departed from. The justiciary shall certify how many ships are laden in Ireland with wheat as supplies for Gascony, in what places, and where they are to be discharged, and of the number of quarters of each kind of wheat, and whether the ships have gone altogether or in part. The justiciary shall certify to the K. as quickly as he can regarding these points and regarding the state of Ireland. The K. sends general open letters for those to whom he does not write by name. Plympton. [Close, 25 Edw. I., m. 17. Norman French.]

May 5. 400. The K. to William de Estdene, Treasurer of Ireland, directing him to send as speedily as possible to Bayonne the wheat which had been provided [in Ireland] for Gascony. Does not wish him to make any more provision until further orders. Charges William speedily to cause the issues of Ireland to be levied and well kept until the K. shall manifest his pleasure. Given under Privy Seal. Plympton. [Q.R., Irish Exchequer, $\frac{5}{17}\frac{3}{3}\frac{2}{2}$, m. 3. Norman French.]

May 8. 401. Master Maurice, canon of the church of Derry, announcing to the K. the death of Henry, formerly bishop thereof, has the K.'s letters of licence to elect. Sutton. [Pat., 25 Edw. I., pt. 1, m. 7.]

May 13. 402. At the instance of Master Thomas Cantok, Chancellor of Ireland, the K. commands the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, that in committing the office of doorkeeper of that Exchequer, now vacant by the death of Walter of the Exchequer, they prefer John de Seleby, bearer of these presents, if fit for the office, to the others. Honiton. [Close, 25 Edw. I., m. 17.]

May 13. 403. The same mandate to the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, repeated. [Close, 25 Edw. I., m. 14 dors.]

May 17. 404. The K. to Richard de Burgh, Earl of Ulster. Whereas the K. had lately commanded and prayed the earl to come to the K. with horses and arms, and had fixed his passage and summoned his men to be at London on Sunday next after the octaves of St. John the Baptist [July 7], the K. now considering that the earl cannot come to the K. by that time, because the earl is in distant parts, the K. prays and requires the earl to be at latest in London with horses and arms, &c. on the feast of St. Peter ad vincula [Aug. 1] following the above Sunday. The K. prays the earl to place credence in and to do what the justiciary shall tell him, and to send his answer by that official. Warham.

Tottus de Montclare had supplicated the K. that whereas he had formerly purchased in Ireland ten large sacks of wool, and had paid the custom thereon at the feast of St. Michael next ensuing, the wool was arrested by reason of a proclamation lately made ordering all wools and hides of Ireland to be conveyed to a certain place within a certain time. Mandate that the wool be restored if it was seized on account of the proclamation, and full custom was paid thereon. Westminster. [Close, 25 Edw. I., m. 12.]

410. Record on behalf of Thoresan Donat, sent from Ireland into England :—

Memoranda rolls of the Exchequer, Dublin, Michaelmas term, a. r. 28 [1290]. The K.'s writ to the Barons of the Exchequer, regarding a complaint of James and Thoresan Donat del Pape and their associates, merchants of Florence (who held to farm the new custom of Ireland), that they had been arrested for a sum of 300*l.* paid by them on account of that farm to [Stephen], late Archbishop of Tuam, then justiciary of Ireland, and for which they had allowance in their account. The K. therefore commands the barons to inquire regarding the complaint in presence of J[ohn] Archbishop of Dublin, justiciary. And if it appears that the archbishop had received this money from the merchants, then to exonerate them and to charge the archbishop's executors therewith. Westminster, June 3, a. r. 18 [1290]. On Oct. 6 the archbishop of Dublin, justiciary of Ireland, and the barons, recorded that the said S[tephen], formerly Archbishop of Tuam, then justiciary of Ireland, acknowledged in full Exchequer that he had received from Thoresan Donat and his associates, formerly farmers of the new custom, 300*l.* of its issues, and that he himself had been charged therewith in his account rendered in England. The merchants were therefore discharged from the custody of the marshal. Afterwards on Oct. 27, a. r. 18 [1290], W[alter] Bishop of Waterford, brother and executor of the deceased archbishop, avowed that the deceased ought to be charged with the 300*l.* And the K. by his writ given at Westminster, March 29, a. r. 23 [1295, ante, No. 203], commanded the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, as therein contained. By reason of the said mandates, record, and process the merchants were discharged of the arrears, as appears by the following documents :—

Account of the new custom rendered in the Exchequer, Dublin, a. r. 15.

Account of the new custom from the feast of All Saints, a. r. 10 [1282], until the same feast, a. r. 12 [1284], by Hugh Pape and his associates, merchants of Florence, keepers assigned to collect the custom.

The said Hugh and his associates, James and Thoresan [Donat] for him, render their account of 2,000*l.* of the said custom throughout Ireland.

Account of Henry de Ponte and James Donat, keepers of the Exchange, in the city of Dublin, from [Christmas], a. r. 8 [1279], until the feast of St. Matthew the Apostle, a. r. 9 [Sept 21, 1281].

1297.

Henry and James render their account of money received of the K.'s treasure of Ireland by weight by the hands of S[tephen] Bishop of Waterford, Treasurer in Ireland, total, 3,674*l.* 19*s.* 11¾*d.*

Account of Stephen Bishop of Waterford, of his receipts without the Exchequer, total, 12,160*l.* 9*s.* 8*d.*

Account of Andrew de Spersholte and James Donat, for Thoresan Donat, by the K.'s writ, of the issues of the Exchange at Dublin from Saturday next after Christmas, a. r. 9 [Dec. 31, 1280], until the same feast, a. r. 10 [1281]. Total by weight, 30,710*l.* By tale, 31,434*l.* 0*s.* 10½*d.*

Whereof of bullion purchased, 27,217*l.* 0*s.* 4½*d.* new money.

It is found by Robert the founder that the master received of bullion from divers persons by particulars, beyond the sum contained in the roll of purchases, 1,474*l.* 12*s.* 4*d.*, of which bullion there ought to be a tally of 1,376*l.* 6*s.* 1½*d.* And so the total cost of the whole bullion is 28,593*l.* 6*s.* 6*d.* Whereof for working and minting of 27,770*l.* worked and minted, namely, at 6¾*d.* per pound, 778*l.* 18*s.* 11½*d.*

For working and minting of 1,260*l.* 0*s.* 0½*d.* during the same time, namely, at 9*d.* per pound, 47*l.* 5*s.*

For working and minting of 1,680*l.* sterling there, namely, at 10¾*d.* per pound, 75*l.* 5*s.*

Total of minting, 903*l.* 3*s.* 11½*d.* This total is superfluous by 35*s.*

Thereof to the K., of issues of the exchange and foundry in pence, halfpence, and farthings, at 9¼*d.* in the pound, 1,191*l.* 2*s.* 10½*d.*

To the K., for increase of the totals aforesaid received by weight and delivered by tale, namely, at 3*d.* in the pound, 383*l.* 17*s.*

To the K., for increase of bullion, 50*l.* 7*s.* 8*d.*

Total of the K.'s portion, 1,625*l.* 7*s.* 6¼*d.*, proved.

To the K. for increase of the mint pound, which exceeds the Exchequer pound by 2¼*d.*, 287*l.* 18*s.* 1¼*d.*

To the K., received beyond 16*d.* in the pound out of 546*l.* 12*s.* 3*d.*, which were minted at Roscommon, and this for expenses of journey, 18*l.* 18*s.* 10½*d.*

Total, 306*l.* 15*s.* 11¾*d.*, proved.

Total of each portion of the K., 1,932*l.* 3*s.* 6¼*d.*, proved.

The keepers, for minute expenses of the Exchange, 4*l.* 9*s.* 11½*d.*

Their expenses in going to and remaining, &c., at Roscommon, 11*l.* 0*s.* 18*d.*

Their wages during the account, 40 marks.

Wages of one clerk during same time, 100*s.*

Wages of a doorkeeper, 4 marks.

Wages of the keeper of dies, 100*s.*

Total of expenses, 54*l.* 18*s.* 1½*d.*

1297.

Total cost of the mintage, the K.'s portions, increase and expenses, 31,483*l.* 12*s.* 1¼*d.*

And so this total exceeds the total of pence made by 49*l.* 5*s.* 2¾*d.*

The keepers owed to the K. of the preceding issues as above, 1,932*l.* 3*s.* 6¼*d.*

Whereof there are delivered to the Bishop of Waterford, the Treasurer, 1,855*l.* 7*s.* 11*d.*

And so they owe, after allowance of all particulars, 27*l.* 10*s.* 4½*d.*, besides 14*l.* 11*s.* 5¼*d.*, to which extent the money was under weight, which sum the keepers ought to spend of their own in improving."

And be it known that the keepers demanded allowance of 100*s.* paid to Marsilius of Sienna and his associates, moneyers, to repair the foundry houses by direction of R[obert] de Offord, then justiciary, and of 12*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, paid by direction of the same for expenses of sending monies, which were not allowed because no warrant was produced.

There remain in their custody 560*l.* 14*s.* 3*d.* of bullion by the mint pound.

View of account of Andrew de Spersholte and James Donat, by Thoresan Donat (as appears by account rendered in England), of issues of the Exchange of Dublin from June 4, a. r. 10 [1282], until the feast of St. Michael [Sept. 29], a. r. 12 [1284].

Judgment of the English barons that the allowance made by the Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, to James and Thoresan of 259*l.* 19*s.* 7*d.*, exacted from them of arrears of their account of the new custom, was duly made; and as to the 300*l.* exacted from Thoresan, because he avowed that he had received them from Robert Bagot, locum tenens of Treasurer, (although it seems that Thoresan ought of right to be discharged from them, as seems to the Treasurer and Barons of Dublin), nevertheless, as it is not the custom here, that allowance or discharge should be made without the K.'s writ under the Great Seal, Thoresan was directed to obtain such a writ.

The K.'s writ directing the Barons of the Exchequer to do justice to Thoresan according to custom of the Exchequer, Ipswich, Jan. 10, a. r. 25 [1296–7].

Form of writ to the Treasurer and Barons of Dublin, directing them to make due allowance to Thoresan, and to exonerate him from 300*l.* May 22, a. r. 25 [1297].

Petition of Thoresan Donat, merchant of Florence, returned to the Exchequer of Parliament in Trinity term, a. r. 25 [1297], praying for inquiry and allowance. The petition having been referred to the barons here, was by them referred to the Treasurer and Barons of Dublin.

The K.'s writ to the latter directing them to audit the account and cause due allowance to be made. Aug. 26, a. r. 25 [1297].

On Dec. 10, Thoresan demanded another writ to be sent to the Treasurer and Barons of Dublin, and a writ was sent, whereupon the Treasurer and Barons of Dublin sent a transcript of the account of Thoresan of the issues of the exchange aforesaid.

The Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer of England to the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, sending transcript of the K.'s letter to them for James and Thoresan Donat and Andrew de Spersholte, late keepers of the Exchange, Dublin, and other writings.

The K.'s writ to the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, commanding them again to audit the account of the merchants of the issues of the Exchange, during the whole time the merchants were keepers thereof, and to give them due allowances. Witness, W[alter] Bishop of Coventry and Lichfield, the Treasurer. York. Dec. 10, a r. 27 [1298].

Report thereupon of the Treasurer and Barons of Dublin. Dublin. Monday next before the feast of St. Matthias the Apostle, a. r. 27 [Feb. 23, 1298–9].

Transcript of account of the new custom of wools in Ireland from the feast of All Saints, a. r. 10 [1282], until the same feast, a. r. 12 [1284], by James and Thoresan Donat. Total, 12,160*l.* 9*s.* 8*d.*

Account of James Donat and Andrew de Spersholte, of issues of the Exchange of Dublin, from Saturday next after the Annunciation of Blessed Mary, a. r. 9 [March 29, 1281], until June 4, a. r. 10 [1282]. They owe 1,877*l.* 18*s.* 6¼*d.*

Account of the same James and Andrew, of issues of the Exchange from June 4, a. r. 10 [1282], until the feast of St. Michael, a. r. 12 [Sept. 29, 1284]. They owe 137*l.* 16*s.* 6½*d.*

The Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer of England having in the presence of William de Estdene, Treasurer of Ireland, then residing at the English Exchequer, on his account of the issues of Ireland, examined the whole account and process aforesaid, agreed that the merchants, notwithstanding error in their account, should have full allowance according to a form herein given.

Writ thereupon to the Treasurer and Barons of Dublin. Feb. 16. [Memoranda, Q.R., 25 Edw. I., Rot. 43–48.]

1297. 22 June. 414. Whereas William de Vescy had granted and surrendered to the K. the castle, manor, and county of Kildare, with their appurtenances, to wit whatever he had or could have in Ireland, to hold to the K. and his heirs, and had also granted the manor of Sprouston, with its appurtenances as well in England as in Scotland (whereof Clemence, who was the wife of John de Vescy, son of William de Vescy, holds in dower two parts, and Isabella, who was the wife of John de Vescy, brother of William, a third part), to hold to the K. and his heirs after the death of the same Clemence and Isabella, as in William's charter made thereupon more fully appeared, now the K. of special grace gives and grants to William the castle, manor, and county of Kildare aforesaid, to hold to William for his life, and the manor of Sprouston to hold to him also for life after the death of the said Clemence and Isabella, by the same services as William held the same castle, manor, and county of Kildare and manor of Sprouston on the day of the making of the surrender. Provided that after the decease of said William the castle, manor, and county of Kildare, with knights' fees, advowsons, and liberties, and the manor of Sprouston, after the death of Clemence and Isabella, shall wholly revert to the K. and his heirs. Westminster. [Close, 25 Edw. I., m., 13.]

Having given the royal assent to the election of Geoffrey MacLaughlin as Bishop of Derry, and commanded N[icholas] Archbishop of Armagh, primate of Ireland, to do what is his in this behalf, the K., wishing to spare the elect labour and expense and to render him special grace, commands the justiciary that if the election be canonically confirmed by the Metropolitan, then having received the fealty due to the K. he may cause the temporalities to be restored, having first taken from the elect letters patent under his seal and that of the chapter that this grace shall not tend to the K.'s prejudice or disherison, nor hereafter be converted into a precedent. July 6. 419. The K. to John de Wogan, justiciary of Ireland. Otho de Grandison had shown that the county court of Tipperary was always wont from time whereof there is no memory to be held in the vill of Tipperary, until the Archbishop of Cashel (by tolerance of S[tephen], late Archbishop of Tuam and justiciary of Ireland), caused the county court to be removed from Tipperary to his vill of Cashel, and to be held at the latter vill. Mandate that if this be so the justiciary shall cause the county court to be held for the future in the vill of Tipperary where it was previously wont to be held. Westminster. By the K. himself. July 14. 422. The K.'s writ to the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin. William de Deveneys holding for a term of years, by the K.'s commission and writ of the Exchequer, 1½ carucate of land, one mark of rent, and a fishery at Thorncastle yearly, paying a rent of 10*s.* 4*d.*, had prayed the K. to grant to him the land rent and fishery in fee farm at the rent aforesaid. The K. commands the Treasurer and Barons by oath of good men to inquire whether this gift and grant would be to the K.'s advantage, and how much the land rent and fishery are yearly worth. The inquisition shall be sent without delay to the K. Westminster.

Inquisition taken before the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, on Tuesday next after the feast of St. Catherine the Virgin, a. r. 26 [May 6, 1298]. Jurors:—Sir Geoffrey Harald, Sir Albert C[ra]nley, knights, Thomas de Crumlin, John de Sotton, John Daw, Otho de Rabo, Thomas Bailiff, Roger David, Robert de Caunton, Robert Michel, Richard Corcath, and Richard Osberne, Who Say upon their oath that it is to the K.'s advantage to grant to William le Deveneys in fee the land rent and fishery of Thorncastle, to hold of the K. because William has many other lands, but holds none of the K. in capite; if then he has this land of Thorncastle the K. would have ward and marriage of his heir, and if war should arise the K. would more securely have his rent from William than from other tenants there. And they Say that the land rent and fishery aforesaid are worth 108*s.* 4*d.* a year, and that the ward and marriage of William's heir would be worth 100 marks if he holds land in capite.

Certificate of the Barons of the Exchequer that it would be reasonable that the tenement should be held of the K. at 108*s.* 4*d.* a year, and the service of an 8th or 10th part of a knight's fee, and that William should pay to the K. 100*s.* to have the fee.

Letters of the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, remitting to the K. the inquisition they had taken by the K.'s order. Their advice is, if the K. pleases to enfeoff William of the lands, that William and his heirs should render some foreign service when royal service runs, that is to say, the tenth part of one knight's fee, more or less. Dublin, July 26, a. r. 26 [1298]. [Inq., P.M., 26 Edw. I., No. 60.]

July 14. 423. The K. to John de Wogan, justiciary of Ireland. Whereas the K. had commanded Theobald de Verdun (who was prevented by various causes from coming to the K. with horses and arms) to send Theobald his son (in the place of John, his eldest son, deceased, whom Theobald proposed to send), the K. commands the justiciary to cause Theobald the son to have passage by sea and right wages. Westminster. [Close, 25 Edw. I., m. 11.]

July 16. 424. The K. to John Wogan, justiciary, and Thomas Cantok, Chancellor of Ireland. Whereas the K. had learnt by inquisition taken by Robert de Ufford, formerly justiciary of Ireland, that Geoffrey de Geynville and Matilda his wife holds lands and tenements in Meath of Matilda's inheritance, which are without the boundaries of any counties, and that the K.'s writs, before the liberty of Meath was taken into the K.'s hand, were wont to be directed immediately to Hugh and Walter de Lascy, Matilda's ancestors; that this was changed by the justiciary, chancellor and others the K.'s ministers, of their own free will, and that it is not to the K.'s damage that the K.'s writs be immediately directed to Geoffrey and Matilda and their bailiffs of the liberty aforesaid; wherefore the K. had granted to them that writs be directed immediately to them and the bailiffs of their liberty according to the tenor of the inquisition (as they were wont to be directed to Matilda's ancestors, before the liberty was taken into the hands of King Henry, the K.'s father), commanding Stephen Bishop of Waterford, justiciary and the Chancellor of Ireland, that writs should be so directed. The K. had now learned by complaint of Geoffrey and Matilda that the justiciary does [not] direct writs immediately to them, but mediately by return of the sheriff of Dublin, in lesion of their liberty, in danger of their disherison, and contrary to the tenor of the inquisition, and to the form of the K.'s grant. The K. therefore commands the justiciary to cause writs to be directed to Geoffrey and Matilda, her heirs, and their bailiffs, according to the tenor of the K.'s command sent to Stephen aforesaid, and which is preserved in Ireland. If in any case the justiciary should direct writs to Geoffrey and Matilda and their bailiffs mediately by return of the sheriff of Dublin, he shall then certify to the K. for what cause he has done so. Wesminster. [Close, 25 Edw. I., m. 9.]

July 22. 425. The K. takes fealty of John de Carreu, who had married Alienor, elder daughter and heir of William de Mohun, deceased, and which Alienor had proved her age before the K. for all the lands which William, her father, held of the K. in capite. The K. restores their purparty to John and Alienor. Mandate to Malcolm de Harley to give seisin of the purparty according to the partition lately made by him. Westminster.

Whereas the dean and chapter of Clonmacnois have by their letters patent signified that their church is vacant by the death of William, late bishop thereof, and have according to custom prayed licence to elect, the K. grants licence accordingly, commanding them to elect a bishop devout, fit to rule their church, useful and faithful to the K. and to Ireland. The K. likewise grants of special grace and gives power to the justiciary that when election shall have been made and the elect presented by the canons to the justiciary, the latter may give the royal assent in lieu of the K., signifying to the Metropolitan to do what is his in this behalf. The K. further wills and gives power that if the election be canonically confirmed, the justiciary may take from the elect the fealty due to the K. and restore the temporalities according to custom, having first received letters patent under the seal of the elect and the chapter that this grace shall not tend to the K.'s prejudice or disherison, nor hereafter be converted into a precedent. Aug. 22. 433. Ireland. Agreement made between Iter de Engolisma [Angoulême], parson of the church of Swords, in the diocese of Dublin of the one part, and Richard de Cardiff of the other part, before the locum tenens of the Treasurer and the Barons of the Exchequer at Westminster. To wit, whereas the K. had by writ commanded John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, to attach the said Richard to be at Westminster before the Treasurer and Barons in one month of Easter, to render his account of all rents and chattels in Ireland received by Richard when he was Iter's bailiff, and to do and receive the orders of the Exchequer thereupon. The justiciary sent Richard before the treasurer and barons by Hugh le Marshall, his valet, and Richard then acknowledged that he owed Iter 1,000 marks received out of rents and chattels, and that he had purchased for his own use with Iter's money the manor of Landonay near Swords, and granted that within 8 days after his arrival in Ireland he should enfeoff Iter of that manor. Richard also granted to Iter his corn, the debts owed to him, his stock in the manor, all charters, muniments, and instruments, and agreed to deliver seisin to Iter or his proctor within 8 days. He further undertook that having purchased with Iter's money the manor of Barbedor alias Barbeston [Barberstown, co. Dublin], near Dunbro, to enfeoff Iter therewith. Thomas de Snyterby, while Richard was in custody, had fraudulently obtained possession of this manor, but Richard undertook to recover it, and when he had done so to enfeoff Iter therewith as of the other manor. All this Richard swore to do, and granted that his undertaking should be inrolled in the Exchequer, Westminster, and on the rolls of the Chancery and Exchequer of Dublin, and be confirmed as the court of Exchequer, Dublin, should order. He also agreed to remain in custody of Hugh le Marshal until he should have fulfilled all and singular the premises. Iter agreed that on completion of the agreement he should acquit Richard in regard to the 1,000 marks and the account.

Afterwards Richard de Cardiff appeared and acknowledged a charter, herein set forth in full, whereby he gave and granted to Sir Iter of Angoulême, canon of St. Patrick's, Dublin, out of regard for his person, the manor called Landonay, near Swords, which Richard had of the gift and demise of Thomas de Landonay, to hold in fee with all appurtenances, villeins, betagii, &c. Given at Westminster before the locum tenens of the Treasurer and the Barons of the Exchequer. Monday next after the feast of St. Bartholomew,

a. r. 25 [Aug. 26, 1297]. Witnesses, Sir Philip de Wylugby, chancellor of the K.'s Exchequer, Sirs John de Cobeham, William de Carleton, John de Insulâ, Peter de Leicester, Barons of the same Exchequer, Sir Hugh de Nottingham, Sir Roger Brabazoun, Sir John de Kirkeby, and Sir Hugh de Hengham. Mandate thereupon to the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, that having inspected the process, they cause Iter or his attorney to have seisin of the manor aforesaid, and to cause the agreements to be maintained. Afterwards in Trinity term, a. r. 26 [1298], the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, returned that Richard de Cardiff, who is detained in the castle of Dublin by John Wogan, the chief justiciary, for not observing the agreements, came before the justiciary and the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, on May 6, and being required to put Iter in seisin of the manor of Landonay according to the tenor of the charter and to fulfil the agreements, replied that he would not do it; he is therefore still detained in the castle. And as it seemed to Iter's attorney that it would not be safe to take seisin of the manor without livery from Richard nothing was done, but the treasurer and barons and the said John Wogan, the justiciary, were directed to send Richard under safe conduct by the quinzaine of Michaelmas before the treasurer and barons at York to stand his trial in the premises, and to further do what the court shall adjudge. Sept. 7. 434. The K. to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland. Had received and inspected the record and process sent to him regarding restoration of temporalities to Brother Malachy, elect of Elphin, and the reasons of the delay in restoring them having been considered before Edward the K.'s son and lieutenant in England, and the K.'s council, those reasons were thought insufficient. The Archbishop of Tuam having confirmed the election of Brother Malachy to which the K. had previously given the royal assent, the K. has taken fealty from the elect, and according to custom restored the temporalities. 1297. Michaelmas. 444. Ireland. A day in five weeks of Easter is given to Emelina who was the wife of Maurice Fitz Maurice, and Thomas Fitz Maurice, of a plea of land. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 153, Rot. 34.]

Michaelmas. 445. Ireland. Pledges of Brother of Thomas Mellifont, to prosecute against Walter de Bodinham, Robert de Gloucester of the county of London, Godfrey de Chichester, of the county of Devon. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 153, Rot. 54.]

Michaelmas. 446. Walter de Bodenham was arraigned for that whereas the Abbot of Mellifont in Ireland had caused the record and process of a plaint had before Walter de la Haye, locum tenens of the chief justiciary of Ireland, to come for error before the K. here, Walter de Bodenham went to the abbot in Ireland and said that he should cause the record to be annulled because the abbot had through him attempted to bribe Gilbert de Roubury, a judge here. Walter says that the abbot had agreed to give him a sum of money to prosecute his affairs in this court, and paid him part thereof and promised to pay the residue. As the abbot did not keep his terms Walter sued him for the residue in the Exchequer. Walter being asked for the agreement said it was in Ireland. The Treasurer and Barons were directed to search the rolls and certify in the quinzaine of Easter. As Walter has no mainpernors for his appearance on that day he grants that all his lands in Ireland may be forfeited if he makes default. On the above day and also on the morrow of the Ascension [May 16], Walter de Bodenham being solemnly called came not, wherefore to judgment. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 153, Rot. 58 dors.]

Oct. 5. 447. The K. to Edward his son and lieutenant in England, and to his council. Whereas on complaint of Geoffrey de Geneville, the K.'s marshal, that the justiciary of Ireland had entered his liberty, the K. had adjourned the parties before John de Langeton, the Chancellor, and Roger le Brabanzon, the K.'s justice, on the morrow of All Souls, and the marshal who is with the K. on the K.'s service cannot appear on that day, the K. commands the Chancellor to render to Geoffrey as much justice, and favour as if the K. and he were present. Ghent. [Tower Privy Seals, 25 Edw. I., No. 2.]

to Walter de la Haye, escheator of Ireland, that (having made an extent of all the lands and tenements, knights fees, and advowsons of churches which belonged to William in Ireland, and which William surrendered to the K. before his death) he cause to be assigned to Isabella her dower according to that extent and according to law and custom of the realm. When he shall have made the assignment he shall certify it under his seal to the K. in order that the K. may cause it to be inrolled on the rolls of chancery according to custom. Westminster. [Close, 25 Edw. I., m. 4.]

Oct. 15. 449. Whereas Geoffrey de Camville has supplied the K. with a band of armed men, the K. commands the Chancellor to cause him to have letters of protection for his lands and tenements in Ireland, to endure until Christmas next ensuing and thenceforth for 1 year; and to cause him to have letter patent that this armed subsidy rendered by Geoffrey to promote the K.'s affairs in parts beyond the sea, shall not tend to his prejudice nor be drawn into a precedent. Ghent. [Tower Privy Seals, 25 Edw. I., No. 2.]

Oct. 20. 450. The K. to the Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin. On the part of S[tephen] Archbishop of Cashel, it had been represented that having found on a late visitation of his province that Nicholas de Clere, parson of the church of Youghal, had unjustly despoiled of a third part of the chapel of Inchacoin [Inchequin] Thomas Bole, vicar of the former church, and predecessor of Robert de Halywell, the archbishop of ordinary right and authority restored the third to Robert. The barons thereupon on pretext of the K.'s mandate to maintain Nicholas in possession of his benefices (though he was then at the Exchequer, Westminster, to answer his account of the time when he was Treasurer of Dublin) caused the archbishop to be attached to answer to the K. and to Nicholas why he had ejected the latter from the third part. The archbishop is thereby aggrieved and Robert may be prejudiced. As it is not the K.'s intention that under colour of the above mandate justice should suffer, the K. commands the barons not to permit the archbishop to be troubled before them in regard to his ordinary jurisdiction. [Memoranda, Q.R., 25 Edw. I., Rot. 92 dors.]

Oct. 20. 451. The K. commands John de Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, to cause publication of the truce with France to be made in each port and place where ships touch in Ireland. Witness, Edward the K.'s son. Westminster. [Close, 25 Edw. I., m. 26, Rider 1 dors.]

Oct. 23. 452. The K. to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland. Had inspected the transcript of the agreements [conventiones] with Richard Earl of Ulster, John Fitz Thomas, and others of Ireland, for their coming to Flanders on the K.'s service. As some of the articles appear very hard, it is the K.'s pleasure that the earl, John, and the others remain in Ireland on this occasion. The justiciary shall recede from the agreements in the most courteous manner he can, so that no one may have reason to be displeased. Westminster. [Close, 25 Edw. I., m. 3.]

1297.

Oct. 23. 453. The K. commands the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, to search the rolls thereof, and certify under their seals in what debts Thomas de Multon is bound to the K. at that Exchequer, as well of his own proper debts as those of his ancestors. As Thomas has departed for Scotland on the K.'s service the K. gives to him of special grace respite of those debts until the quinzaine of Easter next ensuing. Mandate accordingly, unless the K. in the meanwhile should otherwise order. Westminster. [Close, 25 Edw. I., m. 3.]

Jan. 22. 481. The K.'s writ to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, or his locum tenens, recited. Whereas Isabella who was the wife of 1297.

William de Vescy, deceased, who held of the K. in capite had rendered her oath before the K. that she should not marry without the K.'s licence, the K. commands the justiciary to cause an extent to be made of William's lands, &c. in Ireland (which William before his death surrendered into the K.'s hand), and to cause Isabella to have her dower thereout according to that extent, and according to law and custom of Ireland. When the assignment shall have been made the justiciary shall send it under his seal to the K., in order that the K. may cause it to be inrolled on the rolls of Chancery, as is the custom. Witness, Edward the K.'s son. Westminster.

A writ of Venire thereupon issued to the sheriff of Kildare to summon a jury of 12 men to take an extent, and thereupon to make assignment of dower.

knight's fee at Bricard, which renders for scutage when, &c., 13*s.* 4*d.*; the demesne of a tenement called Balidowyl, which renders for scutage when &c., 40*s.* Out of all these fees the said William rendered to the K. at each scutage 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, and the residue of the service aforesaid remained to William for his own proper use. He also had the homage and service of Walran de Wellesleye, who held of William his tenements at Kynheygh by the service of 7*l.* 10*s.* a year. The said Walran held of William his tenements at Pollardstown by the service of 1 mark a year, and his tenements at Galmorestoun by the service of 100*s.* a year; Robert Perceval held of him his tenements at Balymany by the service of 1*d.* a year; Thomas de Bermyngham held of him his tenements at Balyloghan by the service of 1 mark; the Prior of the Hospital of St. John in Ireland held of him his manor of Tholy [Tully] by the service of 60*s.* a year; Lawrence de Norrauh held of him his tenements of Dromon by the service of one mark a year; the sergeancy of Offolan in the liberty aforesaid was wont to render to him 100*s.*, and still renders as much to the K.; the sergeancy of John, Helewys, sergeant of Omorthi and Leys, renders of fee 4*s.* a year; the sergeancy of Offaly 2*s.* a year; the sergeancy of Wykingele and Arclou 2*s.* a year. The purparty of William de Vescy of pleas and perquisites of assizes of the county and Exchequer of Kildare, assigned to the same as his purparty of the inheritance of Alienor, sister, and one of the heirs of Walter le Marshall, was extended at 33*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*, and is still worth as much.

Of these tenements, advowsons of churches, knights' fees, rents, &c. there were assigned in dower to the said Isabella, out of William's possessions in Ireland, the following, namely—out of the vill of Kildare, 7 marks, 4*s.* 5½*d.* of rent; a rent of 60*s.* a year from the Prior of the Hospital of St. John; a service of 33*s.* 4*d.* from the sergeancy of Offolan; 2 marks a year from the mill aforesaid; 1 mark a year from John de Bermingham; 1 mark of rent from Lawrence de Norrauh; 1 mark of rent a year from Walran de Wellesleye, of his tenements in Pollardstown; a service of 2*s.* a year out of the sergeancy of Offaly; 11*l.* 4*s.* 2*d.* to be yearly received at Kildare by the hands of the sheriff thereof at the feast of St. Michael, for her dower out of the pleas and perquisites aforesaid. There are likewise assigned to her the four score acres of land aforesaid in Carbury and the 51 acres in Alewyn; in the barony of Naas the service of one knight's fee, namely, of Geoffrey le Bret, &c.; the service of one knight's fee, namely, of Ralph Pypard, of his manor of the Salmon Leap; one third part of one knight's fee in le Brigard'; the advowson of the church of Kylbrecan aforesaid; and William's turn of presenting to the church del Combre, saving to the K. his turn as of two parts [of the church].

And be it known that after the departure of William de Vescy from Ireland those who represented him at Kildare detained from the Bishop of Kildare ten marks of rent issuing from the tenements of the men of the burgh of Kildare, beyond the extent written below, for two years before William surrendered that liberty to the K. The bishop and his predecessors were always wont to receive this rent in the time of William and his ancestors. They also kept for two years from Matilda de Kyme, one of William's parceners, 18*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* a year accruing from the pleas and perquisites of assizes aforesaid, which sum is not contained in the extent underwritten. They further detained for the same time from Agatha de Mortimer, another of William's parceners, 25*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, not contained in the extent aforesaid. No part of these three items is assigned in dower to Isabella, but as William was seised thereof at the time of his surrender, the three items remain in the K.'s hand until the K. shall signify his pleasure. Feb. 24. 499. The K. to Walter de la Haye, escheator of Ireland. Although the K. had lately commanded the escheator to cause John de Carreu (who had married Alienor, the younger daughter and one of the heirs of William de Mohun, deceased) to have seisin of their purparty of William's lands in the escheator's bailiwick, yet as by partition made in Chancery between them and John de Meriet and Maria his wife (another daughter and one of the heirs of said William de Mohun) all lands, knights' fees, and advowsons of the said William, in Ireland, were assigned to the said John de Meriet and Maria his wife, in lieu of other lands in England and Wales assigned to the said John de Carreu and Alienor. Therefore the K. commands the Escheator to retake into the K.'s hand all William's lands, knights' fees, and advowsons [in Ireland] which he had assigned to John de Carreu and Alienor, and to deliver them to the said John de Meriet and Maria. Mem. That after partition made by Malcolm de Harley, escheator on this side of the Trent, between the heirs and parceners aforesaid, of all the lands, &c. of said William de Mohun at his death, as well in England and Wales as in Ireland, by consent of John de Carreu and John de Meriet only (as appears on the dorse of the Close Rolls of a. r. 25) all the lands, &c. of the deceased in the Escheator's bailiwick were taken into the K.'s hand because the partition had been made in the absence and without the consent of the said Alienor and Maria, the heirs, because they were not summoned to be present at the partition, and also because John de Carreu aforesaid was under age. The Escheator was commanded to summon the heirs and parceners to be present in Chancery, in the octaves of the Purification [Feb. 9] last past, to receive the orders of the court. They came by themselves and their attorneys and agreed to the purparties aforesaid and gave their assent to the partition. They further prayed that the purparties might be delivered to them according to the partition. [Close, 26 Edw. I., m. 15 and 14.]

1297–8. is about to depart for the Court of Rome on the K.'s service by the K.'s order) the K. commands that nothing be taken from the archbishop's corn against his will, on pretext of the K.'s order to transmit corn and victuals into Wales and Scotland, but that the archbishop be permitted to enjoy his corn and other chattels, and to make his profit thereout as he may deem expedient. Fulham. [Close, 26 Edw. I., m. 13 dors.]

1268. April 7. 510. The Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, to the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Westminster, giving a return to the K.'s writ directed to the former, to certify the debts due to the K., &c. by John de Saunford, late Archbishop of Dublin. Whereas Nicholas de Clere (formerly custodian of the Archbishopric of Dublin during vacancy by the death of Brother John de Derlington), had delivered some goods to John de Saunford, wherewith the executors of the latter will not, and ought not, to charge themselves without the presence of Nicholas, the more especially as no account of the period of vacancy has yet been rendered, and John de Saunford had rendered his account as justiciary of Ireland before the Treasurer and Barons of Westminster, whereof the Treasurer and Barons of Dublin have no transcript, therefore the latter cannot make a certain declaration of the debts aforesaid. They therefore pray that Nicholas and a transcript of the account may be sent to them. Given under the seal of the Exchequer of Dublin. [Memoranda, Q.R., 26 Edw. I., Rot. 35 dors.]

April 10. 512. The K. to the Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin. For the good service rendered by Hugh Purcel in Flanders and elsewhere, the K. grants that of 300 marks which he owes to the K. at the Exchequer aforesaid (as well of arrears of his account of the time when he was sheriff of Tipperary as of a fine made with the K. for transgressions committed by himself and his men, and which 300 marks are exacted from him by summons) he yearly pay to the K. at that Exchequer 20 marks, to wit, 10 marks at the Exchequer of St. Michael, and 10 marks at the exchequer of Easter, and so on from year to year until the 300 marks be discharged. Mandate accordingly. Westminster. [Close, 26 Edw. I., m. 12.]

April 10. 513. Pitying the poverty of the Abbot and Convent of Mellifont, the K. commands the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, that having regard to the state of that house, they so order regarding payment to be made of 300*l.* (in which the Abbot is bound to the K. at the Exchequer of a fine made for harbouring thieves, and which are exacted by summons of the Exchequer) that the money may be answered for and divine service maintained. Westminster. [Close, 26 Edw. I., m. 12.]

April 11. 514. The K. to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland. John Fitz Thomas had represented that during the truce made between him and Richard de Burgh, Earl of Ulster, before the justiciary in the K.'s court of Ireland, the said earl and his men inflicted enormous transgressions and divers grievances on John against the form of the truce and the K.'s peace. The K. therefore commands the justiciary to summon the parties before him, and having heard the reasons of either, to do full justice to John according to the form of the truce, and law and custom of those parts. Westminster. By the K. himself and the council. [Close, 26 Edw. I., m. 11.]

April 14. 515. Henry de Waleton, and John Bowet of Dublin, to Hugh of Leominster, Treasurer of Wales, announcing on the part of William de Estdene, Treasurer of Ireland, and of the Chamberlains of the Exchequer, Dublin, that they had sent in the ship Robert de Wyleby the following supplies for the K.'s castles in Wales, namely, 50 quarters of wheat, 10 quarters of malt of wheat, and 60 quarters of malt of oats. Sealed with the seal of the Provostship of Dublin. Morrow of the clause of Easter, a. r. 26.

April 15. 516. The K. to John Wogan, his justiciary, Master Thomas Cantok, Chancellor of Ireland, William de Estdene, Treasurer, and the Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin. Being about to depart with horses and arms for Scotland in aid of the K.'s lieges in those parts, to repress the malice and rebellion of his Scotch enemies who had invaded the K.'s realm while he was absent in Scotland, the K. commands the above-named persons to provide him in Ireland as quickly as possible with wheat, oats, wines, meat, fish, and all other kinds of victuals, and to send so much as they can to the K. to Carlisle by the feast of the Nativity of St. John the Baptist [June 24] next ensuing, and the residue by the feast of St. Peter ad vincula [Aug. 1]. The K. having this matter much at heart sends Adam de Brom to them to see that the premises be speedily carried into effect. Fulham. [Pat., 26 *Edw. April 17. 518. The K. to the Treasurer and Chamberlains of the Exchequer, Dublin. John Fitz Thomas had shown that although on the testimony of John, then Archbishop of Dublin, and of Geoffrey de Geynville the K. had ordered by writ under the Irish seal that 515*l.*, which John had spent by order of Stephen Archbishop of Tuam and justiciary of Ireland in fighting the K.'s enemies and rebels in Connaught in the time of war there, the Treasurer and Barons had deferred to pay the money to John. The K. therefore commands the Treasurer and Barons to certify the cause of this delay. Fulham. [Close, 26 Edw. I., m. 11.]

April 17. 519. The K. to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland. John Fitz Thomas had supplicated the K. that whereas certain men of Ireland had been by judgment of the K.'s court outlawed for the death of Richard Harold, they should not be admitted to the K.'s peace unless on giving satisfaction to those affected by their deeds; and whereas the K. wishes to grant John's prayers for the good service which he had rendered to the K. in Flanders, the K. commands the justiciary not to admit those outlawed to the K.'s peace unless they will stand their trial according to law and custom for that death and the other transgressions they have perpetrated in Ireland against the peace. Fulham. [Close, 26 Edw. I., m. 11.]

April 26. 520. The K. to the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin. Whereas William le Ware, burgess of Cork, had heretofore granted to the K. 15 hogsheads of wine, to deliver which he had found pledges, that he might with the K.'s licence cut through the wall of the city of Cork in order to convey to the water through such opening a ship which he had lately caused to be constructed within the circuit of the said wall, provided that he repair the wall at his own expense. William had delivered six of the fifteen hogsheads, and properly repaired the wall as he says. The K., wishing to render a special grace to William for the losses he had suffered in the K.'s service, pardons to him the nine hogsheads of wine in arrear, provided he repair the wall as aforesaid. Mandate that William and his pledges be quit of the nine hogsheads of wine. St. Albans. [Close, 26 Edw. I., m. 10.]

[Q.R., Irish Exchequer, $\frac{5}{23}\frac{3}{2}$, m. 50.]

May 16. 522. Hoping to be at Carlisle on the feast of St. John the Baptist next ensuing for his expedition to Scotland, the K. commands the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, to provide for the K. and his army the largest quantity they can of wheat oats, malt, wine, and other victuals, and to send them to Carlisle, by sea. If money is not forthcoming for this provision, then they shall raise a loan, notifying to the keeper of the wardrobe the amount of the loan and with whom it has been contracted. Wherefore they present him to the K., praying the royal assent and letters to the Archbishop of Cashel. Given at Killaloe on the morrow of the Epiphany. [Royal Letters, 3,633.]

Hilary. 583. Mem. Whereas Nicholas de Clare, formerly Treasurer of Ireland, for certain transgressions in his account rendered at the Exchequer, a. r. 20, was committed to prison, in which he remained until Thursday next before the feast of St. Matthew the Apostle, a. r. 26 [Sept. 18, 1298], and then coming before the Treasurer and Barons [of England] made a fine for the transgressions and found mainpernors, because he could not give security here for the fine and other debts due to the K.; and whereas he then went to Ireland to the Exchequer of Dublin, and before the Treasurer and Barons there found security for the fine and debts, and was liberated from prison. The Treasurer and Barons of Dublin have now notified to the Treasurer and Barons here that Nicholas had presented himself to them in the Exchequer of Dublin in the beginning of the autumn last past, but delivered no writ. As he had a writ to be delivered to them that they had admitted security from him, and as they had returned the security [to England] nothing was done regarding Nicholas, and so he remained in Ireland without finding security. The Treasurer and Barons here agreed that a transcript of the process had in Hilary, a. r. 26 [1297–8], regarding the liberation of Nicholas should be sent to the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, under seal of the Exchequer here, and the latter were directed that if Nicholas had not fulfilled the form of the process they should cause him to be arrested, and that they should certify to the Exchequer here by the morrow of the clause of Easter what they should do hereupon. Afterwards, in one month of Easter [May 14, 1299], the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, certified under the seal of their Exchequer what they had done in the premises. [Memoranda, L.T.R., 26–27 Edw. I., Rot. 16 (14).]

Hilary. 584. The K. to the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin. The K. had on July 28, a. r. 25 [1297], during vacancy of the see of Dublin, granted to Brother W[illiam] de Hothoum, elect thereof, the crop of wheat on 695 acres of land of the see for 121*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*, payable to the K., being 3*s.* 6*d.* an acre; if there were more acres sown with wheat during vacancy the K. granted them at a similar rate, and had notified the tenor of the grant to Master Richard de Abyndone, then custodian of the see, and had commanded him to deliver the crop to the elect. Brother W[illiam], the late archbishop, had died without paying the debt, and the K. had learnt from the executors that the custodian had sold a portion of the crop of the 695 acres, and had received the money accruing therefrom. The K. therefore commands the Treasurer and Barons to inspect the custodian's account of the issues of the archbishopric during vacancy with the rolls and memoranda of the Exchequer, Dublin, to receive from the executors for the K.'s use the archbishop's corn at his death in subvention of the provision made in Ireland for supplies to Scotland, and to cause to be paid to the executors so much money as is in excess of the debts.

Provided that if the K. ought not to be satisfied out of the crops, the custodian shall be charged therewith unless he has already been charged in his account. They shall certify to the Barons of the Exchequer, under the seal of the Dublin Exchequer and on the morrow of the clause of Easter [April 27, 1299], what they shall do hereupon. [Memoranda, Q.R., 27 Edw. I., Rot. 68 dors.]

Hilary. 585. Mandate to the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, to cause to be levied out of the lands and tenements, goods and chattels of John de Saunford in Ireland at his death, 200*l.* which he owed to the K. of moneys received from Robert Burnel. [Memoranda, Q.R., 27 Edw. I., Rot. 70.]

Harghe. [Tower Privy Seals, 27 Edw. I., No. 1.]

1299. April 2. 604. The K.'s writ to Walter de la Haye, escheator of Ireland, directing him to inquire by oath of good men of his bailiwick whether it would be to the K.'s damage or prejudice to grant to Richard de Afton licence to enfeoff William le Irish of lands and tenements in Kiltek and Kiltek and Castelmetegan [Cashelmeehan], near the castle of Roscommon, in the earldom of Connaught, held of the K. in capite; what is the yearly value of the lands, and what lands remain to Richard in Ireland besides those lands. The inquisition and this writ shall be returned to the K. by the quinzaine of St. John the Baptist. Westminster.

Inquisition taken on Monday next after the feast of St. John the Baptist, a. r. 27 [June 28, 1299], on survey of the land of Kiltek and Kiltek and Casselmedechan [Cashelmeehan], namely, by the underwritten persons of Roscommon, Stephen Durand, John Lathrath, Stephen Lathrath, Philip O'Conor, David Arnold, Walter de Moleng', Robert Gentel, Anglus McGillawder, Thomas Penris de Dunymegan, John Logan, Adam Benet, Henry Alriche, Walter Pach, William Fyrow, John Brit, Simon Fleming, Nell Mac Sery. Of the Irish vill of Roscommon:—John Onnigron, M. Murger McGillabrik, Andrew O'Donelan, Donslewy O'Marten, Eugenius Oclerick, Odo O'Marten, Eago McMaly, Who Say that Sir Richard de Afton may enfeoff William le Yreys of the villatae aforesaid without prejudice and grievance to the K.; that it would be more for than against the K. that William should remain there; that Sir John Fitz Thomas possessed these lands for five years, they ignore by what authority; that although the K. had the land in his hand it would not be worth to him or his ministers more than 40*d.* in any year, and sometimes nothing, and this for herbage. Of Richard's other lands in Ireland they know nothing.

The K.'s writ to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, directing him to inquire if it would be to the K.'s damage or prejudice that he should grant to Richard de Afton licence to enfeoff Peter Sprot of lands and tenements in Arlechin, Clonodierne, and Turakenedy in the Earldom of Connaught held of the K. in capite; what is the value of the lands; whether lands remain to Richard in Ireland besides these lands; of whom they are held, and by what service, &c. Westminster, April 6, a. r. 27 [1299]. By petition returned of the Council.

[Indorsed.] This writ came to me at le Combre in the march of Sleflame in Ossory, in Pentecost week, and because I could not personally attend to the taking of the inquisition in Connaught, the sheriff of Roscommon, in whose bailiwick the tenements are, was directed to inquire according to the form contained in the writ. He hereupon returned the inquisition stitched to this writ.

Inquisition taken on Monday next after the feast of St. John the Baptist, a. r. 27 [June 29, 1299], of survey of the land of Ardlekyn, Clonodyerny, and Tholyogenedy. [Inq., P.M., 27 Edw. I., No. 60.]

April 4. 605. The K.'s writ to Walter de la Haye, escheator of Ireland, directing him to inquire by the oath of good men of his bailiwick whether it would be to the K.'s damage or prejudice to grant to Adam de Seynt Boys [Holywood] licence to assign to Nicholas, Archbishop of Armagh, two carucates of land in Kilclogry; of whom this land is held; by what service, and what is its value; what other lands, &c. remain to Adam and Clarice his wife after this gift, and whether they suffice for the rendering of services, &c. The inquisition shall be sent so that the K. may have it at his next Parliament. The escheator shall summon the Archbishop Adam and Clarice to be there before the K. to receive his orders. Westminster.

Inquisition taken at Dublin on Tuesday next after the feast of St. John ante Portam Latinam, a. r. 27 [May 12, 1299], before Walter de la Haye, escheator of Ireland. Jurors:—Milo Passelewe, William D'Arcy, Walter de Moungomery, Geoffrey Savage, William de la Felde, Robert Chymwell, Robert de Portrauthlyn, Adam Loughlin, Philip Rosele, William Aubrey, John le Wyte, and John Wytacre, Who Say that Adam Seynt Boys and Clarice, his wife, hold of her inheritance from the Archbishop of Armagh two carucates of land in Kilclogry, yearly rendering to the archbishop 12*d.* at each Easter, and doing suit at the archbishop's court from quinzaine to quinzaine; that the two carucates are yearly worth 20*l.*; that Adam and Clarice do not hold of her inheritance beyond the two carucates. The jurors, however, Say that Adam holds at Seynt Boys [Holywood], in the county of Dublin, one half of one knight's fee of the K. in capite, by the service of 20*s.*, when royal service is proclaimed, and doing suit at the county court of Dublin from county to county; the one half of a knight's fee is worth 40*l.* a year; also 12 marcates of annual rent, and one moiety of two carucates of land at le Nobyr, of Walter l'Enfaunt in the same county, by the service of 4*s.* when royal service is proclaimed, and doing suit at Walter's court there; likewise two carucates of land at Swords, of the Archbishop of Dublin, rendering to the archbishop 6 marks a year, and doing suit; the two carucates are worth 5 marks a year, beyond the rent due to the archbishop. And they Say that it is not to the damage or prejudice of the K. that the K. should grant to Adam and Clarice, his wife, licence to give the 2 carucates aforesaid to the archbishop.

They further Say, that Adam's lands and tenements remaining after this gift suffice for the rendering of services.

The Archbishop Adam and Clarice are summoned to be before the K. and the lords [of the Council] to receive the K.'s orders. [Inq., P.M., 27 Edw. I., No. 158. Very faint towards the end.]

April 4. 606. The K. to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, or his locum tenens, and the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin. Whereas W[illiam] Bishop of Emly owes to the K. great and divers debts of the time when he was escheator in England, which debts are exacted from him by summons of the Exchequer, and in payment of which the bishop had assigned to the K. the issues of his bishopric until the debts should be levied thereout, the K. at the request of the bishop and with his consent commands the justiciary to take into the K.'s hand the bishopric aforesaid, with all goods found in its manors, and to keep them to the K.'s use, so that he may answer to the K. when commanded for the issues and goods. Westminster.

Whereas the K. had learnt that Master John Cantok had long had custody of the bishopric of Emly and administration of its issues and had not answered to the K. or the bishop regarding the K.'s debts, the K. commands the justiciary to summon John Cantok to be before the Exchequer in England, on the quinzaine of St. John the Baptist next ensuing, with rolls, tallies, and muniments touching receipt of the issues, prepared to render his account thereof. Westminster. [Fine Roll, 27 Edw. I., m. 19.]

April 4. 607. The K. commands John Wogan, the justiciary of Ireland, or his locum tenens, and the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, to take into the K.'s hand the bishopric of Emly and its temporalities and the goods found therein, W[illiam] Bishop of Emly being indebted to the K. in great and diverse debts of the time when he was escheator of England and was on the K.'s service elsewhere. Westminster. [Originalia, 27 Edw. I., m. 6.]

April 4. 608. The K. commands John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, or his locum tenens, to summon John Cantok, custodian of the see of Emly, to appear before the Exchequer, England, on the quinzaine of St. John the Baptist next ensuing [July 8], with rolls, tallies, and other muniments touching the receipt of issues, prepared to render his account to the K. and the bishop. Westminster [Originalia, 27 Edw. I., m. 6.]

April 5. 609. The K.'s writ under the great seal to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, regarding a petition of Reginald Russel and Margaret his wife. Margaret, after the death of Thomas Fitz Maurice, her first husband, bound herself by oath, according to law and custom of Ireland, that she should not marry again without the K.'s licence. Having married Reginald without such licence, the lands and tenements of the said Reginald and Margaret, with the bedelry of the counties of Waterford, Cork, and Kerry, were taken into the K.'s hand. Reginald and Margaret having prayed that the K. would accept a fine for the transgression, the K. commands the justiciary to cause the lands, tenements, and bedelry to be extended by the oath of good men of Ireland, and to certify the extent on the octaves of St. John the Baptist next ensuing [July 1] under his seal to the Treasurer and Barons of Dublin, and meanwhile to replevy the lands, tenements, and bedelry to Reginald and Margaret. Westminster. By petition of Council.

By virtue of this writ the justiciary on the quinzaine of St. John the Baptist [July 8] certified hither the above writ, with the extents of the lands, tenements, and bedelries of Thomas Fitz Maurice in Ireland taken by the escheator by the justiciary's mandate, the total of which is 595*l.* 3*s.* 2½*d.* The Treasurer and Barons here agreed that the justiciary should be directed to take security from Reginald and Margaret for payment within 2 years at the Exchequer, Dublin, of 500*l.* of fine for the transgression; if they agreed to the fine to remove the K.'s hand from the lands of Thomas Fitz Maurice, provided that they were taken into the K.'s hand on account of the transgression; to cause to be assigned to Margaret the dower to which she is entitled by law and custom of Ireland, and to cause the fine to be enrolled on the rolls of the Exchequer, Dublin.

Tenor of the K.'s writ directing the justiciary to receive security from Reginald and Margaret for payment of the fine in 2 years (namely, 125*l.* at the Exchequer of Michaelmas next ensuing, 125*l.* at the Exchequer of Easter, and the residue in the following year), to remove the K.'s hand from the lands and tenements, to assign dower thereout to Margaret, and to inrol the fine on the rolls of the Exchequer, Dublin. Witness, the Treasurer, July 17. [Memoranda, L.T.R., 26–27 Edw. I., Rot. 12 (36) dors; and Memoranda, Q.R., 27 Edw. I., Rot. 50.]

April 5. 610. The K. notifies to his bailiffs, &c. in Ireland, that for the good service in Scotland of John and Thomas de Keting and Robert Omarky, the K. pardons to them the K.'s suit of peace for the death of Richard de la Halle, whereof they were indicted. Westminster. By the K himself at the instance of Anthony, Bishop of Durham. [Pat., 27 Edw. I., m. 30.]

April 6. 611. Grant to John de Sandale of the treasuryship of the church of St. Patrick's, Dublin, vacant by the death of Master Thomas de Sudyngton, late treasurer of this church, and belonging to the K.'s gift, and being in the K.'s hand by reason of vacancy in the Archbishopric of Dublin. Westminster. By the K. himself and by message of J. de Benstede.

Mandate to the dean and chapter of this church to give to John a stall in the choir and a place in the chapter as is the custom. [Pat., 27 Edw. I., m. 32.]

1299. Easter. 616. The K. had commanded the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, to restore the lands, tenements, and ecclesiastical benefices of Nicholas de Clere, formerly Treasurer of Ireland, if he

1299. should give them security to pay 100*l.* a year to the K. until his fine of 500 marks for his transgression and debts should be discharged. And as to the debts of John de Saunford, formerly Archbishop of Dublin and justiciary of Ireland, the K. had learnt that the 200*l.* due to him by Robert Burnel, late Bishop of Bath and Wells, had been paid to Robert Walran, chancellor of the church of St. Patrick's, Dublin, the archbishop's executor. The K. therefore commanded that the latter should be summoned before the Exchequer and compelled to pay the 200*l.* in part payment of the archbishop's debts to the K. The K. had moreover commanded that as large a provision as possible of wines and all kinds of victuals should be sent as supplies to the K. in Scotland. Witness, the Treasurer. [Memoranda, Q.R., 27 Edw. I., Rot. 62. dors.]

April 21. 617. The K. to the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin. Whereas Stephen Archbishop of Tuam, late justiciary of Ireland, when Treasurer, had by counsel of members of the K.'s Council committed to William de Deveneys the office of Ingrosser of the Exchequer, at the ancient fee of 5*d.* a day when the Exchequer is open, and had subsequently on account of his service granted to William 7*l.* a year for his support, and whereas the said William had the K.'s writs for allowance of the 7*l.* in the rent of lands which he holds of the K., the K. commands the Treasurer and Barons to allow the 7*l.* to William in that rent, while he holds the said office. Westminster. [Close, 27 Edw. I., m. 14.]

April 22. 618. The K. commands the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, to give seisin to William le Deveneys of 1½ carucate of land, 3*s.* 4*d.* [sic ? 13*s.* 4*d.*] of rent, and a fishery at Thorncastle, Ireland, rendering at the Exchequer of Dublin 108*s.* 4*d.* a year; to hold in fee, subject to the service of one-tenth part of one knight's fee, as in the K.'s charter of grant thereupon is more fully contained. Westminster. [Close, 27 Edw. I., m. 13.]

April 22. 619. The K. notifies to S[tephen] Archbishop of Cashel that he has given the royal assent to the election lately made in the cathedral church of Killaloe of Master David, dean of that church, as bishop thereof. The K. notifies this to the archbishop in order that he may do what is his in this matter. Westminster. By the K. himself. [Pat., 27 Edw. I., m. 28.]

April 22. 620. The K. to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, or his locum tenens. Whereas the K. had given the royal assent to the election lately made in the cathedral church of Killaloe of Master David, dean of that church, as bishop thereof, and had commanded S[tephen] Archbishop of Cashel to do what is his in this matter, the K. now wishing to spare labour and expense to the elect, commands the justiciary that if the election be canonically confirmed by the archbishop, and he shall receive letters of the archbishop to prove this, he may take in lieu of the K. the fealty due to the latter and restore the temporalities, having first received letters patent under the seal of the elect and that of the chapter that this grace shall not tend to the prejudice or disherison of the K. or his heirs, nor hereafter be drawn into a precedent. Westminster. By the K. himself. [Pat., 27 Edw. I., m. 28.]

April 22. 621. Letters of presentation for William de Sumery to the church of Rathcon, vacant by the resignation of John of Ireland, and belonging to the K.'s gift. The letters are directed to S[tephen] Archbishop of Cashel. Westminster. [Pat., 27 Edw. I., m. 28.]

April 24. 622. The church of Kilfenora [Fynnaborensis] being vacant by the death of Charles, late bishop thereof, the dean and chapter thereof had supplicated the K. to give them licence to elect. The K. grants licence accordingly, directing William de Hamelton, locum tenens of the Chancellor, to give them letters under the great seal. The K. further directs the same to give power to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, or his locum tenens, to admit the person to be elected if fit, to receive fealty from him in the K.'s name, and to restore the temporalities. Stockwell. [Tower Privy Seals, 27 Edw. I., No. 1.]

April 24. 623. The K. to the Dean and Chapter of Kilfenora [Finnaborenses]. John de Grade, their brother canon, coming to the K. with letters patent of the chapter had prayed licence to elect in the room of Charles, late bishop of that place, deceased. The K. grants licence accordingly, commanding them to elect a bishop devout, fit to rule their church, useful and faithful to the K. and to Ireland. Westminster. By writ of privy seal. [Pat., 27 Edw. I., m. 29.]

April 24. 624. The K. to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, or his locum tenens, respecting election to the see of Kilfenora as above. The K. moreover wishing to spare labour and expense to the dean and chapter grants of special grace and gives power that on election made the justiciary may give the royal assent when the elect shall have been presented to him (if the latter is within the K.'s allegiance), signifying to the diocesan to do what is his in this behalf. The K. further wills and gives power that when it is proved by letters of the metropolitan that he has canonically confirmed the election, the justiciary may receive from the elect the fealty due in this case and restore the temporalities according to custom. He shall first, however, receive from the elect letters patent under his seal and that of the chapter that this grace shall not tend to the K.'s prejudice or disherison, nor hereafter be converted into a precedent. Westminster. By writ of privy seal. [Pat., 27 Edw. I., m. 29.]

May 8. 625. John de Bentley, the K.'s valet, having faithfully served the K. as well in Ireland as elsewhere, the K. commands John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, to commit to him in the K.'s name some competent office or bailiwick. Stepney. [Close, 27 Edw. I., m. 11.]

May 15. 626. The K. notifies that he has given and assigned for himself and his heirs to the citizens of Bayonne (to whom the K. is bound in several debts by letters patent under the seal of Henry de Lacy, Earl of Lincoln, formerly the K.'s lieutenant in the said duchy)

the issues of all the K.'s custom on wools, hides, and skins of England, Ireland, and Scotland, after that land shall be in good peace, until the said citizens shall have received full payment of the debts. Stepney. [Pat., 27 Edw. I., m. 26. Norman French.]

May 18. 627. The K. to the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin. Whereas the K. had granted to the citizens of Bayonne the money arising from the custom of wools, woolfels, and hides in Ireland (exported to foreign parts), to be collected by some of themselves, from the feast of Pentecost next ensuing, until they should have received the amount of a debt in which the K. is bound to them, the K. commands the Treasurer and Barons to cause by Exchequer writs Drugars Dyhauce, Stephen Dubrok, and Bernard Montagu, citizens of Bayonne, and such of their fellow citizens as they shall name, to be assigned one in each port to receive the custom until further orders. Provided that the citizens shall yearly account at the Exchequer before the Treasurer and Barons regarding the receipt of the custom, and the latter on view of the account shall certify thereupon to the K. Greenwich. [Close, 27 Edw. I., m. 12.]

May 22. 628. Receipt by Hugh de Burgh (clerk, assigned to collect provisions in Ireland for the K.'s use in the Scotch war) for 17*l.*, being his wages from Dec. 20, 1298, until Pentecost day next ensuing, namely, 170 days at 2*s.* a day. Dublin. [Q.R., Irish Exchequer, $\frac{5\,3\,2}{3\,0}$, m. 7.]

June 6. 629. Grant to Ralph de Mantone, clerk, of the prebend which Walter de Wymburne lately had in the church of St. Patrick's, Dublin, which is vacant by his resignation and belongs to the K.'s gift by reason of vacancy in the archbishopric of Dublin. 1299. June 10. 633. The K. to John Wogan, justiciary, and Walter de la Haye, escheator of Ireland. Whereas for the fealty which R[ichard], newly consecrated Archbishop of Dublin, had rendered for his temporalities the K. had restored those temporalities, and at his prayer had granted to him that he might have the corn growing in his manors; the K. therefore commands the justiciary to cause the corn to be valued by the oath of lawful, good, and impartial men. When the valuation shall have been made they shall take security from the archbishop to render to the K. at the K.'s pleasure the value of the corn, and they shall then cause it to be delivered to him. 1299. June 18. 638. The K.'s writ to Walter de la Haye, escheator of Ireland commanding him to take into the K.'s hand all the lands, &c. whereof Richard Fitz John, deceased, was seised in his demesne as of fee in Ireland at his death, and to safely keep them until further orders; and by the oath of good men of his bailiwick to inquire as to the quantity of land held by said Richard, its yearly value, and who is his heir, &c.

Extent of lands which belonged to Richard Fitz John in Thomond, taken at Limerick on Wednesday next before the feast of the Assumption, a. r. 27 [Aug. 12, 1299]. Jurors:—John Brittiauth, William Fitz Richard de Crouth, Henry de la Haye, Alan Paneter, Peter Rathyn, Simon Brynsopp', Walter Cook, Walter le Fleming, Henry Fitz Maurice, John Russell de Carryg, Nicholas Gerveys, John Russell de Lysnemock, Who Say that the said Richard Fitz John at his death held in capite of the K. one cantred in Thomond, which is called the cantred of the Isles [Barony of Islands, county Clare] without service and rent. They nevertheless Say that Thomas de Clare in his lifetime claimed suit from this land to the county court of Bunratty [comitatus de Bonrath'], and caused the said Richard to be summoned from county court to county court, nor was he ever seised of this suit. They Say that in the same cantred there are forty villatæ of land in demesne, as well of arable land as of meadow, pasture, and wood, with a fishery, whereof they extend each villata, at its true yearly value, at two marks, if the land is at peace. Richard held no other lands in Ireland at his death besides this cantred, but it is now worth twenty marks. And they Say that Amelina, who was the wife of Walter de Burgh, of whom is born Richard de Burgh; Joan, who was the wife of Theobald le Buttiler, and the Countess of Warwick, sisters of the said Richard, with Robert de Clifford and Idonea de Leyburn, are [Richard's] next [heirs]. [Inq., P.M., 27 Edw I., No. 14.]

June 18. 639. Although the K. had learnt by inquisition taken by John, formerly Archbishop of Dublin and justiciary of Ireland, that it would be to the K.'s damage and prejudice if the K. granted to Robert de Wyleby, citizen of Dublin, licence to assign in fee to the Abbot and Convent of Furness forty acres of land in Colp, because no summonses of inquisitions or juries could be afterwards made of religious tenants of this kind, and a similar damage and prejudice

1299. would fall on the lords of the fee of that moiety, and because that land might possibly become an escheat of the K. or of the other lords—Nevertheless for a fine of twenty marks which the abbot made with the K. before the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer the K. grants licence to Robert to assign in fee to the Abbot and Convent the forty acres of land aforesaid, and to the Abbot and Convent licence to hold the land. The K. is unwilling that Robert or his heirs or the Abbot and Convent or their successors should be summoned or harassed by reason of the recent statute of mortmain. Saving, however, to the chief lords of the fee the customary services due thereout. Charing. By fine before the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer. [Pat., 27 Edw. I., m. 22.]

June 20. 640. The K. commands the Treasurer of the Exchequer, Dublin, to provide for the K.'s use 600 quarters of good and picked wheat for supplies of the castles of Creukyn, Hardel, Beaumaris, and Carnarvon, and cause them to be delivered to Hugh of Leominster, chamberlain of Wales.

The K. notifies to Hugh of Leominster that he has so directed. [Memoranda, Q.R., 27 Edw. I., Rot. 62 dors.]

June 25. 641. The K. to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, or his locum tenens. Whereas Joan, who was the wife of Robert de Ufford, deceased, had taken her oath before the K. that she should not marry without licence the K. commands the justiciary that having taken an extent of all Robert's lands and tenements in Ireland, he cause dower to be assigned to Joan according to law and custom of those parts. The assignment when made shall be certified to the K. in order that the K. may cause it to be inrolled on the rolls of Chancery. Lewes. [Close, 27 Edw. I., m. 11.]

June 26. 642. Whereas Geoffrey de Geneville is engaged on the K.'s affairs in parts beyond the sea, the K. commands John de Langeton, the chancellor, to cause letters of protection under the Great Seal to be made for him and Sir Thomas de St. Omer, knight, remaining in his company, as well for Geoffrey's lands and chattels in Ireland, as for Sir Thomas's lands and chattels in England; to endure until the feast of All Saints next ensuing. Mandate also for respite of their debts. Brembre. [Tower Privy Seals, 27 Edw. I., No. 2.]

June 26. 643. Extent of the lands and tenements of John de Moun in the county of Kildare on the confines of said county and of the county of Dublin made before John Wogan on Friday next after the Nativity of St. John the Baptist, a. r. 27. Jurors:—Sir John de Punchardon, Sir Robert Perceval (was not sworn, erased), Sir John Calf, knights, Henry Calf, Walran Wodelok, Gilbert Paumer, John de Coventry, Henry de Almain, Simon Clement, Philip de Mon, John Bronneneseng, William Wolf, John Senere, Adam Provost, William Wyft, Thomas Nordyn, Lawrence Syerym, John de Hyda, John de Hale, John Baldewyn, Philip Synnagh, William W[er]enneys, de Combre, Who Say, that John's messuage of Grange Moun, with the curtilage, is yearly worth in all issues, 12*d.*; there are there in demesne 199 acres of land, each of which is worth 10*d.*

a year in time of peace; 22 acres of meadow, whereof 11 acres are worth 11*s.* a year, and each of the other acres is worth 4*d.* a year; 13 acres of pasture near the manor, whereof each acre is worth 3*d.* a year; the turbary of the manor is worth 6*s.* 8*d.* a year; a pasture within the turbary 9*s.* a year. There are there in demesne near Molaghmast 180 acres, which were wont in time of peace yearly to render 7*l.* 10*s.*, to wit, 10*d.* for each acre, but now on account of the murrain [morina] among the people and the disturbance of peace each acre is not worth more than 4*d.* a year, but is worth so much. There are at the Irish vill 147 acres, which were wont to render 7*l.* 7*s.* a year; but now they are not worth more than 6*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.*, namely, 10*d.* an acre. There are also 22 acres of meadow wont each to render 12*d.*, but now 10*d.* a year. Total, 19*l.* 17*s.* 3*d.*, true value.

John has at Moun 2 water-mills, worth 8*l.* a year, wherefrom John . . . ech receives 40*s.* a year. John de Moun yearly receives for his purparty of the mill de Arcostol 20*s.*

The burgesses of Moun yearly render to John de Moun for their burgages 8*l.* 0*s.* 4*d.* John has a cottage there rendering 12*d.* a year . . . . . .

June 27. 644. Fiat to John de Langeton, the chancellor, for Geoffrey de Caunville, remaining by licence in England, for letters' patent of protection for his lands in Ireland, to endure until Michaelmas next ensuing and thenceforth for one year, Arundel. [Tower Privy Seals, 27 Edw. I., No. 1.]

July 17. 645. The K. to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland. Whereas the K. had at the instance of Reginald, Bishop of Vicenza, papal nuncio, pardoned of special grace to Hugh Reyner of the company of merchants of Sienna his transgression in causing men of Ireland to be summoned beyond the realm on the authority of papal letters, against the custom hitherto prevailing in the realm and in Ireland, and in prejudice of the kingly dignity, the K. commands the justiciary to cause Hugh to be liberated from prison and to have letters patent of pardon under the seal which the K. uses in Ireland. Canterbury. [Close, 27 Edw. I., m. 10.]

The money if not repaid may be levied out of John's lands and chattels in England and Ireland. Kennington. [Close, 27 Edw. I., m. 11 dors.]

Aug. 18. 648. The K. to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland. Although the K. had by advice of his council ordained that no one under a penalty contained in the ordinance should introduce into the realm money called pollards and crocards, yet it was the K.'s intention that this money should run in the kingdom and in Ireland until the K. should recall it, or otherwise order. Mandate, therefore, to the justiciary to permit the burgesses and merchants of Bristol to traffic and trade with this money until further orders. Chertsey. [Close, 27 Edw. I., m. 7.]

Aug. 25. 649. The K. to archbishops, bishops, &c., and all other faithful Christians in England, Ireland, and Wales. Whereas the Pope had granted to the Master and brothers of the hospital of St. James de Alto Passu [Altopascio], in the diocese of Lucca, an indulgence that they should be once a year received in churches in order to collect alms, the K. takes under his special protection John de Camerâ, their general attorney, and the other attorneys whom they may wish to substitute, and prays the prelates to receive John kindly in their churches, to allow them to admonish the people and collect alms, &c., as in Vol. III., No. 1,141. 1300. Easter.

737. The K.'s writ to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, commanding him if the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, had not rendered judgment in a plaint between William de Calne, Rohesia, his wife, and Reginald de Dene, of a debt of 1,350*l.* that then the justiciary should proceed to the Exchequer, summon before him the parties, and the members of the Council in Ireland, cause the record to be examined, and proceed to judgment; and if any difficulty should be involved, that then he should send the record and process of the plaint with this writ before the K., wheresoever, &c. by the quinzaine of St. John the Baptist. Durham, Dec. 12, 1298. In pursuance of which writ the justiciary sent the record and process as follows:—

Pleas at Dublin before John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, and the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, in one month of Easter, 1300. The above writ recited.

Pleas before the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer in the quinzaine of St. John the Baptist, 1296. The K.'s writ commanding the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, to aid the said William and Rohesia in recovering the debt according to law and custom of the Exchequer aforesaid. Saintonge, Oct. 14, 1296. By virtue of which writ Reginald de Dene was attached to answer to William de Calne and Rohesia his wife of a plea to render to them a debt of 1,300*l.* They thereupon complain that whereas the now K. was bound to William de Dene, grandfather of Reginald, whose heir he is, the first husband of Rohesia, in 2,700*l.* on the day of William's death, and according to law and custom of Ireland a moiety of the goods and chattels of her first husband ought to remain to Rohesia because the issue begotten between them is totally extinct, the said Reginald, after the death of William, the first husband, gave and granted the entire debt to Stephen de

Fulburne, then Treasurer of Ireland, who was bound in a large amount of debt. Rohesia was thereby precluded from claiming from the K. her purparty of the debt.

Reginald appears on July 14 in this year. The Treasurer and Barons having caused the Memoranda of the time of Stephen to be searched, three documents touching the debt were found inrolled on the Memoranda of Hilary, 1298–9, all dated at Waterford, Aug. 26, 1287. By the first of these documents Reginald, son and heir of Thomas de Dene, deceased, gives and grants to S[tephen] Archbishop of Tuam a debt of 3,000*l.*, more or less, due by the K. to his predecessors, and wills that the archbishop may claim the entire debt in the name of Reginald and his ancestors; by the second, S[tephen] Archbishop of Tuam binds himself, under a penalty of 1,000*l.*, to acquit Reginald de Dene, son and heir of Thomas de Dene, deceased, against the K., of all debts which the K. might exact of him; and by the 3rd, the said Reginald binds himself under a penalty of 1,000*l.* to acquit and give security to the archbishop when he, Reginald, becomes of age, regarding the debt of 3,000*l.* due by the K. to his ancestors. Pledges for the penalty George de Rochefort, John Fitz Gerard de Rochefort, Henry Fitz Griffin de Rochefort, Ralph de Dene, and Philip de Cadwelly. If the archbishop cannot receive the money from the K. he may retain two of Reginald's manors which are in his custody until he shall have received the money in which William de Prendergast was bound to Walter Bishop of Waterford.

Reginald Says that at the time of the making of these deeds he was under age and in custody of Stephen, wherefore they ought not to injure him. William and Rohesia Say that at the making of the deeds Reginald was fifteen years of age, knowing how to discern between good and evil, and that he took profit by the deed of grant aforesaid and the deed of quit claim of the debt; to wit, the issues and explees of the manor of Keyry, for 4 years and more, which manor is worth at the least 40 marks a year, and he likewise had profit by the K. having pardoned debts in which his ancestry were bound to the K. After several continuances the plaint is brought in one month of Easter, before John Wogan, chief justiciary of Ireland. Reginald Says that no debt was allowed to him after the making of the deeds. On searching the rolls it was found that this was so, but by the rolls of a. r. 2, it was found that 200*l.* were allowed to William de Dene. Reginald Says that the Exchequer is a place of equity, and that he may here plead as in the Exchequer of England, and though it was found by inquisition that he was of full age at the making of the deed, yet by equity and according to custom prevailing in each Exchequer he should be admitted to answer farther in chief, and he prays judgment. He further Says that by the agreement he took no profit while under age from the manor of Keyre. Reginald being asked if he has any claim against the K. under the debt, Says that it is so. And being asked by what deed or how much, he Says he does not know, and that he has no proof save what is contained in the Memoranda of the K.'s wardrobe. Being asked by what right he claims this debt, he Says as heir. As this plea in a manner touches the K., a day before the K. on the quinzaine of St. John the Baptist is given to the parties.

A day was given subsequently to the parties on the quinzaine of Easter. William and Rohesia appear, but Reginald does not appear. Wherefore the justiciary of Ireland aforesaid is commanded to distrain Reginald by all his lands, &c. and to have his body before the K. wheresoever, &c. in one month of Michaelmas to hear judgment. And as it seems to the court that it is expedient and necessary to be certified regarding the custom of Ireland in the case aforesaid, before judgment is rendered, which custom is unknown to this court, the justiciary is commanded to call together the Chancellor, the Treasurer, the Barons of the Exchequer, the justices C. P., and the Council of the K. in Ireland, and to inquire by good and lawful men whether there is such a custom in Ireland or not, and to certify to the K. by the term aforesaid. On this day the justiciary certifies that Reginald is distrained by his chattels to the value of 26½ marks, that he had previously sent a record of the plaint, &c., and that Rohesia and her attorney do not show that there are other writings, writs, or inquisition in the Exchequer.

The members of the K.'s Council in Ireland, as well bishops as others, having been called together, it was unanimously agreed that the custom in Ireland regarding the goods of a testator is that where there is issue between the husband and wife the goods of the testator shall be divided equally into three parts between the husband, the wife, and the issue, the debts being first deducted; if there be no issue the goods shall be equally divided between the husband and wife.

It appearing on examination of the record and process that the plaint had not been by writ of the K., it follows that the justiciary had sent a different record from what he ought to have sent, or that he imagined a writ had been directed to him. Wherefore it is adjudged that Reginald go for the present without day, and that William and Rohesia sue out another writ to the justiciary of Ireland. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 162, Rot. 41.]

June 1. 746. The K. to his custodian of the Archbishopric of Dublin. Richard Archbishop of Dublin having presented to the K. letters of Pope Boniface regarding his promotion containing words which seemed prejudicial to the K., his crown, and the royal dignity, publicly declared that these words had not been introduced by his procuration or to his knowledge, and that it was never his intention to obtain, do, or prosecute anything that might prejudice the K., his crown, or the royal dignity. He, therefore, spontaneously, purely, simply, and expressly renounced everything in the letters apostolic, which could be tacity or expressly held to bear this meaning, humbly praying that the temporalities of the archbishopric might be restored to him of the K.'s grace and of meer regal liberality. The manor is held of the Earl Marshal of England in free alms, rendering no rent save prayers and orisons. Wherefore the K. had commanded Stephen Bishop of Waterford, then justiciary of Ireland and the then chancellor, to direct the writs accordingly. The K. being unwilling that Geoffrey and Matilda should be harassed in the premises against the tenor of this grant, commands that the K.'s writs touching the liberty be

May 13. 805. Grant of special grace to Richard of Exeter, that of 32*l.* in which he is bound at the Exchequer, Dublin, for 16 hogsheads of wine of debt of his father, sold to the latter, he yearly pay at the K.'s pleasure 60*s.*, one moiety at the Exchequer of St. Michael next ensuing, and the other moiety at the feast of Easter following, until the whole be discharged. Mandate accordingly to the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin. Kempsey. [Fine Roll, 29 Edw. I., m. 10.]

May 13. 806. The K. to the justiciary of Ireland or his locum tenens. Richard, son and heir of Richard of Exeter, deceased, had shown to the K. that whereas the K. had long since directed Robert de Ufford, then justiciary of Ireland, to cause to be assigned and delivered of the K.'s gift to Richard, the father, by a reasonable extent, 30 librates in the K.'s lands of Connaught; the justiciary thereupon caused 30 librates to be delivered, but Richard died before he could obtain the K.'s charter. Richard, the son, had therefore prayed the K. for a charter. The K. desirous to be certified in the premises commands the justiciary to take an inquisition as to what lands Richard, the father, held in Connaught by the assignment, by what service, who now holds the lands, what they are yearly worth, and whether he had the K.'s charter thereupon. The inquisition with this writ shall be without delay sent to the K. under the seals of the justiciary and of those who shall take it. Kempsey.

The K. desires to be certified regarding the true value of the lands which Richard of Exeter, deceased, held in the K.'s waste lands between the castles of Roscommon and Randown, and which after his death came by hereditary right to Richard of Exeter, his son, who surrendered them into the K.'s hand, as well because his castle of Adlek had been levelled by the Irish as because of the high farm which much exceeded the true value of the lands; the K. also desires to be certified regarding the true value of 4 villatæ, namely, Moyvannan, Torpan, Monethassan, and Slefschenechoch, in the vicinity of those lands. The K. therefore directs the justiciary to take an inquisition and to cause all the aforesaid lands and the 4 villatæ to be extended as to their true value; and further to inquire whether it would be to the K.'s damage or prejudice to grant back the lands surrendered by Richard, and also the 4 villatæ to hold in fee farm for ever. Kempsey.

Inquisition taken at Roscommon on Tuesday next after the feast of the Nativity of St. John the Baptist, a. r. 29 [June 27, 1301], by the underwritten, namely:—Hugh de Ley, Robert Gent, John Talry, Philip Ockeburne, Robert White, Richard Brun, Reginald Mill, Roger le Fleming, Adam Benet, Adam Dullard, Matthew Dru, Thomas Walter, Stephen Durant, Henry Stakepol, Geoffrey Furmenty, Who upon their oath Say that the K. by writ commanded Sir Robert de Ufford, then justiciary, to cause to be extended and delivered in fee to Richard of Exeter, the elder, for his lengthy service, thirty librates of the K.'s lands in Connaught, and the justiciary by reason of this mandate caused seven villatæ to be extended and delivered, namely, a half villata of Kylcoyssch, a half villata of Scregachcrynyn, the villata of Behach, the villata of Lysmorechethan and Cownach, the villata of Screnan, the villata of Ardmolan, the villata of Drumcloghry, the villata of Nunchenach and Decolaghelyn, which seven villatæ were then extended at 30*l.*, and Richard received them for that amount. From the time when Sir Richard departed from Connaught and abandoned the custody of the K.'s castles of Roscommon and Randown until a. r. 27, on account of continued war, the lands were absolutely worth nothing, and the K. could not receive any profit from the neighbouring lands. The true value of each of the 7 villatæ aforesaid is now 40*s.* Richard of Exeter, senior, died ere he received the K.'s charter. The jurors do not know by what service the tenements are held unless by homage and service. Richard of Exeter, son and heir of Sir Richard, holds the tenements as aforesaid and has not yet received a charter.

The jurors upon their oath Say that Sir Richard of Exeter the elder held in fee of the lord the K. eight villatæ of land in Connaught, namely, Tobyrnechalpye, Rathfaret, [. . .]aosfchy, Conyllesty, Naracheyn, Corkylbrangyle, Corcreppan, Denguymacossan, whereof each is worth 40*s.* a year. Richard's castle of Athleg while in the custody of Sir Richard was laid low by the common war of the Irish of Connaught. They Say that Richard of Exeter, son and heir of Sir Richard, surrendered the tenements aforesaid into the hands of the lord the K., as well on account of the high farm of those lands as on account of the common war of the Irish of all Connaught. They Say that each villata of Moyvannan, Torpan, Monecassan, and Slafschenethoch, which during the war was worth nothing to the K. or any other person, is now worth 40*s.* It would not be to the damage or prejudice of the K. to grant the tenements in fee to Richard, according to the extent, if Richard should reside there which would be more advantageous for the K. and his tenants.

John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, being prevented by other affairs of the K. from taking in his own person the inquisitions and extents mentioned in the writs, directed Richard of Exeter, sheriff of Roscommon, in whose bailiwick the tenements are, to take them. He sent them to the justiciary attached to the writs. [Inq. P.M., 29 Edw. I., No. 147.]

Their passage in going and returning shall only be excepted. If the third part does not suffice for their wages, they shall have in addition reasonable wages while on the K.'s service. Kenilworth. [Pat., 29 Edw. I., m. 14.]

May 21. 810. The K. commands John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, to come as speedily as possible to the K to aid the war of Scotland, along with other magnates and lieges of Ireland, as the K. had already intimated by Roger de Inkepenne, Walter Wogan, and John de Ockle, provided that some fit persons be previously appointed to execute John's office. May 22. 811. The K. to merchants from beyond the Alps and other foreign merchants of whatsoever company dwelling in Ireland. Having for certain arduous affairs touching the K. and his realm directed the justiciary and Treasurer of Ireland to receive and even to take money on loan as well from merchants as other persons whatsoever to such a large amount as may promote the K.'s affairs, the K. affectionately asks and prays the merchants patiently to submit to the taking of the money for the K.'s use by the justiciary and Treasurer, and not to be offended at it. The K. will cause the merchants to be satisfied in England for the amount taken. It would be advantageous to the merchants to receive the money in England in order to avoid the dangers of the sea. Kenilworth. [Close, Edw. I., No. 123, m. 8.]

May 24. 813. The K. commands John de Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, to cause the liberty of Carlow of Roger le Bygod, Earl of Norfolk and Earl Marshal of England, which had been a second time taken into the K.'s hand, tobe replevied to the earl until Pentecost next ensuing; and to certify to the K. the cause why it had been taken into the K.'s hand. Kenilworth. [Close, 29 Edw. I., m. 8.]

Trinity. 814. Ireland, Kent, Essex. Joan who was the wife of Philip de la Rokele had demanded before the justices C. P., Dublin, against Edmund le Butiler, a third part of the manors of Aththrym and Suthkyn in Ireland as her dower. Edmund vouches to warranty Maurice le Brun and Matilda his wife, daughter, and heir of Philip de la Rokele to warrant against Joan by aid of court of England by charter of said Philip. Matilda is under age and in custody of the K. Part of the lands is in custody of Richard de Chykewell, and part in that of Joan, who was the wife of Philip de la Rokele, in England, Matilda having no land in Ireland. The justiciary of Ireland having been commanded to send the record and process of the plaint before the K. in the quinzaine of St. John the Baptist, 1300, sent them accordingly; Joan and Edmund appear. The guardians, namely, the said Richard and Joan, though summoned, did not appear, wherefore it is adjudged that land of the heir, in custody of the aforesaid, should be seized into the K.'s hand to the value of, &c. The justiciary of Ireland having been directed to cause the third part claimed in dower to be extended, and to certify to the K. in the octaves of the Holy Trinity last past, certifies that the third part aforesaid is worth 40*l.* 4*s.* 4½*d.* a year. Judgment, that Edmund aforesaid hold in peace, and that Joan recover her seisin out of the lands and tenements in custody of the guardians to the value of her dower. [*Coram Rege, Edw. Nevertheless 35*l.* are now exacted from him. The K. therefore commands the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer to inspect the acquittance which the archbishop says he has, and if the amerciament had been so reduced to desist from the distraint which they make against the archbishop for 35*l.* Morpeth. The justiciary and Treasurer shall, however, take from the Friscobaldi letters or recognizances in the Exchequer of Dublin of the value of the wool and the debts paid to them. Oct. 13. 830. The K. to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, or his locum tenens. Although the K. had lately ordained that no good money of the mint of the K. or any other person should be carried out of the K.'s realm, and had directed this ordinance to be firmly observed in Ireland, yet it was not the K.'s intention but that money might be carried from that country into England. The K. therefore commands the justiciary to free from arrest a sum of money issuing from the lands of Joan la Butillere in Ireland which her bailiffs wish to convey for her maintenance from that country into England, and to allow it to be conveyed to the latter country, having first taken security from the bailiffs that the money shall not be conveyed elsewhere. Donypas. [Close, Edw. I., No. 123, m. 3.]

1301. Oct. 13. 831. Grant to John Wogan for a fine made by him and paid into the Exchequer at York, by Richard de Bereford, Treasurer of Ireland, of the marriage of Margaret, daughter and one of the heirs of Adam de Staunton, deceased. Donypas. [Pat., 29 Edw. I., m. 6.]

Nov. 18. 834. Mem. that the Bishop of Chester, Treasurer of the K., deliver to Sir Walter de Pedreton, the K.'s clerk, to carry into Ireland the letters underwritten, that is to say:—A charter sealed with the seal of Ralph Pipard whereby he enfeoffs the K. of all his castles, lands, and tenements in Ireland; item a writing sealed with Ralph's seal whereby he gives power to Walter l'Enfaunt, Nicholas du Boys, and Gerald Tyrel, Ralph's marshal, to deliver to the K. or to a person sent by him, seisin of all the castles, lands, and tenements aforesaid; item a letter sealed as above to knights and all his other tenants that henceforth they be intentive to the K., and his heirs as their lords; and item a letter sealed with the K.'s great seal whereby the K. gives power to the justiciary of Ireland, or to Sir Walter, to receive in his name seisin of the castles, lands, and tenements above mentioned. All these letters Sir Walter de Pedreton is to deliver to the justiciary, Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer of Ireland, to remain in the K.'s treasury in those parts by indenture between them and Sir Walter after seisin received of the castles, lands, and tenements in the K.'s name. [Q.R., Irish Exchequer, $\frac{5}{3}\frac{3}{-}$, cancelled.]

30 Edw. I. 835. Petition of John Fitz Thomas. Whereas the said John had by recognizance before Sir John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, bound himself to give for ever to the Earl of Ulster, in order to make peace for transgression done to the earl, 120 librates of land in Connaught, which together with all his other lands in those parts and in the county of Louth were to be extended by six extenders selected by the said earl, and by six other extenders on the part of the said John. The extenders were likewise to extend the earl's lands in certain localities named before the justiciary to the use of John, for the residue over and above the 120 librates of land. To make this extent 2 justices were assigned by the K.'s writ, namely, Simon de Ludgate and John de Pounce, to whom power was given by the writ, after extent made by the extenders, to give seisin of the lands to the parties. The justices with the extenders selected on one side and the other met and commenced the extent;

John's three extenders were excluded and removed by them, and three suspected persons put in their place. And further, not regarding what one set of extenders or the other said, and contrary to their commission, they caused to come before them an inquisition taken by the suspected persons, and without John's assent, or calling him, and without extending the earl's lands, adjudged seisin to the earl of all John's lands aforesaid. The justices returned before the chief justiciary on a certain day their commission and their record of this business before John had taken measures to redress this error, and nothing was done regarding him. Wherefore John prays a writ to the chief justiciary to cause the record and the process of this business to come before the latter. [Tower Privy Seals, 30 Edw. I., No. 9, m. 416. Norman French.]

The K. proposing to remain with his army in Scotland in the approaching winter to repress his Scotch enemies, commands the justiciary and treasurer to cause to be bought in Ireland, 2,000 quarters of wheat, and the same quantity of oats and malt, 4,000 large fish, and 20,000 herrings for the use of the K., the K.'s son and the K.'s lieges in the expedition; whereof they shall send as quickly as possible, 1,300 quarters of wheat, and the same quantity of oats and malt, 3,000 large fish, and 15,000 herrings to Skinburness, to James de Dalilegh, keeper of stores, for supplies of the castles of Dumfries and Loghmaban; and 700 quarters of wheat, the same quantity of oats and malt, 1,000 large fish, and 5,000 herrings to the castle of Newcastle-upon-Ayr for supplies thereof, to be delivered to the constable of the castle. The supplies shall be at their places of destination at latest before Feb. 2 next ensuing. To carry out and promote all this, sends John de Wrotwardyn, in whom they shall place implicit credence. Nov. 27. 839. The K. to the Treasurer, or his locum tenens, and the Barons of the Exchequer. Whereas for the grant and surrender made in fee to the K. by William de Vescy, deceased, of the castle, manor, and county of Kildare with its liberties, and also for the grant of the manor of Spronston (whereof Clemence, who was the wife of John de Vescy, son of William de Vescy, holds two parts, and Isabella, who was the wife of John de Vescy, brother of William, holds one part in dower), the K. had pardoned to William all debts due by him as well debts for fines and amerciaments and other debts as debts of John de Vescy his brother and his other ancestors, the K. commands the Treasurer and Barons to acquit according to the grant aforesaid, Isabella, who was William's wife, (holding in dower the manor of Tughales, in the county of Northumberland which belonged to William) of the demand which they make for those debts. Dec. 18. 847. The K. directs John de Langton, the chancellor, to recommend by letters under the great seal the K., Queen, and their children to Brother Thomas de Thorpe, minister of the order of Friars Minors [Franciscans] in Ireland, about going to the chapter general of his order at Geneva; to beg that they will pray for the K. and for the advancement of his affairs; and to cause the letters to be delivered to Brother Thomas in order to carry them to the chapter. Linliscu [Linlithgow]. [Tower Privy Seals, 30 Edw. I., No. 8, m. 362.]

Dec. . . . 848. The K. directs John de Langton, the chancellor, to cause letter of protection to be made for R[ichard] Archbishop of Dublin (remaining by the K.'s order in England), for himself, his tenants, lands, rents, and possessions in Ireland. To endure for one year. Linlithgow. [Tower Privy Seals, 30 Edw. I., No. 9, m. 403.]

849. It is the K.'s will that Geoffrey de Genville, the justiciary and Treasurer of Ireland, Roger de Inkepenne, Sir Walter Wogan, and John de Okle, or any 3, 4, or 5 of them, have power to pardon to all those of Ireland who owe debts to the K., and may come to his service in Scotland, 2 thirds of those debts, so that for a third of the debts they come with horses and arms to the K.'s service and have that third for their wages, the loss of their horses and other expenses, according to the number of men they bring, and according to the time they remain in the K.'s service, excepting only their passage in going and returning. And if a third of the debts does not suffice for their wages, and for the time that they remain on the K.'s service, the K. wills that they have moreover what may be reasonable according to the number of men they have and the time they remain on the K.'s service.

Mem. that John de Okle is charged on the K.'s behalf to tell the Earl of Ulster to bear in mind that the K. relies on him more than any other man in the land for many reasons, as Roger de Inkepenne and the said John de Okle had in times past told him, and that he ought for this reason to be so ready to serve the K. in this business, which the K. has so much at heart, that he as the K.'s good servant [come son bon nourri] may give example to others to do good, taking release of his debts according to the form which other good men of Ireland have agreed to; it seems to the K. that the earl should without bargain or covenant more quickly and willingly than any others in that country come to the K.'s service. Let the earl understand that the K., who has always been regardful of him and his estate, will be ready from the time the earl comes to his service to grant him such pardon, such allowance, and such grace as ought to induce him to hold himself well paid. Wherefore it is not meet that the earl should separate himself from the K. in this or any other matter. It seems to the K. that the earl ought to give good example to others to come to the K.'s service, and not to make demands and so bear himself that others may take example to withdraw from that service. The earl ought to be ready beforehand to undertake that service and to procure that others may undertake it. The K. prays the earl so to act in this respect so that the K. may be satisfied. As to the present, he will only do to the earl as the K.'s subjects have done to others.

It is the K.'s will that the men of Ireland arrive at the Isle of Arran on the quinzaine of St. John, for the Prince, the K.'s son, who will on the feast of St. John be at Carlisle, has so arranged and will so arrange his affairs that he will be at Newcastle-on-Ayr before the coming of those men thither.

As to the payment which is to be made in Ireland to the men of the Cinque Ports, it is the K.'s intention that it commence from the day when they arrive at the port of Dublin according as they come, together or separately, and that it should be made to each for 40 days, and in no other way.

It is the K.'s will that if the Earl of Ulster does not come to the K.'s service in Scotland the justiciary shall remain in Ireland, but that anyhow he strive that the K. have men-at-arms, hoblers, and men on foot, according to the ordinance before made. [Exchequer Treasury of Receipt, Miscellanea, Edw. I., $\frac{4}{35}$. Norman French.]

30–31 Edw. I.

850. William Bishop of Ossory in Ireland prays remedy from the K.'s court for this, that the justiciary of Ireland harasses him and his canons of the church of St. Canice of Kilkenny for proceeding to election of a bishop ere the K.'s writ of licence to elect came to Ireland. They, however, had a writ of licence for three weeks before the election.

He also prays remedy of this, that the escheator claims the rents of the demesne lands of the bishopric for the term of Easter, which lands were let for a certain rent during the vacancy. The escheator, however, had a writ to restore the temporalities long before Easter, after confirmation of the election. [Chancery Files, Edw. I., No. 104.]

30–33 Edw. I.

851. Power to John de Chynnok to receive for 2 years the attorneys of John Matravers and Alienore, his wife (remaining by licence in England), in all pleas and plaints in courts of Ireland. [Chancery Files, Edw. I., 106.]

CALENDARS.

Instructions to Editors.

The Master of the Rolls desires to call the attention of the Editors of Calendars to the following considerations, with a view to secure uniformity of plan in the important works on which they are engaged:—

He is anxious to extend, as far as is consistent with proper economy and despatch, the utility of the Calendars of State Papers now publishing under his control: 1st. As the most efficient means of making the national archives accessible to all who are interested in historical inquiries; 2nd. As the best justification of the liberality and munificence of the Government in throwing open these papers to the public, and providing proper catalogues of their contents at the national expense.

The greater number of the readers who will consult and value these works can have little or no opportunity of visiting the Public Record Office, in which these papers are deposited. The means for consulting the originals must necessarily be limited when readers live at a distance from the metropolis; still more if they are residents of Scotland, Ireland, distant colonies, or foreign states. Even when such an opportunity does exist, the difficulty of mastering the original hands in which these papers are written will deter many readers from consulting them. Above all, their great variety and number must present formidable obstacles to literary inquirers, however able, sanguine, and energetic, when the information contained in them is not made accessible by satisfactory Calendars.

The Master of the Rolls considers that, without superseding the necessity of consulting the originals, every Editor ought to frame his Calendar in such a manner that it shall present, in as condensed a form as possible, a correct index of the contents of the papers described in it. He considers that the entries should be so minute as to enable the reader to discover not only the general contents of the originals, but also what they do not contain. If the information be not sufficiently precise, if facts and names be omitted or concealed under a vague and general description, the reader will be often misled, he will assume that where the abstracts are silent as to information to be found in the documents, such information does not exist; or, he will have to examine every original in detail, and thus one great purpose will have been lost for which these Calendars have been compiled.

As the documents are various, the Master of the Rolls considers that they will demand a corresponding mode of treatment. The following rules are to be observed :—

1st. All formal and official documents, such as letters of credence, warrants, grants, and the like, should be described as briefly as possible.

2nd. Letters and documents referring to one subject only should be catalogued as briefly as is consistent with correctness. But when they contain miscellaneous news, such a description should be given as will enable a reader to form an adequate notion of the variety of their contents.

3rd. Wherever a letter or paper is especially difficult to decipher, or the allusions more than ordinarily obscure, it will be advisable for the Editor to adhere, as closely as is consistent with brevity, to the text of the document. He is to do the same when it contains secret or very rare information.

4th. Where the Editor has deciphered letters in cipher, the decipher may be printed at full length. But when a contemporary or authorised decipher exists it will be sufficient to treat the cipher as an ordinary document.

5th. Striking peculiarities of expression, proverbs, manners, &c. are to be noticed.

6th. Original dates are to be given at the close of each entry, that the reader may know the exact evidence by which the marginal dates are determined.

7th. Where letters are endorsed by the receivers and the date of their delivery specified, these endorsements are to be recorded.

8th. The number of written pages of each document is to be specified, as a security for its integrity, and that readers may know what proportion the abstract bears to the original.

9th. The language of every document is to be specified. If, however, the greater part of the collection be in English, it will be sufficient to denote those only which are in a different tongue.

10th. Where documents have been printed, a reference should be given to the publication.

11th. Each series is to be chronological.

12th. The Prefaces of Editors, in explanation of documents in the volume are not to exceed fifty pages, unless the written permission of the Master of the Rolls to the contrary be obtained.

 Editors employed in foreign archives are to transcribe at full length important and secret papers.

PREFACE.

THE documents, of which abstracts appear in this volume, are those relating to Ireland during the period embraced between the years 1302 to 1307. In their general character they are very similar to those treated of in the last volume (IV.) of this Calendar; the ecclesiastical taxation of Ireland, which is given in extenso, being the chief exception.

This taxation return gives the valuation and taxation of all the dioceses throughout the country. Of these returns those for Down, Connor, and Dromore have been printed by Dean Reeves in his "Ecclesiastical Antiquities" of those dioceses. The returns for Limerick, Cloyne, Ross, Emly, Cashel, Cork, and Waterford have also been printed in the Eighth Report of the Irish Record Commissioners.

For several of the dioceses, Meath, Limerick, Cloyne, Emly, Cashel, Ross, Waterford, and Cork, there are two sets of returns of different dates, in which the amount of the valuation and taxation varies, and many churches taxed in the one are in the second entered as destroyed during the war. Occasionally, too, a church found in the one has been omitted from the other, or appears under another name. For Meath the returns are very nearly duplicates, whilst the Roll $\frac{5}{9}\frac{3}{3}\frac{3}{3}$ D, upon which the dioceses of Limerick, Cloyne, Ross, and Emly are entered, bears the endorsement "Vacated, as is believed."

The membranes upon which the dioceses of Ardfert and Killaloe are entered are in part much injured, and present much difficulty to any attempt to decipher their contents.

For the text of this volume Mr. Sweetman, who had passed the pages through the press, is responsible. He had not, however, completed the index when he had to cease from his labours owing to failing health and eye-sight, the latter no doubt aggravated by his zealous efforts to decipher many faded documents and by the arduous task of transcribing the taxation rolls. With reference to these, were he now living, he would doubtless take this opportunity to thank the many friends who assisted him in endeavouring to identify the names of churches, &c. of that date with those of the present day.

With regard to the corrigenda, I may add that as any errors which may occur in the first part of the volume can generally be detected without assistance I have not thought it necessary to take note of them, but with reference to the ecclesiastical taxation, I have compared it throughout with the rolls, and have noted all variations from the original returns.

1301–2. Feb. 20. 28. Pardon to Philip de Barry, for his good service in Scotland, of 20 marks, which he owes at the Exchequer, Dublin, out of a redemption of 100 marks. Woller. [Close, 30 Edw. I., m. 16.]

Feb. 20. 29. The K. notifies to the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, that the K. pardons to Richard Blakeman and Amabilia his wife, for his good service in Scotland, 10 marks which they owed at that Exchequer beyond what they paid out of the goods of Richard de Aton, for arrears due by the latter when sheriff of Waterford. Woller. [Close, 30 Edw. I., m. 16.]

Feb. 20. 30. Pardon to Thomas de St. John, for his good service in Scotland, of 15*l.* out of the 30*l.* which he owes for amerciaments for undue returns of writs before the chief justiciary, the justices of the Common Pleas, Dublin, and for insufficient returns of writs in the Exchequer. Of the remaining 15*l.* the K. grants respite until Easter, and for 1 year from that feast. [Close, 30 Edw. I., m. 16.]

Feb. 22. 31. The K. to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, and the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin. The Abbot de Maio [Monasternenagh] had prayed the K. to grant him terms for payment of a sum of 209*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, which the abbot owed by bond to Gerard Gymbard and his associates, merchants of the company of Ricardi of Lucca, and which is exacted from the abbot because all the goods, chattels, and debts of those merchants had been taken into the K.'s hand. The K. directs the justiciary, Treasurer, and Barons that, having regard to the poverty of the house, reasonable terms be granted to the abbot. Roxburgh. [Close, 30 Edw. I., m. 15.]

Feb. 22. 32. The K. to Simon de Ludgate and his associates, justices of the Common Pleas, Dublin. It had been shown on the part of Joan de Valence, Countess of Pembroke, that Laurence Jacob had impleaded William Seynde in the Countess's court of the liberty of Wexford of Laurence's chattels taken and unjustly detained; the plaint having been long discussed there it was adjudged that Laurence should recover his damages for unjust caption and detinue. William caused the record of the plaint to come by writ of false judgment before the above court of Common Pleas. The justices, 1301–2. although William had died pending the plea, adjudged that the judgment was false, and that the liberty should be taken into the K.'s hand for rendering the judgment, no notice being given to the countess or her seneschal. The K. not wishing the countess to be aggrieved directs that the liberty be replevied to her during pleasure, and that the justices certify the cause of caption to the K. under Simon's seal in the quinzaine of St. John the Baptist next ensuing. Roxburgh. [Close, 30 Edw. I., m. 15.]

Feb. 23. 33. The K., for the good service in Scotland of Nicholas de Saun ford, directs the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, to grant terms to him for payment of 30*l.* remaining due out of a sum of 112*l.* Morpeth. [Close, 30 Edw. I., m. 15.]

Feb. 23. 35. The K. notifies to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, and Richard de Bereford, Treasurer of Dublin, that Geoffrey le Poer having petitioned the K. for remission of 100 marks (arrears of a yearly rent of 10 marks for lands in Balyteneth, namely, 80 marks when the lands were in the hand of Eustace le Poer who enfeoffed Geoffrey, and 20 marks after the lands came to his hand), the K. wishes to grant the petition for Geoffrey's good service in Scotland. Pardon to him of the 100 marks, provided that Geoffrey shall for the future yearly pay 10 marks at the Exchequer, Dublin. [Close, 30 Edw. I., m. 14.]

Feb. 23. 36. The K. directs the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, to search the rolls and certify by the quinzaine of St. John in what debts and for what cause Hugh Purcel is bound to the K. Meanwhile they shall cause him to have respite. Morpeth. [Close, 30 Edw. I., m. 15.]

Feb. 23. 37. Whereas the K. had granted to John Fitz Thomas, for his good service in Scotland and elsewhere, 60 librates of land in fee in Ireland, the K. commands John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, to provide the former with those librates in the locality where it might be done with the least damage to the K., and the greatest advantage to John Fitz Thomas. The justiciary shall certify thereupon to the K. by the quinzaine of St. John next ensuing. Morpeth. [Close, 30 Edw. I., m. 15.]

Feb. 23. 38. The K. wishing to favour John Fitz Thomas, on account of his laudable service in Scotland and elsewhere, grants to him that he may hold the custody of certain lands of Thomas Fitz Maurice, deceased (which John now holds of the K.'s commission until the age of Thomas's heir at 100*l.* a year), free from the payment of 100*l.*, provided that John will remit to the K. all debts which the K. owes to him for his expenses on the K.'s service both in Ireland and Flanders. Morpeth. [Close, 30 Edw. I., m. 15.]

1301–2.

Feb. 23. 39. The K. commands Geoffrey de Geynville and John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, that, taking with them the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, they search the rolls, &c. of that Exchequer, view the receipt of the chamberlain after the account of William de Estdene, late treasurer, and having made an estimate of the entire receipt as well at the Exchequer of Easter as at the Exchequer of Michaelmas next ensuing, they view and examine what sum of money out of issues of Ireland the K. may have ready at hand for the expedition to Scotland in the month of March after the end of the present year. The justiciary shall certify thereupon to the K. in the quinzaine of St. John the Baptist next ensuing, in order that the K. having certain information on this point may be enabled to provide what is necessary for the expedition. What the K. has already directed to be paid shall be subtracted from the amount. Morpeth. [Close, 30 Edw. I., m. 15.]

Feb. 23. 40. Power to Geoffrey de Geynville and John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, conjointly and severally to treat in the K.'s name with the Earl of Ulster and other magnates of Ireland to come to the expedition against Scotland with horses and arms, men-at-arms with armoured horses, hoblers and men on foot. The K. will approve and confirm whatever Geoffrey and John may do in the premises. Morpeth. By writ of Privy Seal. [Pat., 30 Edw. I., m. 28.]

Feb. 23. 41. The truce granted to the Scotch having expired, the K. intended to proceed with his final expedition, and desired to be provided with ships to convey men and horses from Ireland to that expedition. The K. therefore directs John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, to inquire what ships can be procured in that country, and what number of men and horses they can carry. The justiciary shall certify thereupon to the K. in the quinzaine of St. John the Baptist next ensuing. Morpeth. [Close, 30 Edw. I., m. 16*d.*]

Feb. 23. 42. Letters to Geoffrey de Geynville regarding the Scotch war, similar to the above letters to Richard de Burgh, Earl of Ulster. Morpeth. [Close, 30 Edw. I., rider, m. 16*d.*]

Feb. 23. 43. The K. notifies to the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, that he grants to John Fitz Thomas, for his service in Scotland and elsewhere, that he may henceforth hold custody of the lands of Thomas Fitz Maurice, deceased, quit of 100*l.* payable at the Exchequer, but subject to payment of a like amount to Gerard Dorom on account of a grant made to the latter of 100 librates of land out of that custody.

Wishing, now that the truce granted to the Scotch is about to expire, to be provided with strong force of men-at-arms in order to proceed vigorously with the war of Scotland, the K. had imparted to Geoffrey de Geynville and John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, some matters of importance to be communicated to the earl. Directs the earl to place confidence in what they shall tell him and to carry it out strenuously. Morpeth. [Close, 30 Edw. I., rider, m. 16*d.*]

Feb. 23. 48. The K. to the same justiciary. Whereas John Fitz Thomas has recently shown that while he was on the K.'s service in Flanders some Irish malefactors and disturbers of the peace had burnt down his vill of Rathimegan, perpetrating homicides, robberies, and burnings in the adjacent lands, and had urgently prayed the K. to grant him the service of Ireland to aid in newly constructing a fortress against the Irish, for the advantage of Ireland and the firmer preservation of the K.'s peace; and whereas the K. had commanded the K.'s Council there that if they considered that this proposal would tend to those objects they should grant the service to John; and whereas John has not yet had the service, although it was granted to him by the justiciary and council, the K. commands that they cause John to have the service according to the tenor of the K.'s mandate. Aug. 7. 100. Writ to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, or his locum tenens. Whereas Roger le Bygod, Earl of Norfolk and Marshal of England, had supplicated the K. to grant to him by Letters Patent that merchants and others might safely and securely, both by land and water, come to the earl's vill of Ross with their merchandise to trade, and might thence return without impediment from the K. or the men of Waterford, as the merchants and others were wont to do until they were impeded by Stephen de Fulburne, late Bishop of Waterford, justiciary of Ireland. Inquisition taken as above before John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, at Waterford on Saturday in the second week of Lent, a. r. 31 [March 2, 1302–3], by John Fitz Henry, John Fitz John le Poer, William de St. Leger, Robert Schothals, John Fitz William le Poer, William Fitz Ely, knights, Edmund le Gras, Robert Lowys, Edmund de Valle, Hamund le Gras, Henry Lamport, Nicholas de Samford. The burgesses of Waterford had always opposed this so far as they could, and had sometimes impeded it. The jury says that it would not be to the damage or loss of the K. to grant that merchants and others might come to the vill of Ross with goods and merchandise if the K. took there the same customs which he took at Waterford. But they Say that it is to the advantage of the K., because more merchants with ships and merchandise come thither. And they Say that it is to the damage of the men of Waterford and their vill of twenty [pounds] a year, because merchants with their ships and merchandise withdraw and betake themselves elsewhere, and to the advantage of the K. and of the men of Ross of 40*l.* a year, because merchants would touch at Ross more than usual. The latter part torn. [*Inq. Oct. 14. 132. The K. to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, or his locum tenens. Walter Bishop of Kildare having shown by petition that

Nicholas, formerly Bishop of Kildare, his predecessor, and all his predecessors were always wont to have 10 marks a year as of the right of their church by the hands of William de Vesey, late lord of the vill of Kildare and his ancestors for the site of the castle of that vill, built on the soil of the church, but the said William when justiciary of Ireland, on account of a contention between him and the said Nicholas, deprived the latter and his church of the rent which remained detained from Nicholas and Walter and their church, as well after as before William's lands and tenements in Ireland had fallen into the K.'s hands. The K. wishing to be certified thereupon commands the justiciary to take an inquisition whether the 10 marks are of the right of the church, &c. Westminster. [Indorsed.] This writ come to the justiciary at Kildare on December 18.

Inquisition taken before John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, at Tristeldermod on Feb. 26, a. r. 31 [1302–3], to inquire as above. Jurors:—Robert Percevall, Walter de Kenleye, knights, Walran de Wellesleye, John de la Hyde, William de Cantilupe, Nicholas Thoure, John le Bret, Simon Surdeval, Nicholas Barbedor, William le Bret, Gilbert le Palmer, Simon Clement, Richard Sprot, John de Coventry, Who upon their Oath Say that William formerly Earl Marshall, senior, built originally the castle of Kildare on the soil of the church of Kildare, without the consent of the Bishop and Chapter thereof; that afterwards Ralph, formerly Bishop of Kildare, impleaded the earl of the site of the castle, and the earl in order to make peace gave to the bishop and his successors 10 marks a year receivable from the castle; that Nicholas and his predecessors, Bishops of Kildare, were from that time seized of the 10 marks a year by the hands of William de Vesey, late lord of Kildare, and his antecessors, as of the right of their church until the said William, when he was justiciary of Ireland on account of a contention between him and Nicholas withdrew the rent; that the rent was detained from Nicholas and his church for nine years, as well after the lands and tenements of William de Vesey came to the K.'s hands as before; that the rent is wont to be levied in this way, to wit, the bailiff of the Bishop of Kildare goes to the castle and demands it from the bailiff of the castle at the constituted terms, and if he wont pay the bishop there is wont to excommunicate the bailiff from day to day until the rent is fully paid.

The K. to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland. By inquisition lately taken by the justiciary and returned, the K. had learnt that William, formerly Earl Marshall, the elder, built the castle of Kildare on the soil of the church of Kildare without the consent of the Bishop or Chapter of Kildare; that afterwards Ralph, formerly Bishop of Kildare, impleaded Earl William at Dublin of the site of the castle; and that the earl, in order to make peace with Bishop Ralph, gave to the bishop and his successors 10 marks a year for ever, receivable from the castle for its site. As, however, the inquisition makes no mention of the form of peace nor of the tenor of the composition made between the earl and bishop, and the K. wishes to be certified in order to do justice to the bishop, the K. commands the justiciary to certify the K. whether the peace was made in the K.'s court before the K.'s justices or elsewhere without the court; and if the former to certify regarding the record and process thereupon held, the tenor of the composition and instruments, &c. Lanum, April 16, 1303.

On searching the rolls and Memoranda of the Exchequer, Dublin, nothing is found of the form of peace made between the Earl Marshall and the Bishop of Kildare. The Bishop in his proper person being questioned says that it is not necessary for him to show any composition but the seisin of his church for 74 years in the time of four of his predecessors, namely, Ralph, John, Simon, Nicholas, ere the K. had anything in the co. of Kildare, and this he would verify as the court should adjudge. And if the election be canonically confirmed, and this appears by letters of the Diocesan, the justiciary may then take fealty from the elect and restore the temporalities, having first received from the elect letters under his seal and that of the chapter that this grace shall not tend to the K.'s prejudice or disherision, nor be hereafter drawn into a precedent. Nov. 14. Three Documents relating to Proposals made in Ireland for the Invasion of Scotland.

151. Indenture. In the first place the K. wishes to have from Ireland 300 men-at-arms, 400 hoblers, and 2,000 foot soldiers. It is next ordered that Nicholas du Bois and Sir Walter de Pederton go to Ireland to follow up the business in the following manner:— That is to say, that the justiciary and Treasurer of Ireland, in company with [Nicholas and Walter], shall speak to the great lords of Ireland and provide how these men shall go to Scotland by counsel of the Earl of Ulster, whom the K. intends shall be chief thereof; the justiciary and Treasurer, with the said Nicholas and Sir Walter, shall have power to respite and release to those who owe debts to the K. (provided they come) such sums of money as may seem meet to them; they shall, moreover, to carry out the business, provide as much as they can of moneys levied in Ireland, as well by the aid of the Pope, as other issues, of the country whatsoever; they shall then assemble and provide ships; and when they shall see that this matter is on a favourable footing they shall certify to the K. as quickly as they can.

And it is ordered that the Earl of Ulster shall have in the number of men of Ireland, 100 men-at-arms, 200 hoblers, and 1,000 foot soldiers, as his own retinue; but that fifty out of the hundred men-at-arms shall be at the Earl's cost for 100 days, as Eustace le Poer and Thomas de Mandevile promised to the K. on the earl's part at Roxburgh before their departure thence.

Again, it is ordained that the remainder of the men aforesaid whom the K. wishes to have, to wit, 200 men-at-arms, 200 hoblers, and 1,000 foot soldiers, shall be elected by the great lords and others of Ireland, by counsel and advice of the Earl, the justiciary and Treasurer, and others of the K.'s Council.

Moreover, the messengers shall carry with them an indenture (whereof the justiciary of Ireland has the other part, and a transcript remains in the K.'s wardrobe) of things done, and promises made at Roxburgh in the matter aforesaid.

It is ordained that all the men aforesaid be at Ayr, at Pentecost at latest.

Indorsed. This indenture is made in 3 parts, one whereof is given to the Bishop of Chester, another to Nicholas du Bois and to Sir Walter de Pederton to carry into Ireland; and this one is to remain in the Wardrobe. Delivered on Nov. 14, a. r. 30 [1302].

Message by John de Ockley on behalf of the K. to the Earl of Ulster urging him to come to the K.'s service in Scotland.

Mem.—It is the K.'s will that the men of Ireland arrive in the Isle of Arran in the quinzaine of St. John, for the prince, the K.'s son, who would be at Carlisle by the feast of St. John, had so arranged matters that he will be at Newcastle on Ayr before the coming of the men of Ireland.

The payment to be made in Ireland to the men of the Cinque Ports shall commence from the day when these men shall arive at the port of Dublin.

If the Earl of Ulster does not come to the K.'s service in Scotland the justiciary shall remain in Ireland, but anyhow that the K. pay the number of men-at-arms, hoblers, and foot soldiers, according to the ordinance already made.

Mem., that on Wednesday before the month of last Easter, the justiciary of Ireland, the Treasurer of the Exchequer, Dublin, and the messengers of the K. who came from England, spoke at Drogheda with the Earl of Ulster and delivered to him the K.'s writ and the letter of the K.'s son; and prayed him on behalf of the K. to come with horses and arms to the K.'s aid in the war of Scotland, and for his coming the K. would give him pardon and release of part his debts due to the K. according to the number of men he would bring; the earl answered that he would willingly come; but that with less than 100 armoured horses, 100 hoblers, and 600 foot soldiers he would not come; and he said that he would serve with 50 armoured horses at his cost, provided that the K. would find him passage in coming and going, and would pardon all his debts which run in demand against him and his ancestors until the day aforesaid. The debts amount to 11,654*l.* 5*s.* 6½*d.*, as is now found at the Exchequer; besides the account of Ulster and Connaught, which is in arrear since a. r. 13 until now. The total of this debt cannot be certainly known before the county audit, but it is understood to be great. Besides this the Earl desires that full pay may be found for him for 50 other armoured horses, with whom shall be three knights, and that full pay shall be found for him for 100 hoblers and 600 foot soldiers. With less men and in no other way will he consent to come. The acquittance of the debts he demands under seal of England, and the 50 horses who take pay from the K. shall be appraised on this command; for the justiciary, the Treasurer, and messengers would not dare to make so dear a bargain without knowing the K.'s will. The stay of the earl under this agreement shall be 100 days, and no more, commencing at the octaves of St. John.

Then follows a list of the magnates and others coming into the K.'s service in Scotland, with the forces they propose to provide and on what conditions, namely:—John Fitz Thomas, 40 armoured horses, 40 hoblers, and 200 foot soldiers, to remain 100 days, and to have 150*l.* out of the service of Ireland; this sum, which was already given to him to enclose his castle among the Irish for the safety of the country, and is partly delivered to him to provide victuals for his workmen; 250*l.* from the Treasury, and release of a debt of 450*l.* John Fitz Thomas would not dare to come to the K.'s son with fewer men; the K. finds him passage.

Peter son of James de Bermingham, 20 armoured horses, 20 hoblers, and 100 foot soldiers; to have 200 marks from the Treasury and release of a debt of 460*l.*; to remain on the K.'s service so long as John Fitz Thomas remains; the K. finds him passage.

Thomas de Maundeville, 10 armoured horses, 20 hoblers, and 100 foot soldiers; as he owes no debt to the K. he shall take the K.'s pay for so many men. The K. finds him passage.

Walter de Lacy shall come to the K.'s service, or shall send Hugh de Lacy if he is not in health; 6 or 4 armoured horses, 4 hoblers, to have release of debts to the amount of treble of his pay; the K. finds him passage.

Peter Haket, 1 armoured horse; to remain at his own cost during the time aforesaid; to have passage and release of 4*l.*

Henry Fitz Kery, 2 armoured horses. To have passage and releases of 15*l.*

Reginald Russel, 10 armoured horses, 16 hoblers, 60 foot soldiers; to remain as the others, and have passage and release of debts to the amount of treble of his pay, which amounts to 420*l.*

As to ships to convey the men-at-arms and supplies, the shipping of Ireland does not amount to a fourth part of what is required; it therefore behoves to cause ships to come from other countries.

In regard to the aid which was granted to the K., it is hoped that this will be collected between now and the feast of St. Michael, as the K. has ordained. This money may be employed on victuals or men-at-arms.

Total of armoured horses, besides [those from] the earldom of Ulster, 85.

Total hoblers, 103. Total of foot soldiers, 400.

Jan. 12. 167. Extent of the manor of Dyssard taken there on Saturday next after the feast of Epiphany, a. r. 31. Jurors:—Thomas Colmer, Robert Saunemelle, William Vineter, Robert Norman, Henry Palmer, Adam Frewyn, Henry de Rath, Thomas Fitz Stephen, William Sweyn, Richard Cachefreyne, Thomas Brum, Hugh Fitz Ralph.

Who upon their oath Say that, Ralph Pippard, lord of that manor, has there a small, weak, and ruined fort, which together with the messuage is worth nothing a year, he has there in demesne two ½ carucates and one quarter of a carucate, whereof there are 100 and 18 acres of arable land, of which each, with the pasture adjacent, ought to be worth in time of peace 8*d.*; but for the last ten years no profit has come from it, either to Ralph aforesaid or John of Kent, to whom Ralph previously gave the manor in fee-farm, rendering therefrom 20 marks a year; there are there certain farmers who hold 8 score acres of land in le Dyssard, rendering yearly for each acre 8*d.*; Anesus O'Flyn holds 7 acres of land in Callyth, which is a member of the manor aforesaid, rendering therefrom 2 marks a year. And Thomas Colmer holds therefrom one carucate of land of the Betagii containing 66 acres of arable land, and rendering therefrom 2 marks a year. The entire residue of the demesnes is uncultivated, except 12 acres which John of Kent sowed with wheat before he lost the manor. The vesture is very poor because the land was badly cultivated; the vesture, however, of each acre is valued at 2*s.* There are there also 8 acres in demesne of very poor meadow, whereof each acre is worth 3*d.* a year. There is there a fishery in the lake de Loghanyn, which together with the pools appertaining to the manor are yearly worth in all issues 2 marks.

William [Saunzmelle] holds of the lords of said manor 2 carucates of land in Clonmoleynam of the heir of Richard [ ] being in his minority, and ought to render to the same heir 20*s.* a year, but rarely renders anything because the land is warlike among the Irish, and the heir aforesaid held that land of the lord of the manor aforesaid, rendering suit therefrom at the court of the manor from quinzaine to quinzaine, and for scutage when it occurs, 24*d.*

And be it known that the heir aforesaid is of the age of 20 years; Henry le [ ], Robert le Clynton, and Thomas de Welles hold of said Ralph 2 carucates in Hermerdyneston equally divided between them, by similar suit and similar service for scutage. Nicholas Fitz Roger holds there of the said Ralph seven acres of land in Handeston, yearly rendering therefor 2*s.* at the feast of Easter and St. Michael by equal portions, and renders suit at the court aforesaid.

William Fitz John holds there of Ralph half a carucate of land called Molyn[heleghyn] rendering therefrom 32*d.* by equal portions at the same terms, and doing suit at the court aforesaid, but the lord receives nothing therefrom at present because the land lies uncultivated because . . . . held that land of the same William, incumbered to the same William and his heirs, to one John Fitz Richard and his heirs in an annual rent of 40*s.* And they Say that the said half carucate of land, although it were discharged, is not worth the yearly rent by 10*s.*, unless the mill, which was there but is totally ruined and destroyed, were restored.

The jurors further Say that Thomas Fitz Allure, late lord of Kynalcan, was wont to hold of Ralph aforesaid 70 carucates of land in Kynalcan by the service of three knights' fees, and doing suit at the court aforesaid until . . . sixteen years elapsed since Ralph aforesaid gave to the aforesaid . . . John of Kent, and directed Thomas aforesaid by his letters patents that he should be intentive to John aforesaid and his heirs, regarding the services thence due, but Thomas having received the letters . never attorned to [John] . . . . . And nearly two years have elapsed since . . . . first . . . . . sold the lordship to one John de Fresingfeld who still . . . . . And be it known that this land is totally in the march of warlike land, and if the suit of Kynalcan were made to the court aforesaid, then that court would be worth in all issues one half mark a year.

They also Say that the manor aforesaid is so contiguous to the Irish of Leinster and Meath that no English or peaceful man remains among them; wherefore they Say that the manor will not answer to the lord for any profit unless the lord shall apply a custody there. And they Say that this custody in time of peace, which is very rare there, would cost at least 10 marks a year, and when the neighbouring Irish are at war and the Irish of Leinster at peace this custody will cost at least 20*s.* a year; and if, on the contrary, the Irish aforesaid are at war the custody could not be carried on at 40*l.* a year.

And they Say that Ralph aforesaid . the manor of . by the service of 3 knights' fees . . . . [rendering suit at the court of Leinster] from quinzaine to quinzaine.

Indorsed.—And be it known that at the time of the making of the charter by Ralph Pipard to the K., Ralph impleaded before the 1302–3.

justices itinerant at Drogheda, in the county of Meath, John of Kent (who is in the K.'s prison at Oxford) of all the lands and tenements at Dysart, and recovered them against John by his default; these tenements as contained in the extent are in the K.'s hand by reason of Ralph's feoffment. Let the K. be advised what ought further to be done thereupon. [Q.R., Irish Exchequer, $\frac{533}{4}$. Part of the extent very faint and difficult to read.]

Hilary. 170. Writ directing John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, to send before the K. the record and process before the justiciary and the Irish Council, between Geoffrey de Geynville and Matilda his wife, and the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, respecting complaints of grievances inflicted on Geoffrey and Matilda by the Treasurer and Barons of the said Exchequer. Westminster.

Pleas at Dublin before John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, in full Exchequer in the presence of Richard de Bereford, the Treasurer, and the Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, in one month of Easter, a. r. 30, Edw. I. Complaint of the liberty of Trim having been unjustly taken into the K.'s hand, long pleading thereupon. No servant, sheriff, or minister of the K. ought to meddle with any office within the liberty, because it is without the bounds of any county, as appears by an inquisition taken by Robert de Ufford, late chief justiciary of Ireland, in order to ratify those liberties. Anselm Coterel, seneschal of the liberty, propounded certain charters of Kings of England. Richard le Blound, who sues for the K., says that the liberties propounded are in lesion of the Crown and of the K.'s dignity. The said Geoffrey and Matilda now come before the K. and his Council by Matilda's attorney, and pray that the record and process aforesaid may be recited and examined; it is thereupon found that the whole process of caption of the liberty into the K.'s hand arose from a personal trespass inflicted upon the seneschal. It seems, therefore, to the K.'s Council that the liberty was not justly taken into the K.'s hand, and that it ought to be restored. Mandate accordingly to the justiciary of Ireland. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 172, Rot. 67.]

He also had there, 9 beasts of the plough, value of each 3*s.*; twelve score sheep, value of each 6*d.*; 68 lambs, value of each 2*d.*; 6 hogs, value of each 4*d.*; 50 crannocks of wheat, value of each, by estimate, 3*s.*; 15 crannocks of oats, value of each, by estimate, 2*s.*; 8 crannocks of barley, value of each, by estimate, 2*s.*; 2 crannocks of peas, value of each 20*d.*; two pairs of old wheels, value 6*d.*

1303. [May 29.] R[ichard] Archbishop of Dublin to the K. Had received the K.'s mandate, dated Westminster, March 10, 1302–3, ordering him to cause to be sequestrated for debts to the K. all the ecclesiastical goods in the archbishop's diocese of Ralph de Manton, deceased, late clerk of the Wardrobe, and to certify the value to the K. Having made a diligent inquisition of all Ralph's goods in the precentorship of Dublin, finds in the manor and prebend of Donahmelogh 44 acres of wheat, 2 acres of barley, and 40 acres of oats sown, value of each acre 40*d.*; 210 sheep and ewes, value of each 6*d.*; 67 lambs, value of each 2*d.*; 10 beasts of the plough, value of each 5*s.*; whereof John Toujours, Ralph's steward, claims one; 6 hogs, value of each 6*d.*; 3 heaps of wheat, in which are estimated 50 crannocks, value of each 3*s.*; a heap of oats estimated to contain 20 crannocks, value of each 3*s.*; 1 heap of barley estimated to contain 12 crannocks, value of each 2*s.* 4*d.*; 4 crannocks of peas, value of each crannock 16*d.*; 2 carts, value 12*d.*; 2 ropes, value 6*d.*; 2 ploughs, value 2*s.* 3*d.*

In the manor of Ardri, 7*s.* 3*d.* of annual rent; 4 beasts of the plough, value of each 4*s.*; 29 acres of wheat, value per acre 40*d.*; 19 acres of oats, value of the acre 3*s.*; 1 cart, value 4*d.*; a plough, 16*d.*; he did not find resistance save from Sir Roger de Lees, knight, who with an armed band had violently carried away nearly 7 score of lambs after the sequestration was imposed by the K.'s and the archbishop's authority. Finds that Ralph was frequently involved in debt as well in respect of the tenth due to the Pope as of divers debts due to the archbishop and the church. Finds also, that the houses of Ralph's precentorship are falling to ruin, because he did no repairs to them while he held the precentorship. The archbishop therefore prays on behalf of himself and his church, that the Pope, he himself, and his church and the other creditors may at least be partly satisfied out of the goods found. Even if these goods should amount to 200*l.* all the creditors cannot be fully satisfied; but the archbishop will take care of what is found until further orders. Swords. April 18. 198. Edmund le Butiller of Ireland had complained that whereas he holds in fee farm of the K. 25 villatæ of land in Connaught, rendering yearly for each villata 100*s.* ; many of the villatæ had, as well during the time of Theobald his father as Theobald his brother (whose heir he is), remained uncultivated and waste, because no Englishman or Irishman would hold or inhabit them as they were subject to so great a rent. Edmund having petitioned the K. to provide for his indemnity and grant him a reduction, the K. directs John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, to cause Edmund's lands to be extended, and to certify thereupon to the K. Farfleet.

Extent taken by John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, at Loughrea in the quinzaine of the Holy Trinity, a. r. 32 [June 7, 1304]. Jurors :—Norman Fitz Ely, Geoffrey Husee, Geoffrey de Hertford, Nicholas de Hertford, John Bule, William de Hale, William Woodstock, Peter Fitz Geoffrey, John Lottyng, Simon le Graunt, Walter Laghtrath, Clement Laghtrath, Maurice le Graunt, William de la More, Richard de la More, Nicholas Cornwalys, William Osbern, Simon Goos, David Brisky, Geoffrey de Bermingham, David Bronnegan, David Kerdif, Richard Norreys, David Landa de Moynagh, William Cleer, Adam Helot, Who upon their Oath Say that the K. gave to Richard de la Rochelle, formerly justiciary of Ireland, the said 25 villatæ to hold in tail, rendering 100*s.* for each villata ; Richard could never levy the rent out of these lands, although he was then justiciary of Ireland, but the then Treasurer of Ireland deducted in payment of the rent what was wanting in it out of the fee of Richard in the office of justiciary ; after the death of Richard de la Rochelle, Philip his son and heir, who succeeded to him, could get little or nothing of the issues of these lands on account of the power of the Irish of those parts, who prostrated his castles, burned and wasted the lands. In consequence thereof the said Philip, who was cousin of Theobald le Butiller, father of Edmund et aliud recuperare non habuit nisi per ipsum Theobaldum, by licence of the K. demised the lands to Theobald le Butiller, father of Edmund, in exchange for Theobald's manor of Turvy, to hold for the life of Philip. Theobald, although of great power, could not during his life fully levy the rent by a great sum. Nor could [Theo]bald his son, brother of Edmund. The jurors Say that if war arose in those parts as it . . the greatest portion of Edmund's lands in Ireland would scarcely suffice for the defence of the lands aforesaid . . . . Whence they say distinctly that every one of the aforesaid villatæ, taking into consideration certain foreign villatæ which are of no value . . . intrinsecas que sunt meliores. [*Inq. May 7. 210. Writ to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, or his locum tenens, commanding him to inquire by the oaths of good men of the county of Kilkenny, whether it would be to the K.'s damage, as in the inquisition below.

Inquisition taken before John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, at Dublin, on Wednesday next after the feast of St. Catherine the Virgin, a. r. 32 [Nov. 27, 1303], to inquire whether it would be to the K.'s damage to grant to the Prior of Kells in Ossory, and the convent thereof, that they might have again two acres of land from William Randolf, one acre of land from Roger Cok, one acre from William Fitz Adam, one acre from John le Messer, one moiety of a carucate of land from Adam le Esker, all in Kells and acquired by the Prior and convent before the publication of the statute of mortmain. These lands were taken into the K.'s hand on account of the said acquisition.

Jurors:—William Fitz Hamo, John Fitz Simon, Jordan de Rathcashe, Owen Fitz Hugh, John Geydon, William Wynchcombe, William Fitz John, Simon Fitz William, Hamo, son of William Wulf, Roger Augevin, William Matthew, Nicholas le Muchel, who upon their oath Say that all the tenements aforesaid were anciently of the demesnes of the Prior of Kells, who enfeoffed [the following, namely] William Randalf of two acres, rendering 2*s.* a year and suit from quinzaine to quinzaine at the Prior's court, Roger Cok of one acre, William Fitz Adam of one acre, John le Messer of one acre, Hamo Fitz John a moiety of one carucate of land, which by sales came to the hands of Adam le Esker; all the tenements were in Kells. William, Roger, William, John, and Adam surrendered the lands to the Prior. All the tenants aforesaid held the tenements of the Prior by the service of 12*d.* a year for each acre of land, and doing suit from quinzaine to quinzaine at the Prior's court, excepting that Adam le Esker held a moiety of a carucate of land by the services of 22*l.* 4*d.* a year, and doing suit as above; the Prior during the whole time that the tenants held the lands was mesne between them and the Baron of Kells, who is chief lord of the fee. They further Say that it is not to the damage of the K. or of others that the Prior should again have the lands unless that the lands are of the fee of Kells in the liberty of the Earl of Gloucester of Kilkenny, where the lord of the liberty in case of felony may have the chattels of the tenants for flight, and year and waste of their tenements, &c. And they Say that to Adam le Esker, son of Adam le Esker aforesaid, there remain other lands and tenements sufficient to maintain all burdens affecting him because there remain to him five carucates of land, but the others named in the writ neither have nor had other lands, save those which they held of the Prior, and afterwards surrendered to him.

Writ to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, or his locum tenens, commanding him to take an inquiry as above, by oath of good men of the county of Kilkenny. Newcastle-upon-Tyne. April 4, 1304.

The K. therefore commands the escheator to cause the bishop to have these issues after the date of the letters patent, the bishop to answer for the expenditure incurred before the date of the letters in sowing the lands of the see or otherwise. July 3. 236. Pardon to Nicholas, Prior, and the Convent of Louth of their transgression in acquiring a rent of 32*s.* 4½*d.* in Louth, of the gift of William Hamelyn, after the publication of the statute of mortmain. July 3. 238. The K. to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland. Whereas lately on information of the mayor and citizens of Dublin that the liberty of their city had been without cause, taken into the K.'s hand by Gilbert de Arderne, keeper of the market in Ireland, the K. had commanded the justiciary to certify regarding the cause of caption. The record and process (taken as well before Gilbert as before the Prior of St. John of Jerusalem in Ireland, lately locum tenens of the justiciary, and the justiciary himself) having been considered and recited before the K.'s Council, it appeared that Gilbert wanted to exercise the office of marshalsea of the city of Dublin without the K.'s verge (the justiciary then being at Tristeldermot, which is 30 leagues distant from that city) against the custom hitherto prevailing in those parts; and that the liberty (because the mayor and citizens would not then come before Gilbert as they ought to have done to execute their office) was taken into the K.'s hand. The K. therefore commands the justiciary to restore the liberty to the mayor and citizens, to hold as before its caption, together with the issues received therefrom. Vill of St. John of Perth. to the bridge of the city, which was let, as belonging to the city, by the K.'s progenitors to the citizens, together with the city itself, to hold in fee farm of the K.'s progenitors (whereby profit accrued both to the K.'s progenitors by reason of the farm, and to the city by the fish taken by the net); and whereas the citizens enjoyed this net until Roger of Ashbourne, formerly mayor of Dublin, on requisition of the Prior of Kilmainham, without licence of the K.'s progenitors, and to their damage and that of the citizens, caused it to be removed as injurious to the fishery of the prior elsewhere on the river; and whereas the citizens had prayed the K. to cause inquiry to be made regarding the premises, for the advantage as well of the K. as of the citizens, the K. commands the justiciary by oath of good men of those parts to inquire thereupon, and to send the inquisition to the K. under the seal of the justiciary, and the seals of those by whom it shall have been taken. Vill of St. John of Perth. [Indorsed.] This writ reached the justiciary of Ireland at Dublin on April 20, a. r. 32 [1304].

The K.'s writ to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, or his locum tenens. Whereas the K. has been informed that the pavement of the city of Dublin is so destroyed and broken that passing through the city is irksome and costly to passengers. The citizens of Dublin had therefore prayed the K. to grant them customs to pave the city similar to those he had lately granted for its murage. Wishing to grant the prayers of the citizens so far as he can without prejudice to himself or others, the K. commands the justiciary to inquire by the oath of good men of those parts if it would be to the K.'s damage to grant to the citizens for five years customs such as they had for inclosing the city. [Ante, vol. IV., No. 435.] St. John of Perth. [Indorsed.] This writ arrived at Dublin on April 20, a. r. 32 [1304].

Inquisition taken at Dublin before John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, on Tuesday next after the feast of St. Mark the Evangelist, a. r. 32 [April 28, 1304], at the suit of the mayor and commonalty of the city of Dublin, by two writs of the K. Jurors:—John, son of Rirych, Walter de Kenleye, John Wodelok, Adam de Houeth, Adam de Cromelin, Richard Talbot, Bertram Abbot, Simon de Camerâ, John le Marshal, John Walensis, Maurice Baret, William le Whyte, Who upon their oath Say, that the K.'s progenitors were wont to have a net on the river Anna Liffey before the city of Dublin, with its liberties, was delivered by King John on farm to the citizens of that city, at a profit of ten pounds; afterwards the citizens of Dublin used the net to their own profit for so much. They likewise Say that a contention in the time of the Lord Edward and, a. r. 53, Hen. III. having arisen between Henry Prior of the House of St. John of Jerusalem in Ireland and the mayor and commonalty of Dublin on account of that net existing on the river, the prior and his men by force and arms broke it, whereupon the mayor and citizens went to a mill belonging to the Prior and laid it low; and so from that time no such net remained on the Anna Liffey, but was removed by the mayor and commonalty by virtue of a fine for allaying the contention between them.

The jurors further Say upon their oath that passage through all the by-ways of the city is very irksome to persons passing on horseback or on foot, that it would be to the great advantage of all the city, and of all coming thither, if the by-ways were paved, and that it would not be to the damage of the K. or of others if the K. confided the customs contained in the writ to the citizens, except only that it would be to the damage of the merchants in so far as they should pay those customs.

The K. caused his letters patent to be made to the bailiffs and good men of the city of Dublin, under the testimony of Brother William of Ross, locum tenens [of justiciary], in these words:—then follows recital of grant of murage for 5 years to the bailiffs and good men of Dublin, all as ante, Vol. IV., No. 435, except that there is a grant of one farthing murage for each two shillings' worth of merchandise not enumerated, and that the following are omitted:—each piece of foreign cloth, 1*d.; each piece of foreign linen cloth,* ½*d.; each hundred of canvas,* ½*d.; each weigh of fat,* ½*d.; each ship laden with the weight of* 40 hogsheads of wine for sale anywhere, 16*s.* Tested by William de Ross, Prior of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem in Ireland, locum tenens of chief justiciary. The K. therefore commands the sheriff to supersede, until the quinzaine of St. Michael next ensuing, the demand which he makes against Joan, who was the wife of Peter son of Geoffrey de Geynville, regarding the 223*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, by reason of lands and tenements being in the hands of Joan, of the gift of Geoffrey. 1303. Michaelmas. 255. Writ directing John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, to cause to come before the K., if judgment had been rendered, the record and process of a plaint before Simon de Ludgate and his associates, late justices of the Common Pleas, Dublin, between Simon de Feypo and Theobald de Verdun of that the latter had committed waste of the houses, woods, and gardens of Santry, which he held in custody of the inheritance of said Simon.

Pleas at Dublin before John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, in one month of Easter, a. r. 30.

Pleas at Dublin in the quinzaine of Trinity, a. r. 28, before Simon de Ludgate and his associates, justices of the Common Pleas, Dublin. Simon de Feypo complains that Theobald de Verdun committed waste and destruction of a hall worth 20*l.* by permitting it to fall, and by carrying away timber; thence also waste and destruction of a chamber worth 20 marks, of a stable worth 10 marks, of a bakery worth 10 marks, of a granary worth 10 marks, of another chamber worth 20*l.*, of another stable worth 10 marks, of 200 apple trees worth 20*l.*, 100 pear trees worth 10*l.*, of 30,000 great ash trees worth 200*l.*, 1,000 large alder trees worth 60*l.*; whereby Simon is damnified to the extent of 2,000*l.* Theobald comes and defends the force and injury, and says that he did not commit the waste wherewith he is charged; that he took in the wood there 12 ash trees and 12 alder trees, while Simon was in his custody, as he was permitted to do; that he committed no other waste; and thereupon he puts himself upon the country, and Simon the same.

Wherefore the sheriff is ordered to go to the manor of Santry; cause a jury of 12 men to come thither, &c., and in presence of the parties inquire, &c.

Pleas before the same on the morrow of St. Martin. The parties come, and Theobald by his attorney says that in so arduous an affair the inquisition ought to be taken before the justices of the Common Pleas and not the sheriff; and Simon complains that the sheriff is a bosom friend of Theobald, in his apparel and his pay, and demands that a proper officer be associated with him to take the inquisition. He is, therefore, ordered to associate with him the keepers of the pleas of the Crown of Fingal, and inquire, &c.

Theobald complained that the sheriff and keepers had taken the inquisition by parties open to suspicion and far from the venue, to wit, of Leinster; the sheriff was therefore directed to take with him, with consent of the parties, Simon de Ludgate and Thomas de Snytery, justices of the Common Pleas, and go to the manor, summon a jury, and in presence of the parties, &c., if, &c.

On the quinzaine of St. Martin the parties come. The sheriff had at another time, to wit, at the quinzaine of Michaelmas last past, sent the inquisition, which says that after the death of Richard de Feypou, who holds the manor of Santry in capite of Theobald aforesaid, Theobald entered the manor by reason of the minority of Richard, son and heir of Richard aforesaid, who was, as it were, in his custody, at which time Theobald and his men committed waste in the houses, gardens, and woods, to the damage of 100*s.* This Richard, thus in custody of Theobald, died under age. After the death of Richard, son and heir of Richard, Simon aforesaid, brother and heir of Richard son of Richard, remained in custody of Theobald until his lawful age. The jury says upon their oath that Simon was in custody of Theobald, and that Theobald and his men committed waste in the houses, gardens, and woods which he had in his cnstody of Simon's inheritance, to the amount of 62*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* Wherefore it is adjudged that Simon recover against Theobald the damages aforesaid according to the form of the statute in triplicate, and Theobald is amerced for the trespass. Order to the sheriff for execution.

Assignment of error by Theobald; traverse of error by Simon, and reversal of judgment by the court. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 175, Rot. 76.]

David, precentor, John, treasurer, Charles, archdeacon, Isaac, chancellor, and Benedict, Matthew, Thomas, and Maurice, canons of that church, elected Maurice O'Brien; and the other brothers and canons discordantly elected the dean of that church [Cashel ?]. be made to them for debts due by the K.), to be before the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer at York on the morrow of All Souls next ensuing, to render an account of the issues of the custom; and whereas the Treasurer and Barons in accounting with the citizens cannot ascertain how much will remain due to the citizens of the sum in which the K. was bound to them, unless they are informed by the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, how much the keepers and receivers of the custom on the part of the citizens in Ireland have received of the issues of the custom; the K. therefore commands the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, to cause the keepers and receivers to come before them, and accounting with them until the feast of St. Andrew [Nov. 30] next ensuing, to certify the Treasurer and Barons of England under the seal of the Dublin Exchequer how much was received by them of the issues of the custom in Ireland, allowing to the keepers and receivers their reasonable expenses as they were wont to allow to foreign merchants, keeping that custom in times gone by. Witness the Treasurer. [Memoranda, L.T.R., 31–32 Edw. I., Rot. 58.]

Nov. 25. 271. The K. to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland. Whereas among the lands which the K. by charter had long ago given to Otho de Grandison, the K. had granted to him in fee the services payable to the K. by the tenants out of the manor of Rathcon and the vill of Carryk in the counties of Tipperary and Waterford. The K. having acquired the manor and vill from the tenants thereof, and the services having been subtracted from Otho during the whole time that the K. held the manor and vill. The K. wishes to be certified what services were wont to be rendered to Otho out of the manor and vill before the K. acquired them, and what the services may be yearly worth. The K. commands the justiciary by oath of good men to inquire regarding the premises. Dunfermline.

Inquisition taken at Clonmel before John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, by the K.'s mandate, on Monday next after the octaves of the Nativity of St. John the Baptist, a. r. 32 [July 6, 1304], to inquire as above. Jurors:—Sir Walter le Bret, Sir Thomas de St. John, knights, Geoffrey Fitz Elias de White, Richard le Marshal, Robert de Walour, Richard Malorek', Reginald de London, John de London, Ralph Bured', William Fitz David, Henry Haket de Geel, Richard de Boyton, Nicholas de Stafford, Roger Turbreville, Who upon their oath Say, that Richard de Geyton in his lifetime held the manor of Rathcon of Otho de Grandison by the service of 26*s.* 8*d.*, as often as the K.'s service was proclaimed, and doing suit at Otho's court of Kylfeclal as often as a court was held there. On the death of Richard, Ralph his brother and heir entered the manor to hold of Otho as aforesaid, and before the feast of St. Peter ad Vincula, a. r. 24 [Aug. 1, 1296], sold it to the K., whereby the K. obtained the manor for 3 years ensuing. And they Say that within the 3 years aforesaid the K.'s service was proclaimed at Combre in the time of John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, so that the service was subtracted during that time, and also the suit of court with other issues, to the damage of Otho of 40*s.*, besides the service. Afterwards the K. demised the manor of Rathcon to Geoffrey le Bret in exchange for Carrig, so that Geoffrey held the manor of Rathcon from Otho by suits and services, as his tenants had previously held it before the K.'s entry. And they Say, that Geoffrey le Bret held the vill and lands del Carrig, in the county of Tipperary, of Otho aforesaid, by the service of 26*s.* and 8*d.* at every K.'s service, and doing suit at [Otho's] court of Kilselan. Soon after the feast of the Nativity of St. John the Baptist, a. r. 27 [June 24, 1299], Geoffrey demised the vill and his lands of Carrig in exchange for the manor of Rathcon, whereupon the K. held the vill and lands of Carrig for 5 years ensuing and still holds them. Within this time three services were proclaimed, which were subtracted by the K.'s minister, and also the suit and other issues were withdrawn by the same to the loss of Otho of 40*s.* a year, besides the service aforesaid when it occurs. And they Say, that if those services with the suit and other issues of the lands of Carrig be subtracted from Otho, he should then incur a loss of 40*s.* a year, besides the service proclaimed.

Indorsed. It behoveth newly to inquire regarding the services due out of the tenements within written distinctly, aptly, and specially, and not generally, how much each service is yearly worth by itself, and of all particulars, specially and not generally, from what time the services were subtracted, &c.

Jurors.—Adam Manning, Henry Leynach, John le Blund, of the vill of Cavan, John Janel, Luke le Marischal, Thomas Bond, [ ] de Mone, Richard le Chamberlain, Walter Marchant, John de Mone, Walter le Chamberlain, David Wyse, Who upon their oath Say that Adam son of Philip Bennet, who infeoffed Gilbert aforesaid of 1 messuage and 1 carucate of land in Collan, held the tenements aforesaid of the K. in capite by the service of 1 lb. of pepper and 1 lb. of cumin, or 14*d.* a year, doing suit at the K.'s court of Tristeldermot; and they say it would not be to the damage of the K. or of others that Gilbert should hold the lands by the service aforesaid as Adam held it, because Gilbert would be a more useful tenant for the K. than Adam. And they Say that if Adam had not sold the tenements to Gilbert, he would have sold them to some one else. They further Say that the messuage and land are worth in all issues 71*s.* a year.

The K.'s writ to John Wogan, justiciary, and Richard de Bereford, Treasurer of Ireland, or their locum tenentes. Whereas the K. had recently sent them an inquisition (as above), and had commanded them to accept a fine from Gilbert for his transgression in acquiring and entering the messuage and land without licence. As they had done nothing thereupon, the K. now repeats his order. Walsingham, Feb. 2, a. r. 33 [1304–5].

Indorsed.—Gilbert le Palmer made a fine of 10 marks before John Wogan, the justiciary, and Thomas de Chaddeworth, locum tenens of the Treasurer of Ireland, in the Exchequer, Dublin, in the octaves of the Holy Trinity, with the assent of the Barons, and in the presence of others of the Council. No other writ came. Wherefore this writ with the Inquisition is delivered to Gilbert to be conveyed to the K., and be it known that the fine aforesaid is inrolled in the rolls of the justiciary of the same term.

Petition to the K. and council from Gilbert le Palmer. Philip Benet held a messuage and a carucate of land near Tristeldermot in the county of Kildare. Thither came Richard de Gaitone, clerk of Alienor, Queen of England, and ejected the said Philip from the messuage and land. Whereupon Philip took out a writ of Novel Disseisin against Richard before John de Saunford, formerly Archbishop of Dublin, locum tenens of the chief justiciary of Ireland. To this writ Richard pleaded that Philip ought not to be answered, because he was an Irishman. Philip said he was English, and put himself upon a jury, which found that Philip was English, was held as such all his life, and died seized of this estate. After his death Adam, son and heir of Philip, took out a writ in the K.'s Irish chancery, commanding the escheator to inquire of whom Philip held the land at his death, and who was his next heir. It was thereupon found that Adam was next heir, and of age and that Philip held the messuage and land at his death of the Queen aforesaid. Gilbert afterwards purchased the messuage and land from Adam without the K.'s licence, upon which they were taken into the K.'s hand. Gilbert thereupon took out a writ to John Wogan, chief justiciary of Ireland, that he should cause the record and process to come to England. Whereupon he had a writ to the said justiciary to inquire if it would be to the K.'s damage that Gilbert should hold the premises of the K. in capite, whereupon it was found as in the inquisition above. But as to his having purchased the tenements without licence [the K. sent his writ to the justiciary and treasurer to take a fine from Gilbert for the transgression. The fine was received and inrolled in the Exchequer of Dublin. Wherefore Gilbert prays that the K. would by his charter confirm his estate.

Indorsed:—Afterwards he made a fine; let him satisfy it and have the lands. [Inq. P.M., 32 Edw. I., No. 98.]

Easter. 301. John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, or his locum tenens, had been commanded that, because the K. had caused to come before the K. a record and process of an assise of Novel Disseisin lately in the K.'s court, before the justiciary in Dublin, between Thomas de Bodinham, complainant, and Thomas de Rathlawe, Alexander de Bodynham, and Hugh de Trikyngham, of tenements in Nevet and Thoman [ante, 30–31 Edw. I., Michs.], he should summon Thomas to come before the K. in one month of Easter to hear the record and process, and further to do what the court should order, &c. The justiciary returned that Thomas was dead. Wherefore the justiciary was commanded to summon Cecily, daughter and heir of Thomas, Adam Coffyn, Scholastica his wife, and Nicholas de Wotton, tenants of the lands, to appear before the K. in the quinzaine of Michaelmas. The [heirs] of the Barons of Naas render to John the service of three knights' fees for a fourth part of the barony of Naas. Item, Peter de Bermingham for [Sohydan] in Leys renders a service of one knight's fee. Item, the heirs of Bartholomew de Sakevile render a fourth part of one knight's fee for Rathimadon in Ossor' [?]. Item, the heirs of Philip Fitz Henry for the vill [Molendini], near Alwyn, render him a service of half a knight's fee. The heirs of William le Blund for Brigard, in Carbry, render him a service of a third part of a knight's fee. The heir of Peter le Blund for Balimany render the service of a fourth part of a knight's fee. At Kildare John had a watermill for his purparty by extent at 10*l.*, which for a long time has been prostrate and destroyed, and is worth nothing.

The jurors Say that Edmund de Mortimer ought yearly to receive from the manor aforesaid of Grange Mohun [3*s.* ?] 1*d.*, because John by so much exceeded the purparty of Edmund.

They further Say that John has at le Combre, in the county of Dublin, on the confines of the counties of Dublin and Kildare, a moiety of 1 villata in Disertneny, a moiety of 1 villata of land in Dernegelagh, excepting an eighth part of the said moiety, a moiety of a fourth part of 1 villata in Architmokitleg, a fourth part of 1 villata in Achitdufyn, a fourth part of 1 villata in Balilena, and a moiety of 1 villata in Lowyn, excepting an eighth part of this moiety. And so he holds in the aforesaid vills 2 villate of land, which were wont to be worth in time of peace 7*l.* 0*s.* 16½*d.* a year, and in time of war nothing, because the issues do not suffice for a moiety of Writ to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, commanding him to extend the manor of John de Mohun, of Grange Mohun, in the county of Kildare. Stepney. May 10, a. r. 27.

Pleas at Dublin before Edmund le Butler and others of the K.'s council there present, Richard de Burgh, Earl of Ulster, being associated with them. Quinzaine of Hilary, a. r. 33 [1304–5].

Writ to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, Linlithgow, Aug. 15, 1304 (as above). By virtue of this writ Edmund le Butler, locum tenens of the justiciary, caused it to be recited in full council, and it seemed to all that it would be to less damage of the K., as to all the places in Ireland, if the K. should grant to John the K.'s tenements at New Castle Mc Kinegan, where there is a very weak and small castle in a strong march; or that the K. would please to give him the lands which belonged to John de Mohun, whereof the greater part is in the land of peace; and it was agreed that the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, should extend the K.'s tenements at Newcastle. The extent was made and delivered to Edmund in these words. First extent, as above [Feb. 9, 1304–5], taken before the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer. And it was agreed that the tenements which belonged to John de Mohun should not be extended because they had been extended elsewhere before John Wogan, the justiciary, according to their true value, and if they were extended anew they might be extended at less than they had been before. The transcript of the extent taken thereupon, which remains in the Exchequer, is sent to the K. as follows:—

Extent taken before John Wogan of all the lands and tenements of John de Mohun in the county Kildare in the confines of said county and the county of Dublin on Friday next after the Nativity of St. John the Baptist, a. r. 27, ante, Vol IV., p. 566, and above 2nd Inquisition. Whereas the K. had lately commanded him to cause all the money arising from the tenth imposed on the clergy of England by Pope Boniface VIII. for 3 years to be arrested until further orders, and had further commanded that all the money so arrested be delivered to merchants and others for the K.'s affairs; the K. now commands that the money be freed from arrest, in order that what the K. had ordered might be done regarding it. Cocking.

Whereas the K. had lately commanded him to cause the tenth imposed on the clergy of England for 3 years then collected, to be arrested until further orders, and that all the money arrested should be paid to merchants and others for the K.'s affairs, the K. orders that he cause the money to be freed from arrest in order that it may be applied as directed. Cocking.

June 17. 421. The K. to Master William de Hotham and Guy de Vikio, parson of the church of Hese, collectors of the tenth of the clergy of Ireland, imposed by Pope Boniface VIII. for 3 years. Whereas by letters obligatory the K. is bound to John Grandon, Matthew Clarissimi, and Gerard Hugon', merchants of the company of Spini, of Florence, in 1,000 marks sterling, which they had paid by the K.'s orders to the Venerable Father Walter de Wynterburne, cardinal priest, for his expenses and other necessaries touching the state of the cardinalate, as appears by the cardinal's letters of receipt. The K. therefore commands William and Guy that out of the moneys of the tenth levied by them they pay the 1,000 marks to the said merchants or their attorney, receiving from them or him the K.'s letters aforesaid and letters of acquittance. Chichester. [Close, 33 Edw. I., m. 11.]

June 16. 422. The K. to the Treasurer and Chamberlains of the Exchequer, Dublin. Whereas the K. had committed to John de Seleby the office of doorkeeper of that Exchequer, to hold during his life and during good behaviour; the K. commands the Treasurer and Chamberlains to pay to John one penny and one halfpenny a day for his wages, according to the tenour of an indenture regarding fees of ministers of that Exchequer, one part of which indenture is preserved in the Exchequer of England and the other in the Exchequer of Dublin. Witness myself. Chichester. [Q.R., Irish Exchequer, $\frac{5}{11}\frac{3}{3}$ A., No. 81.]

June 16. 423. The K. to William de Hothum, canon of St. Patrick's, Dublin, and Guy de Wykyo, parson of the church of Hese, collectors of the tenth imposed on the clergy of Ireland by the K.'s assent for 3 years by the late Pope Boniface VIII. Whereas the Pope had lately granted to the K. for arduous and urgent affairs one moiety of that tenth, the other moiety being reserved in aid of the church of Rome, if the Pope should survive the 3 years; and if the Pope should happen to die within the term, or peace should be renewed regarding the war touching Sicily, from that time he granted that all the residue should be applied to the K.'s use. And whereas the K. has learned that William and Guy, on pretext of vain and frivolous excuses of certain ecclesiastical persons regarding the Pope's death and the revocation of the commission, had superseded the levy and collection of the tenth to the K.'s loss: and whereas Master Gerardus de Pecoraria, proctor for collecting the tenth, had expressly revoked everything that had been done in this matter, as well in England as Ireland. Wherefore the K. (inasmuch as the tenth is wholly due to him by virtue of the grant) commands William and Guy, by virtue of their allegiance, to compel all ecclesiastical persons of whatsoever dignity in Ireland, by sentences of excommunication, suspension, and interdict, and by sequestration of their goods, to pay the amount of tenth so in arrear. They shall certify to the justiciary of Ireland and the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin, the names of those who do not pay, in order that they may be proceeded against. Chichester.

I.*, pt. 1, m. 27.]

June 17. 425. The K. to R[ichard] Archbishop of Dublin. Whereas Pope Boniface VIII., deceased, had granted to the K. for urgent affairs touching him and the kingdom, a moiety of the tenth imposed on the clergy of England and Ireland for 3 years, the other moiety being reserved in aid of the church if the Pope survived during the 3 years, and if he died during that time, or peace were renewed in the war of Sicily, thenceforth he granted the whole residue to the K.'s use. The K. was now informed that Master William de Hothum, canon of the church of St. Patrick's, Dublin, and Guy de Vikio, parson of the church of Hese, collectors of the tenth in Ireland, on pretext of frivolous excuses of certain ecclesiastical persons of the death of the Pope, and because Master Gerard de Pecoaria (who asserted that he had been appointed by the Pope's envoy to collect the said money) revoked the commission made to them by the Bishop of London and Master Bartholomew de Ferentino, canon of London, principal collectors of the tenth in England and Ireland; and whereas Master Gerard had revoked all that had been done in this respect in England and Ireland, as appears by a public instrument sent to William and Guy. Wherefore the K. commands the Archbishop of Dublin, by ecclesiastical censure or otherwise, to be intentive, aiding, and consulting, to William and Guy in levying the tenth. If the tenth is not quickly levied in the archbishop's diocese the K. will cause the money to be levied out of the archbishop's goods and temporalities.

June 24. 430. Letters of attorney, under the names of Peter de Todyngton and Henry Grey of St. Alban's, for Richard de Burgh, Earl of Ulster, remaining in Ireland by licence. Lewes. [Pat., 33 Edw. I., pt. 2, m. 19.]

Trinity. 431. Writ to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, or his locum tenens. Whereas a plaint before the justiciary without the K.'s writ between Geoffrey de Morton, late Mayor of the city of Dublin, and Richard de Bereford, Treasurer of the Exchequer, Dublin, regarding trespasses and grievances inflicted on Geoffrey by the Treasurer and Barons, and also another plaint of trespasses and grievances inflicted on the same by the same, had met with lengthy delay, the K. commands the justiciary to proceed to judgment regarding those plaints, and if any difficulty should occur regarding them to certify the K. or send the record and process of them before him by the quinzaine of the Purification next ensuing. By virtue of this writ the justiciary sent the record and process of divers plaints by Geoffrey before the K.'s council in Ireland. Geoffrey being solemnly called did not come or prosecute his plaints. Wherefore Geoffrey without day. After Geoffrey was taken before the K. by the Marshal on the morrow of St. John the Baptist, a. r. 34, and arraigned of 20 hogsheads of wine forfeited to the use of the K., as was said by reason of the unloading of 13 hogsheads of wine at Dalkey without prisage being paid there, in which ship those 20 hogsheads of wine were, as appears in the 12th article of Geoffrey's complaints.

In the Treasurer's answer he says that according to the custom of those parts all merchants with ships laden with wine passing from Dalkey towards Dublin may discharge the ships of a portion of the wines in order to lighten the ships without paying prisage thereupon, provided they satisfy the K. for the prisage in Dublin or the precinct of its liberty, and he says that satisfaction for the prisage of 13 hogsheads of wine was made at Karnan within the precinct of the liberty of Dublin, and this he prays may be inquired of. Mandate to John Wogan to inquire in presence of Geoffrey regarding the custom and the payment of prisage, and certify to the K. John Wogan sent the inquisition taken before him at Dublin on Friday next before the feast of St. Andrew the Apostle. The jury says that no large ships laden with wines or other merchandise can touch at the port of Dublin until they are partly discharged, whereby, according to a custom which has hitherto prevailed, ships laden with wines were wont to touch at Dalkey and there partly discharge, and the wines so discharged were wont to be conveyed to the city of Dublin in small barks without payment of prisage, and after the discharge the ships, with the residue of the wines, were wont to touch at Carnan, which is within the precinct of the city, and then the collector of the prisage was wont to take it either of the wines left in the ship or the wines discharged, whether they were in cellars or not; provided that there should be no sale without licence from the collector of prisage. Geoffrey de Morton sold no wines without payment of prisage. A day is given to Geoffrey in one month of Easter to hear judgment as well on the verdict of the Inquisition as his leaving in contempt. Mainprise for Geoffrey, as it does not appear whether the inquisition was taken in presence of the Treasurer. Mandate to the justiciary to certify in the quinzaine of St. Martin, a.r. 1 Edw. II., on which day the justiciary certified that the inquisition was taken in the Exchequer of Dublin in the presence of Richard de Bereford, the Treasurer, and the Barons of the Exchequer. Wherefore Geoffrey is acquitted. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 182, Rot. 53 dors.]

July 1. 432. Writ of Liberate to the Treasurer and Chamberlains of the Exchequer, Dublin, for payment to Henry de Thrapston, keeper of writs and rolls of C.P., Dublin, of 50*s.*, from Dec. 16, a. r. 33 [1304], until June 15 next ensuing, to wit, for half a year, in payment of his yearly fee of 100*s.* Witness, J[ohn] Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, Dublin. Original. [Q.R., Irish Exchequer, $\frac{5\,3\,3}{11}$ A., No. 49.]

July 1. 433. Writ of Liberate to the Treasurer and Chamberlains of Dublin, for payment to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, of 176*l.* 14*s.* 6¾*d.* from May 24, a. r. 33 [1305] until Sept. 29 next ensuing to wit, for 129 days, in part payment of his yearly fee of 500*l.* Witness the justiciary aforesaid. Dublin. [Q.R., Irish Exchequer, $\frac{5\,3\,3}{11}$ A., No. 74.]

July 2. 434. Writ of Liberate to the Treasurer and Chamberlains of Dublin for payment to Peter de Bermengeham of 100*l.* granted to him by the justiciary and council of Ireland, with consent of Richard de Burgh, Earl of Ulster, and Geoffrey de Genville, to subdue Irish felons of Offaly, of the race of Oconoghors, and to decapitate the chiefs of the same race; Peter had already sent to Dublin the heads of Moriardagh and Malmorthe Oconoghors, chiefs of the race aforesaid, and also 16 heads of others of the same race, and their accomplices. Witness, J[ohn] Wogan, justiciary of Ireland. Dublin. [Q.R., Irish Exchequer, $\frac{5\,3\,3}{11}$ B., No. 301.]

July 3. 435. Writ of Liberate to the Treasurer and Chamberlains of Dublin, for payment to Richard de Exon, keeper of the castle of Roscommon, of 30*l.*, from April 29, a. r. 33 [1305], until Oct. 30 next ensuing, to wit, for one half year, in full payment of his yearly fee of 60*l.* Witness, J[ohn] Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, Dublin. Original. [Q.R., Irish Exchequer, $\frac{5\,3\,3}{11}$ A., No. 7.]

July 4. 436. Writ to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, directing him to inquire by the oath of good men of those parts whether it would be to the K.'s damage to give licence to Richard de Burgh, Earl of Ulster, to grant to 24 chaplains 40 librates of lands and rents in Loghre and Typerbryde, and the advowsons of the churches of Loghre, of St. Nicholas, of Knocfergus, Greencastle, Balliboun, Duncros, Loghkel, Portros, and Typerbryde, the chaplains to offer, in a chapel at Loghre and Typerbryde to be newly built, divine service daily for the soul of the earl and the souls of his ancestors; to hold to the chaplains and their successors for ever. Provided that the chaplains may appropriate the churches and convert them to their own uses for ever.

Inquisition, pursuant to the writ taken at Tristeldermot before John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, on the quinzaine of St. Michael, a. r. 33 [1305]. Jurors:—Walter de Valle, Richard du Lyt, John de Staunton, William Gaynard, William and Walter Haket, knights, Adam le Poer, Michael de Kerdyf, Hamo Fitz Thomas, Philip Fitz Adam, Geoffrey Husee, Stephen le Bronde, William le Waleys, Nicholas le Hore, of the earldom of Connaught. Who upon their oath Say that Typerbride and Loghree are distant about 30 leagues from each other, and it would be much to the advantage of the K. and the whole [country] if a chantry of this kind were founded in one or other of the places, if for no other reason, for the teaching of children in those parts where learning is too scarce. And as to the 40 librates of land in Loghre and Typerbride, and the advowsons of churches of their manors, They Say that it is not to the damage of the K. or of others that the K. should grant in the form aforesaid, unless in the case of escheat or in the time of custody by minority of an heir, when the K. should lose the custody of the land and his presentation of the churches if vacant at the time of the custody, because the earl holds each of the above manors with all his other lands in Connaught, which are worth more than 1,000*l.*, of the K. in capite by the service of 20 knights' fees and a rent of 500 marks a year. And they Say that the church of Loghre is yearly worth 20*l.*, and the church of Typerbride six marks a year, and besides his lands in Connaught there remain to the earl in Meath, Ulster, Leinster, and Munster more than one thousand librates of land, which he holds of the K. in capite. But of the churches of St. Nicholas of Knocfergus, Greencastle, Balybony, Doucros, Loghkel, and Portros, which are in Ulster very far from Connaught, they Say that they [know] nothing. [Inq. P.M., 33 Edw. I., No. 177.]

July 13. 437. The K. to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, or his locum tenens. Richard de Burgh, Earl of Ulster, [has shown] to the K. that whereas O'Conor, an Irishman (who had perpetrated many enormities in the earl's land of Connaught), holds to farm of the K. certain land in Connaught, called Scilmorthy, adjacent to the earl's lands; the earl prays that the K. would give him or any other Englishman that land, rendering so much as the Irishman rendered, or the value of the land in exchange. The K., desiring to grant the earl's petition, commands the justiciary to inquire by oath of good men whether the K. can without injury enfeoff the earl or another Englishman of the land, how much it is worth a year, &c. Wymelyngwelde.

Inquisition taken as above at Tristeldermot before John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, on the quinzaine of Michaelmas, a. r. 33. Jurors:—Robert Gent, Matthew Dreu, Stephen Talry, John Flemeng, Nicholas Folejambe, of the land of Scilmurthy, Jordan de Exon, John de Staunton, Richard de Lyt, William Gaynard, knights of the earldom of Connaught, Walter de Rydelesford, Michael de Kerdyf, Adam le Poer, Philip Fitz Adam, Stephen le Proude of the same earldom, Walter le Bret, William de St. Leger, Richard le Waleys, knights of the county of Tipperary, John son of Ryrych, William de Grafton, John del Alne, knights of the county of Louth, William Serle, Ralph Serle, Peter Muriel, John le Keu of the same county, Richard Gernoun, Henry de Crues of the county of Meath, Richard de Valle, knight of the county of Tipperary, and John Coterler of the county of Meath. Aug. 18. 441. The K. to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland. The church of St. Patrick in Down being lately vacant by the death of N[icholas] bishop of that see, the K., on the prayer of the Prior and Convent of Down, had granted to them that they might elect another bishop, with power to the justiciary to give the royal assent when election made, and when the elect should be presented to him, and on confirmation to deliver the temporalities. The election of Master Tnomas Ketel, parson of the church of Lesmoghan, having been confirmed as bishop, the royal assent given by the justiciary in lieu of the K., and the election was confirmed by the Dean and Chapter of Armagh, custodians of that archbishopric during vacancy. Nevertheless the justiciary had deferred restoring the temporalities because he had not proof of confirmation by letters of the Archbishop of Armagh. The K. therefore commands the justiciary that if the see of Armagh be vacant and the election duly confirmed by the custodians, he may then take fealty from the elect and restore the temporalities from the date of proof of the confirmation. Raureth. [Close, 33 Edw. I., m. 7.]

Sept. 6. 443. The K. to the collectors of the tenth of the clergy of Ireland, granted by the late Pope Boniface VIII. for 3 years. Whereas, on the requisition of R[ichard] Archbishop of Dublin, the K. had given him respite until the ensuing feast of the Nativity of St. John the Baptist of the demand made against him for moneys of that tenth in which he is bound. The K. therefore commands the collectors to cause the archbishop to have that respite. Lanfare. [Close, 33 Edw. I., m. 7.]

Sept. 16. 444. The K. to Henry le Marshall and John le Dicer, burgesses of Dublin. Whereas the K. had assigned William Trente, his cupbearer, to audit the accounts of the collectors and receivers of the new custom of wines in England and Ireland, and to receive the money arising from the custom, and whereas William had deputed Henry and John to act for him, the K. commands the latter so to act in regard to the deputation that the K. may not incur loss. Havering. [Pat., 33 Edw. I., pt. 2, m. 12.]

Sept. 24. 445. The K. to Richard de Bereford, Treasurer of the Exchequer, Dublin. Having by letters patent assigned William Trente, the K.'s cupbearer, to receive the money arising from the new custom of wines in England and Ireland, he to answer therefor in the Wardrobe, the K. commands the Treasurer to pay all the money of the custom to the same William or to Robert Bataille whom he had attorned. Westminster. [Close, 33 Edw. I., m. 6.]

Michaelmas. 446. Mandate to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland. Whereas John de Bruges, some time bailiff of Otho de Grandison in Ireland, acknowledged before Ralph de Sandwich, late custos of the city of London, and John de Banguelle, deputy receiver of recognizances of debts in that city, that he owed to Otto 200*l.*, whereof he ought to have paid at the feast of the Purification, a. r. 19, 50 marks, at the feast of the Nativity of St. John the Baptist next ensuing, 50 marks, and so on from year to year until the 200*l.* should be discharged. The money not having been paid the justiciary is directed to issue a scire facias to Master Thomas Cantok, Richard de Val, Walter le Bret, Jordan Comyn, William de Bruges, Thomas de St. John, Reginald de London, John Baret, Master Philip Haket, and Thomas Picot, tenants of the lands, which were of the said John, to be before the K. in one month of Michaelmas, to show why Otto should not have seisin of the lands which belonged to John on the day of the recognizance according to the form of the statute. The justiciary certified that he had caused a scire facias to issue to Master Thomas and the others. Master Thomas and Thomas Picot say nothing why Otto should not have seisin of the lands of John aforesaid. Wherefore John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, is directed to deliver to Otto aforesaid all the lands which were of the said John on the day when the debt was acknowledged, to hold according to the form of the statute; and to certify to the K. in the quinzaine of Michaelmas. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 183, Rot. 56.]

Michaelmas. 447. The K.'s writ to Thomas Cantok, Chancellor of Ireland, commanding him to appear before the K. and Council in the ensuing Parliament to answer to Richard Nugent for ejecting him from the prebend of Tagmon (during vacancy of the see of Ferns by the death of Richard late Bishop of Ferns). Westminster, April 10, a. r. 33 [1305]. The chancellor appears and says that he holds the prebend, and that he had entry therein in a due and legitimate manner by the commissary of the Archbishop of Dublin, then locum tenens of the Ordinary, at the time of the last vacancy of the see of Ferns and this he is prepared to verify. The Archbishop of Dublin is therefore ordered to certify to the K. at the next Parliament after Easter how the chancellor holds the prebend, by whom and by whose presentation he had entry therein, and from what time and also whether Master Richard was ever in possession of the prebend, and for what cause he was removed therefrom. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 183, Rot. 75 dors.]

Michaelmas. 448. Robert de Halliwell arraigned before K. and his Council, and inculpated for having led a multitude of armed men into Otho de Grandison's vill of Tipperary, by which leading divers contentions arose in the vill in which 6 men of Otho were killed, and afterwards malefactors led by Robert aforesaid attracted and collected a large multitude, and burned, destroyed, and sacked Otho's land, and also the K.'s lands, to wit, in the county of Tipperary and Limerick, to the K.'s damage of 10,000*l.* and against the peace (comes and says that he ought not to answer here and there, for he says that at another time in Ireland, before John de Wogan, chief justiciary of Ireland, he was arraigned on all the premises, and before the same duly acquitted, and of this he puts himself on the record of the said justiciary.) The latter is therefore commanded to search the rolls and certify to the K. in the next Parliament after Easter. Let the same Robert in the meantime be kept in custody. The said Robert gives bail for his appearance at the next Parliament. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 183, Rot. 75 dors.]

Whereas the Pope aforesaid had liberally granted to the K. for arduous and urgent affairs of the kingdom a moiety of the tenth aforesaid, and had reserved the other moiety in aid of the church, if he survived during the said term of three years; but if he died within the three years, or chanced to renew peace in the war waged regarding Sicily, that then thenceforth he granted the entire residue of the tenth for the King's use; and whereas the K. had afterwards learned that the said William and Guy (who had been assigned by R[ichard] late Bishop of London and Bartholomew de Ferentino principal collectors of the tenth in England and Ireland), on pretext of some vain and frivolous excuses, alleged that they were not bound to collect the tenth; the K. had therefore commanded that all ecclesiastical persons should be compelled to make payment of it, and that the names of those not paying should be certified to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, and the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, Dublin. 485. Writ to John de Ponte, justice assigned. Whereas Richard Fitz Robert, by judgment of court and recognition of assize of Novel Disseisin before Thomas de Sniterby, John son of Riry, and Simon de Ludgate, justices assigned, between Richard aforesaid and Master William de la Ryvere, had recovered against the said William his seisin of one messuage and 4 carucates of land in the vill of Platyn, and afterwards on the prosecution of the said William the K. had ordered the record and process to come before him, when the judgment was annulled for error, and it was further adjudged that William aforesaid should recover his seisin of the tenements aforesaid. Nigel le Brun was enfeoffed by Richard aforesaid of a part of the tenements aforesaid while the cause was pending. In an assize of Novel Disseisin of that part against the same William, who by force and effect of the judgment rendered before the K. had recovered his seisin of the tenements aforesaid, it was alleged that William had recovered his seisin by judgment of the K.'s court, nevertheless John and his associates had proceeded to judgment, to take the assize and adjudicate seisin to Nigel, to the invalidation of the judgment rendered before the K. The K. therefore commands the justice to send before the K. for error the record and process of that assize with the original writ, &c., so that the K. may have them before him in the octaves of the Purification of the Blessed Virgin. The justice shall until further orders supersede the judgment so far as damages adjudged to Nigel are concerned. Brustwick, 14th November, a. r. 33. By virtue of this writ John aforesaid sent the record and process in these words:—

Pleas of assize at Drogheda towards Meath before John de Ponte and William le Deveneys, justices assigned, on the morrow of St. Lawrence, Aug. 11, a. r. 32 [1304]. The assise comes to recognize if Master William de la Ryvere and Richard Fitz Robert unjustly disseised Nigel le Brun of one messuage and 16 score acres of land of his free tenement in Platyn.

The said Richard Fitz Robert does not come. The sheriff returns that he was not attached because he was not found. Let the assize against him be taken by default. The said Master William de la Ryvere does not come, but Roger Curteys, his bailiff, comes, and says that the assize ought not to be, because at another time Richard son of Robert brought the assize against than said Master William de la Ryvere and William le Balygorman of one messuage and 4 acres of land in Platyn in which the tenements now sued for were contained, which Richard by assize of Novel Disseisin before Simon de Ludgate, Thomas de Sniterby, and John Fitz Ririck, justices assigned, recovered the tenements against Master de la Ryvere as tenant thereof by judgment. Master William de la Ryvere, asserting that the judgment was erroneous, brought a writ to cause the record and process to come before John Wogan, the justiciary, by writ of Chancery of Ireland, and a scire facias was issued to Richard aforesaid, the tenant of the premises, to be before the said chief justiciary on a certain day, and another writ of scire facias was issued to Nigel le Brun, who claims 20 librates of rent in the said tenements of the grant of Richard Fitz Robert aforesaid. Afterwards the record and process having been brought before the chief justiciary, Nigel le Brun appeared and portested against the errors assigned by Master William de la Ryvere in the record and process aforesaid, and alleged that there was no error. Judgment that Master William recover his seisin of all the tenements which he had previously lost by an erroneous judgment. This could not be if the feoffment held good, and so the said judgment rendered by the K. would be delusory and of no effect, which ought not to be. Nor ought feoffments made by tenants pending a suit in the K.'s court to be held good in fraud of the parties and in deceit of the K.'s court, fraud and deceit ought to benefit no man. It is adjudged that the judgment rendered on the assize be wholly revoked and annulled as erroneous, and that the feoffment of the tenements aforesaid to Nigel be held as null. Master William shall recover his seisin of the tenements, with the damages recovered against him, notwithstanding the judgment saving the rights of all parties. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 182, Rot. 56.]

533. Writ to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland. Whereas Reginald de Dean had lately impleaded Robert de Kallan before Robert Bagod and his associates, justices of the Common Pleas, Dublin, of one messuage and 2 carucates of land in Molynbro, and the said Robert had vouched to warranty against Reginald, Thomas son of Alured who warranted; and whereas the K. had caused the record and process of this plaint to come before the justiciary for error. The K. having learned by complaint of Walter son and heir of Robert de Callan that in the record and process of the plaint before the justiciary a similar error occurred, the K. commands the justiciary that if judgment has been rendered he send the record and processes before the K., so that the K. have them in the quinzaine of Easter. Brustwick, 15th November, a. r. 32 Edw. I. [1304].

By virtue of this writ John sent the record in these words:—

Common Pleas at Dublin before John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, in the quinzaine of Michaelmas, a. r. 28, Edw. I. [1300].

Dublin, Kilkenny. Writ commanding the Treasurer and Chamberlains of the Exchequer, Dublin, to send before the K. the record and process of a plaint before Robert Bagod and his associates, justices of the Common Pleas, Dublin, between Reginald de Dene, plaintiff, and Robert de Callan, tenant, of one messuage and 2 carucates of land in Molynbro. Assize held at Kilkenny before William le Graunt, locum tenens of the seneschal there, on Monday next before the feast of St. Margaret the Virgin, a. r. 20 [1292]. Reginald de Dene demands against Robert de Callan, one messuage and 2 carucates of land in Molinbro, which he claims as his right and inheritance, and into which Robert had not entry, save after a demise which William de Dene, uncle of Reginald, whose heir he is, made thereof to Walter son of Alured while he was non compos. Robert vouches to warranty Thomas son of Alured by aid of court. A day is given to them on the morrow of the Exaltation of the Holy Cross. Pleas before Robert Baggot and his associates at Dublin, in the term of the Holy Trinity, a. r. 21. Reginald de Dene demands in the court of the liberty of Kilkenny against Robert de Callan one messuage and 2 carucates of land in Mollinbro. Robert comes and vouches to warranty Thomas son of Alured, who has nothing within the liberty. Robert re-vouches Thomas. Pleas before the same on the octaves of Holy Hilary, a. r. 26. The justiciary returned that, at the instance of Walter son of Robert de Callan, an order had issued to the sheriff of Dublin, in whose bailiwick the tenements are situated, and to the sheriff of Kildare, in whose bailiwick Thomas Fitz Alured resides (who has nothing in the county of Dublin), to execute the mandate. The sheriff of Dublin returns that Thomas son and heir of Reginald de Dene is under age, and in custody of the K. in England, that Thomas Fitz Alured has nothing in his bailiwick, and that a scire facias had been issued to William le Graunt by David Duket and Thomas son of David Laurence. That Felicia, wife of William Graunt, is dead. The sheriff of Kildare returned that a scire facias had been issued to Thomas Fitz Alured, &c. by John Mool and Alexander Fitz Philip, &c. Walter son of Robert comes. Thomas and the others do not come. Wherefore let it be proceeded with to examination by default against William le Graunt and Thomas Fitz Alured who have been noticed. As to Thomas son and heir of Reginald aforesaid, John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland, was commanded to issue a scire facias to him to be before the K. in one month of Easter, to hear the record and process, and further to do, &c. The same day was given to Walter in the Common Pleas. On which day Walter came. Thomas son of Reginald did not come. The justiciary returned that he had ordered the seneschal of the liberty of Kilkenny to execute the writ, who answered that he had issued a scire facias to Thomas aforesaid by Thomas Fitz Maurice and Gregory Fitz John. Wherefore it was adjudged to proceed to examination on his default. A day thereupon was given to the same Walter in the octaves of the Holy Trinity. On which day Walter came and assigned errors in the record and process aforesaid. It is therefore expedient that the record and process be re-examined and corrected: A day was thereupon given to the parties, &c. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 186, Rot. 14–15.]

Hilary. 606. Writ to John Wogan, justiciary of Ireland. Geoffrey de Morgan had complained that certain persons had accused him of having, while mayor of Dublin, taken the seal lately found in the city, without the assent of the citizens, and asported it, and done his will with it to the great danger and loss of the city. The K., therefore, wishing to inquire into the truth of this matter, commands the justiciary, by the oath of good men as well of the city as of the adjacent parts, to inquire whether the seal reached Geoffrey's hands, why he took possession of it, and what he did with it, what loss the city suffered by its detention; and to return the inquisition to the K. under his seal and the seals of those by whom it shall have

1306–7. been been made. Caversham, Nov. 22, a. r. 34 [1305]. By virtue of this writ the justiciary returned an inquisition taken before him at Dublin in the quinzaine of St. Martin, a. r. 35 [1306]. The jurors Say upon their oath that Geoffrey de Morton did not asport the common seal of the city of Dublin against the consent of the citizens, but had possession of the seal by delivery of the citizens. But John le Sergeant, mayor of that city, hearing that Geoffrey was about to depart for England prayed him to let him have the seal. Geoffrey answered that he would willingly do so; but this he forgot, and departing for England he left the seal in care of his wife. Subsequently the mayor and citizens, wishing to have the seal in order to seal some letters with which they wished to send Roger de Ashbourne into England [certifying that no suit made by Geoffrey was by the will or assent of the citizens], went to Geoffrey's wife, and the mayor aforesaid for the citizens prayed for the delivery of the seal. As she was told that the mayor and citizens wanted to send some letters against her husband which would be very hurtful to him, she said that she had not the seal; and so Geoffrey from this cause was hindered for a long time; so that the citizens who had previously agreed with him [Roger de Ashbourne] for the expedition for 20 marks could not induce him to cross over unless they gave him 50 marks. And so the citizens suffered this damage by detention of the seal. [Coram Rege, Edw. I., No. 188, Rot. 55.]

CALENDARS OF STATE PAPERS, &c.

[Imperial 8vo., cloth. Price 15*s.* each Volume or Part.]

As far back as the year 1800, a Committee of the House of Commons recommended that Indexes and Calendars should be made to the Public Records, and thirty-six years afterwards another Committee of the House of Commons reiterated that recommendation in more forcible words; but it was not until the incorporation of the State Paper Office with the Public Record Office that the Master of the Rolls found himself in a position to take the necessary steps for carrying out the wishes of the House of Commons.

On 7 December 1855, he stated to the Lords of the Treasury that although "the Records, State Papers, and Documents in his charge constitute the most "complete and perfect series of their kind in the civilized world," and although "they are of the greatest value in a historical and constitutional point of view, "yet they are comparatively useless to the public, from the want of proper "Calendars and Indexes." Acting upon the recommendations of the Committees of the House of Commons above referred to, he suggested to the Lords of the Treasury that to effect the object he had in view it would be necessary for him to employ a few Persons fully qualified to perform the work which he contemplated.

Their Lordships assented to the necessity of having Calendars prepared and printed, and empowered the Master of the Rolls to take such steps as might be necessary for this purpose.

The following Works have been already published under the direction of the Master of the Rolls:—

THE CHRONICLES AND MEMORIALS OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND DURING THE MIDDLE AGES.

[ROYAL 8vo. half-bound. Price 10*s.* each Volume or Part.]

On 25 July 1822, the House of Commons presented an address to the Crown, stating that the editions of the works of our ancient historians were inconvenient and defective; that many of their writings still remained in manuscript, and, in some cases, in a single copy only. They added, "that an uniform and convenient edition of the whole, published under His Majesty's royal sanction, "would be an undertaking honourable to His Majesty's reign, and conducive to "the advancement of historical and constitutional knowledge; that the House "therefore humbly besought His Majesty, that He would be graciously pleased "to give such directions as His Majesty, in His wisdom, might think fit, for "the publication of a complete edition of the ancient historians of this realm, "and assured His Majesty that whatever expense might be necessary for this "purpose would be made good."

The Master of the Rolls, being very desirous that effect should be given to the resolution of the House of Commons, submitted to Her Majesty's Treasury in 1857 a plan for the publication of the ancient chronicles and memorials of the United Kingdom, and it was adopted accordingly. In selecting these works, it was considered right, in the first instance, to give preference to those of which the manuscripts were unique, or the materials of which would help to fill up blanks in English history for which no satisfactory and authentic information hitherto existed in any accessible form. One great object the Master of the Rolls had in view was to form a corpus historicum within reasonable limits, and which should be as complete as possible. In a subject of so vast a range, it was important that the historical student should be able to select such volumes as conformed with his own peculiar tastes and studies, and not be put to the expense of purchasing the whole collection; an inconvenience inseparable from any other plan than that which has been in this instance adopted.

Of the Chronicles and Memorials, the following volumes have been published. They embrace the period from the earliest time of British history down to the end of the reign of Henry VII.

1. THE CHRONICLE OF ENGLAND, by JOHN CAPGRAVE. Edited by the Rev. F. C. HINGESTON, M.A., of Exeter College, Oxford. 1858.

   Capgrave was prior of Lynn, in Norfolk, and provincial of the order of the Friars Hermits of England shortly before the year 1464. His Chronicle extends from the creation of the world to the year 1417. As a record of the language spoken in Norfolk (being written in English), it is of considerable value.

2. CHRONICON MONASTERII DE ABINGDON. Vols. I. and II. Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A., of University College, Durham, and Vicar of Leighton Buzzard. 1858.

   This Chronicle traces the history of the great Benedictine monastery of Abingdon in Berkshire, from its foundation by King Ina of Wessex, to the reign of Richard I., shortly after which period the present narrative was drawn up by an inmate of the establishment. The author had access to the title-deeds of the house; and incorporates into his history various charters of the Saxon kings, of great importance as illustrating not only the history of the locality but that of the kingdom. The work is printed for the first time.

3. Lives of Edward the Confessor. I.—La Estoire de Seint Aedward le Rei. II.—Vita Beati Edvardi Regis et Confessoris. III.—Vita Æduuardi Regis qui apud Westmonasterium requiescit. Edited by Henry Richards Luard, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1858.

The first is a poem in Norman French, containing 4,686 lines, addressed to Alianor, Queen of Henry III., probably written in 1245, on the restoration of the church of Westminster. Nothing is known of the author. The second is an anonymous poem, containing 536 lines, written between 1440 and 1450, by command of Henry VI., to whom it is dedicated. It does not throw any new light on the reign of Edward the Confessor, but is valuable as a specimen of the Latin poetry of the time. The third, also by an anonymous author, was apparently written for Queen Edith, between 1066 and 1074, during the pressure of the suffering brought on the Saxons by the Norman conquest. It notices many facts not found in other writers, and some which differ considerably from the usual accounts.

4. Monumenta Franciscana. Vol. I.—Thomas de Eccleston de Adventu Fratrum Minorum in Angliam. Adæ de Marisco Epistolæ. Registrum Fratrum Minorum Londoniæ. Edited by J. S. Brewer, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. Vol. II.—De Adventu Minorum; re-edited, with additions. Chronicle of the Grey Friars. The ancient English version of the Rule of St. Francis. Abbreviatio Statutorum, 1451, &c. Edited by Richard Howlett, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister-at-Law. 1858, 1882.

The first volume contains original materials for the history of the settlement of the order of Saint Francis in England, the letters of Adam de Marisco, and other papers connected with the foundation and diffusion of this great body. It was the aim of the editor to collect whatever historical information could be found in this country, towards illustrating a period of the national history for which only scanty materials exist. None of these have been before printed. The second volume contains materials found, since the first volume was published, among the MSS. of Sir Charles Isham, and in various libraries.

5. Fasciculi Zizaniorum Magistri Johannis Wyclif cum Tritico. Ascribed to Thomas Netter, of Walden, Provincial of the Carmelite Order in England, and Confessor to King Henry the Fifth. Edited by the Rev. W. W. Shirley, M.A., Tutor and late Fellow of Wadham College, Oxford. 1858.

This work derives its principal value from being the only contemporaneous account of the rise of the Lollards. When written, the disputes of the schoolmen had been extended to the field of theology, and they appear both in the writings of Wycliff and in those of his adversaries. Wycliff's little bundles of tares are not less metaphysical than theological, and the conflict between Nominalists and Realists rages side by side with the conflict between the different interpreters of Scripture. The work gives a good idea of the controversies at the end of the 14th and the beginning of the 15th centuries.

6. The Buik of the Croniclis of Scotland; or, A Metrical Version of the History of Hector Boece; by William Stewart. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by W. B. Turnbull, Esq., of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law, 1858.

This is a metrical translation of a Latin Prose Chronicle, written in the first half of the 16th century. The narrative begins with the earliest legends and ends with the death of James I. of Scotland, and the "evil ending of the traitors that slew him." Strict accuracy of statement is not to be looked for; but the stories of the colonization of Spain, Ireland, and Scotland are interesting if not true; and the chronicle reflects the manners, sentiments, and character of the age in which it was composed. The peculiarities of the Scottish dialect are well illustrated in this version, and the student of language will find ample materials for comparison with the English dialects of the same period, and with modern lowland Scotch.

7. Johannis Cabgrave Liber de Illustribus Henricis. Edited by the Rev. F. C. Hingeston, M.A., of Exeter College, Oxford. 1858.

This work is dedicated to Henry VI. of England, who appears to have been, in the author's estimation, the greatest of all the Henries. It is divided into three parts, each having a separate dedication. The first part relates only to the history of the Empire, from the election of Henry I., the Fowler, to the end of the reign of the Emperor Henry VI. The second part is devoted to English history, from the accession of Henry I. in 1100, to 1446, which was the twenty-fourth year of the reign of Henry VI. The third part contains the lives of illustrious men who have borne the name of Henry in various parts of the world. Capgrave was born in 1393, in the reign of Richard II., and lived during the Wars of the Roses, for which period his work is of some value.

8. Historia Monasterii S. Augustini Cantuariensis, by Thomas of Elmham, formerly Monk and Treasurer of that Foundation. Edited by Charles Hardwick, M.A., Fellow of St. Catharine's Hall, and Christian Advocate in the University of Cambridge. 1858.

This history extends from the arrival of St. Augustine in Kent until 1191. Prefixed is a chronology as far as 1418, which shows in outline what was to have been the character of the work when completed. The only copy known is in the possession of Trinity Hall, Cambridge. The author was connected with Norfolk, and most probably with Elmham, whence he derived his name.

9. Eulogium (Historiarum sive Temporis): Chronicon ab Orbe condito usque ad Annum Domini 1366; a Monacho quodam Malmesbiriensi exaratum. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by F. S. Haydon, Esq., B.A. 1858–1863.

This is a Latin Chronicle extending from the Creation to the latter part of the reign of Edward III., and written by a monk of the Abbey of Malmesbury, in Wiltshire, about the year 1367. A continuation, carrying the history of England down to the year 1413, was added in the former half of the fifteenth century by an author whose name is not known. The original Chronicle is divided into five books, and contains a history of the world generally, but more especially of England to the year 1366. The continuation extends the history down to the coronation of Henry V. The Eulogium itself is chiefly valuable as containing a history, by a contemporary, of the period between 1356 and 1366. The notices of events appear to have been written very soon after their occurrence. Among other interesting matter, the Chronicle contains a diary of the Poitiers campaign, evidently furnished by some person who accompanied the army of the Black Prince. The continuation of the Chronicle is also the work of a contemporary, and gives a very interesting account of the reigns of Richard II. and Henry IV. It is believed to be the earliest authority for the statement that the latter monarch died in the Jerusalem Chamber at Westminster.

10. Memorials of Henry the Seventh: Bernardi Andreæ Tholosatis Vita Regis Henrici Septimi; necnon alia quædam ad eundem Regem spectantia. Edited by James Gairdner, Esq. 1858.

The contents of this volume are—(1) a life of Henry VII., by his poet laureate and historiographer, Bernard André, of Toulouse, with some compositions in verse, of which he is supposed to have been the author; (2) the journals of Roger Machado during certain embassies on which he was sent by Henry VII. to Spain and Brittany, the first of which had reference to the marriage of the King's son, Arthur, with Catharine of Arragon; (3) two curious reports by envoys sent to Spain in 1505 touching the succession to the Crown of Castile, and a project of marriage between Henry VII. and the Queen of Naples; and (4) an account of Philip of Castile's reception in England in 1506. Other documents of interest are given in an appendix.

11. Memorials of Henry the Fifth. I.—Vita Henrici Quinti, Roberto Redmanno auctore. II.—Versus Rhythmici in laudem Regis Henrici Quinti. III.—Elmhami Liber Metricus de Henrico V. Edited by Charles A. Cole, Esq. 1858.

This volume contains three treatises which more or less illustrate the history of the reign of Henry V., viz.: A Life by Robert Redman; a Metrical Chronicle by Thomas Elmham, prior of Lenton, a contemporary author; Versus Rhythmici, written apparently by a monk of Westminster Abbey, who was also a contemporary of Henry V. These works are printed for the first time.

12. MUNIMENTA GILDHALLÆ LONDONIENSIS; Liber Albus, Liber Custumarum, et Liber Horn, in archivis Gildhallæ asservati. Vol. I., Liber Albus. Vol. II. (in Two Parts), Liber Custumarum. Vol. III., Translation of the Anglo-Norman Passages in Liber Albus, Glossaries, Appendices, and Index. Edited by HENRY THOMAS RILEY, Esq., M.A., Barrister-at-Law. 1859–1862.

The manuscript of the Liber Albus, compiled by John Carpenter, Common Clerk of the City of London in the year 1419, a large folio volume, is preserved in the Record Room of the City of London. It gives an account of the laws, regulations, and institutions of that City in the 12th, 13th, 14th, and early part of the 15th centuries. The Liber Custumarum was compiled probably by various hands in the early part of the 14th century during the reign of Edward II. The manuscript, a folio volume, is also preserved in the Record Room of the City of London, though some portion in its original state, borrowed from the City in the reign of Queen Elizabeth and never returned, forms part of the Cottonian MS. Claudius D. II. in the British Museum. It also gives an account of the laws, regulations, and institutions of the City of London in the 12th, 13th, and early part of the 14th centuries.

13. CHRONICA JOHANNIS DE OXENEDES. Edited by Sir HENRY ELLIS, K.H. 1859.

Although this Chronicle tells of the arrival of Hengist and Horsa in England in 449, yet it substantially begins with the reign of King Alfred, and comes down to 1292, where it ends abruptly. The history is particularly valuable for notices of events in the eastern portions of the kingdom, not to be elsewhere obtained. Some curious facts are mentioned relative to the floods in that part of England, which are confirmed in the Friesland Chronicle of Anthony Heinrich, pastor of the Island of Mohr.

14. A COLLECTION OF POLITICAL POEMS AND SONGS RELATING TO ENGLISH HISTORY, FROM THE ACCESSION OF EDWARD III. TO THE REIGN OF HENRY VIII. Vols. I. and II. Edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A. 1859–1861.

These Poems are perhaps the most interesting of all the historical writings of the period, though they cannot be relied on for accuracy of statement. They are various in character; some are upon religious subjects, some may be called satires, and some give no more than a court scandal; but as a whole they present a very fair picture of society, and of the relations of the different classes to one another. The period comprised is in itself interesting, and brings us through the decline of the feudal system, to the beginning of our modern history. The songs in old English are of considerable value to the philologist.

15. The "OPUS TERTIUM," "OPUS MINUS," &c., of ROGER BACON. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. 1859.

This is the celebrated treatise—never before printed—so frequently referred to by the great philosopher in his works. It contains the fullest details we possess of the life and labours of Roger Bacon: also a fragment by the same author, supposed to be unique, the "Compendium Studii Theologiæ."

16. BARTHOLOMÆI DE COTTON, MONACHI NORWICENSIS, HISTORIA ANGLICANA; 449–1298: necnon ejusdem Liber de Archiepiscopis et Episcopis Angliæ. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1859.

The author, a monk of Norwich, has here given us a Chronicle of England from the arrival of the Saxons in 449 to the year 1298, in or about which year it appears that he died. The latter portion of this history (the whole of the reign of Edward I. more especially) is of great value, as the writer was contemporary with the events which he records. An Appendix contains several illustrative documents connected with the previous narrative.

17. BRUT Y TYWYSOGION; or, The Chronicle of the Princes of Wales. Edited by the Rev. JOHN WILLIAMS AB ITHEL, M.A. 1860.

This work, also known as "The Chronicle of the Princes of Wales," has been attributed to Caradoc of Llancarvan, who flourished about the middle of the twelfth century. It is written in the ancient Welsh language, begins with the abdication and death of Caedwala at Rome, in the year 681, and continues the history down to the subjugation of Wales by Edward I., about the year 1282.

18. A COLLECTION OF ROYAL AND HISTORICAL LETTERS DURING THE REIGN OF HENRY IV. 1399–1404. Edited by the Rev. F. C. HINGESTON, M.A., of Exeter College, Oxford. 1860.

This volume, like all the others in the series containing a miscellaneous selection of letters, is valuable on account of the light it throws upon biographical history, and the familiar view it presents of characters, manners, and events. The period requires much elucidation; to which it will materially contribute.

19. THE REPRESSOR OF OVER MUCH BLAMING OF THE CLERGY. By REGINALD PECOCK, sometime Bishop of Chichester. Vols. I. and II. Edited by CHURCHILL BABINGTON, B.D., Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. 1860.

The "Repressor" may be considered the earliest piece of good theological disquisition of which our English prose literature can boast. The author was born about the end of the fourteenth century, consecrated Bishop of St. Asaph in the year 1444, and translated to the see of Chichester in 1450. While Bishop of St. Asaph, he zealously defended his brother prelates from the attacks of those who censured the bishops for their neglect of duty. He maintained that it was no part of a bishop's functions to appear in the pulpit, and that his time might be more profitably spent, and his dignity better maintained, in the performance of works of a higher character. Among those who thought differently were the Lollards, and against their general doctrines the "Repressor" is directed. Pecock took up a position midway between that of the Roman Church and that of the modern Anglican Church; but his work is interesting chiefly because it gives a full account of the views of the Lollards and of the arguments by which they were supported, and because it assists us to ascertain the state of feeling which ultimately led to the Reformation. Apart from religious matters, the light thrown upon contemporaneous history is very small, but the "Repressor" has great value for the philologist, as it tells us what were the characteristics of the language in use among the cultivated Englishmen of the fifteenth century. Pecock, though an opponent of the Lollards, showed a certain spirit of toleration, for which he received, towards the end of his life, the usual mediæval reward—persecution.

20. ANNALES CAMBRIÆ. Edited by the Rev. JOHN WILLIAMS AB ITHEL, M.A. 1860.

These annals, which are in Latin, commence in 447, and come down to 1288. The earlier portion appears to be taken from an Irish Chronicle, used by Tigernach, and by the compiler of the Annals of Ulster. During its first century it contains scarcely anything relating to Britain, the earliest direct concurrence with English history is relative to the mission of Augustine. Its notices throughout, though brief, are valuable. The annals were probably written at St. Davids, by Blegewryd, Archdeacon of Llandaff, the most learned man in his day in all Cymru.

21. THE WORKS OF GIRALDUS CAMBRENSIS. Vols. I., II., III., and IV. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. Vols. V., VI., and VII. Edited by the Rev. JAMES F. DIMOCK, M.A., Rector of Barnburgh, Yorkshire. 1861–1877.

These volumes contain the historical works of Gerald du Barry, who lived in the reigns of Henry II., Richard I., and John, and attempted to re-establish the independence of Wales by restoring the see of St. Davids to its ancient primacy. His works are of a very miscellaneous nature, both in prose and verse, and are remarkable chiefly for the racy and original anecdotes which they contain relating to contemporaries. He is the only Welsh writer of any importance who has contributed so much to the mediæval literature of this country, or assumed, in consequence of his nationality, so free and independent a tone. His frequent travels in Italy, in France, in Ireland, and in Wales, gave him opportunities for observation which did not generally fall to the lot of mediæval writers in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries, and of these observations Giraldus has made due use. Only extracts from these treatises have been printed before, and almost all of them are taken from unique manuscripts.

The Topographia Hibernica (in Vol. V.) is the result of Giraldus' two visits to Ireland. The first in 1183, the second in 1185–6, when he accompanied Prince John into that country. Curious as this treatise is, Mr. Dimock is of opinion that it ought not to be accepted as sober truthful history, for Giraldus himself states that truth was not his main object, and that he compiled the work for the purpose of sounding the praises of Henry the Second. Elsewhere, however, he declares that he had stated nothing in the Topographia of the truth of which he was not well assured, either by his own eyesight or by the testimony, with all diligence elicited, of the most trustworthy and authentic men in the country; that though he did not put just the same full faith in their reports as in what he had himself seen, yet, as they only related what they had themselves seen, he could not but believe such credible witnesses. A very interesting portion of this treatise is devoted to the animals of Ireland. It shows that he was a very accurate and acute observer, and his descriptions are given in a way that a scientific naturalist of the present day could hardly improve upon. The Expugnatio Hibernica was written about 1188 and may be regarded rather as a great epic than a sober relation of acts occurring in his own days. No one can peruse it without coming to the conclusion that it is rather a poetical fiction than a prosaic truthful history. Vol. VI. contains the Itinerarium Kambriæ et Descriptio Kambriæ: and Vol. VII., the lives of S. Remigius and S. Hugh.

22. Letters and Papers illustrative of the Wars of the English in France during the Reign of Henry the Sixth, King of England. Vol. I., and Vol. II. (in Two Parts). Edited by the Rev. Joseph Stevenson, M.A., of University College, Durham, and Vicar of Leighton Buzzard. 1861–1864.

These letters and papers are derived chiefly from originals or contemporary copies extant in the Bibliothèque Impériale, and the Depôt des Archives, in Paris. They illustrate the policy adopted by John Duke of Bedford and his successors during their government of Normandy, and other provinces of France acquired by Henry V. Here may be traced, step by step, the gradual declension of the English power, until we are prepared for its final overthrow.

23. The Anglo-Saxon Chronicle, according to the several Original Authorities. Vol. I., Original Texts. Vol. II., Translation. Edited and translated by Benjamin Thorpe, Esq., Member of the Royal Academy of Sciences at Munich, and of the Society of Netherlandish Literature at Leyden. 1861.

This Chronicle, extending from the earliest history of Britain to 1154, is justly the boast of England; no other nation can produce any history, written in its own vernacular, at all approaching it, in antiquity, truthfulness, or extent, the historical books of the Bible alone excepted. There are at present six independent manuscripts of the Saxon Chronicle, ending in different years, and written in different parts of the country. In this edition, the text of each manuscript is printed in columns on the same page, so that the student may see at a glance the various changes which occur in orthography, whether arising from locality or age.

24. Letters and Papers illustrative of the Reigns of Richard III. and Henry VII. Vols. I. and II. Edited by James Gairdner, Esq. 1861–1863.

The Papers are derived from MSS. in the Public Record Office, the British Museum, and other repositories. The period to which they refer is unusually destitute of chronicles and other sources of historical information, so that the light obtained from them is of special importance. The principal contents of the volumes are some diplomatic Papers of Richard III.; correspondence between Henry VII. and Ferdinand and Isabella of Spain; documents relating to Edmund de la Pole, Earl of Suffolk; and a portion of the correspondence of James IV. of Scotland.

25. Letters of Bishop Grosseteste, illustrative of the Social Condition of his Time. Edited by Henry Richards Luard, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1861.

The Letters of Robert Grosseteste (131 in number) are here collected from various sources, and a large portion of them is printed for the first time. They range in date from about 1210 to 1253, and relate to various matters connected not only with the political history of England during the reign of Henry III., but with its ecclesiastical condition. They refer especially to the diocese of Lincoln, of which Grosseteste was bishop.

26. Descriptive Catalogue of Manuscripts relating to the History of Great Britain and Ireland. Vol. I. (in Two Parts); Anterior to the Norman Invasion. Vol. II.; 1066–1200. Vol. III.; 1200–1327. By Sir Thomas Duffus Hardy, D.C.L., Deputy Keeper of the Public Records. 1862–1871.

The object of this work is to publish notices of all known sources of British history, both printed and unprinted, in one continued sequence. The materials, when historical (as distinguished from biographical), are arranged under the year in which the latest event is recorded in the chronicle or history, and not under the period in which its author, real or supposed, flourished. Biographies are enumerated under the year in which the person commemorated died, and not under the year in which the life was written. This arrangement has two advantages; the materials for any given period may be seen at a glance; and if the reader knows the time when an author wrote, and the number of years that had elapsed between the date of the events and the time the writer flourished, he will generally be enabled to form a fair estimate of the comparative value of the narrative itself. A brief analysis of each work has been added when deserving it, in which original portions are distinguished from mere compilations. If possible, the sources are indicated from which compilations have been derived. A biographical sketch of the author of each piece has been added, and a brief notice of such British authors as have written on historical subjects.

27. Royal and other Historical Letters illustrative of the Reign of Henry III. Vol. I., 1216–1235. Vol. II., 1236–1272. Selected and edited by the Rev. W. W. Shirley, D.D., Regius Professor in Ecclesiastical History, and Canon of Christ Church, Oxford. 1862–1866.

The letters contained in these volumes are derived chiefly from the ancient correspondence formerly in the Tower of London, and now in the Public Record Office. They illustrate the political history of England during the growth of its liberties, and throw considerable light upon the personal history of Simon de Montfort. The affairs of France form the subject of many of them, especially in regard to the province of Gascony. The entire collection consists of nearly 700 documents, the greater portion of which is printed for the first time.

28. Chronica Monasterii S. Albani.—1. Thomæ Walsingham Historia Anglicana; Vol. I., 1272–1381: Vol. II., 1381–1422. 2. Willelmi Rishanger Chronica et Annales, 1259–1307. 3. Johannis de Trokelowe et Henrici de Blaneforde Chronica et Annales, 1259–1296; 1307–1324; 1392–1406. 4. Gesta Abbatum Monasterii S. Albani, a Thoma Walsingham, regnante Ricardo Secundo, ejusdem Ecclesiæ Præcentore, compilata; Vol. I., 793–1290: Vol. II., 1290–1349: Vol. III., 1349–1411. 5. Johannis Amundesham, Monachi Monasterii S. Albani, ut videtur, Annales; Vols. I. and II. 6. Registra quorundam Abbatum Monasterii S. Albani, qui sæculo xv^mo^ floruere; Vol. I., Registrum Abbatiæ Johannis Whethamstede, Abbatis Monasterii Sancti Albani, iterum suscepta; Roberto Blakeney, Capellano, quondam adscriptum: Vol. II., Registra Johannis Whethamstede, Willelmi Albon, et Willelmi Walingforde, Abbatum Monasterii Sancti Albani, cum Appendice, continente quasdam Epistolas, a Johanne Whethamstede Conscriptas. 7. Ypodigma Neustriæ a Thoma Walsingham, quondam Monacho Monasterii S. Albani, conscriptum. Edited by Henry Thomas Riley, Esq., M.A., Cambridge and Oxford; and of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law. 1863–1876.

In the first two volumes is a History of England, from the death of Henry III. to the death of Henry V., by Thomas Walsingham, Precentor of St. Albans, from MS. VII. in the Arundel Collection in the College of Arms, London, a manuscript of the fifteenth century, collated with MS. 13 E. IX. in the King's Library in the British Museum, and MS. VII. in the Parker Collection of Manuscripts at Corpus Christi College, Cambridge.

In the 3rd volume is a Chronicle of English History, attributed to William Rishanger, who lived in the reign of Edward I., from the Cotton. MS. Faustina B. IX. in the British Museum, collated with MS. 14 C. VII. (fols. 219–231) in the King's Library, British Museum, and the Cotton MS. Claudius E. III., fols. 306–331: an account of transactions attending the award of the kingdom of Scotland to John Balliol, 1291–1292, from MS Cotton. Claudius D. VI., also attributed to William Rishanger, but on no sufficient ground: a short Chronicle of English History, 1292 to 1300, by an unknown hand, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI.: a short Chronicle Willelmi Rishanger Gesta Edwardi Primi, Regis Angliæ, from MS. 14 C. I. in the Royal Library, and MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI., with Annales Regum Angliæ, probably by the same hand: and fragments of three Chronicles of English History, 1285 to 1307.

In the 4th volume is a Chronicle of English History, 1259 to 1296, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI.: Annals of Edward II., 1307 to 1323, by John de Trokelowe, a monk of St. Albans, and a continuation of Trokelowe's Annals, 1323, 1324, by Henry de Blaneforde, both from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI.: a full Chronicle of English History, 1392 to 1406, from MS. VII. in the Library of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge; and an account of the Benefactors of St. Albans, written in the early part of the 15th century from MS. VI. in the same Library.

The 5th, 6th, and 7th volumes contain a history of the Abbots of St. Albans, 793 to 1411, mainly compiled by Thomas Walsingham, from MS. Cotton. Claudius E. IV., in the British Museum: with a Continuation, from the closing pages of Parker MS. VII., in the Library of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge.

The 8th and 9th volumes, in continuation of the Annals, contain a Chronicle, probably by John Amundesham, a monk of St. Albans.

The 10th and 11th volumes relate especially to the acts and proceedings of Abbots Whethamstede, Albon, and Wallingford, and may be considered as a memorial of the chief historical and domestic events during those periods.

The 12th volume contains a compendious History of England to the reign of Henry V., and of Normandy in early times, also by Thomas Walsingham, and dedicated to Henry V. The compiler has often substituted other authorities in place of those consulted in the preparation of his larger work.

29. Chronicon Abbatiæ Eveshamensis, Auctoribus Dominico Priore Eveshamiæ et Thoma de Marleberge Abbate, a Fundatione ad Annum 1213, una cum Continuatione ad Annum 1418. Edited by the Rev. W. D. Macray, Bodleian Library, Oxford. 1863.

The Chronicle of Evesham illustrates the history of that important monastery from its foundation by Egwin, about 690, to the year 1418. Its chief feature is an autobiography, which makes us acquainted with the inner daily life of a great abbey, such as but rarely has been recorded. Interspersed are many notices of general, personal, and local history which will be read with much interest. This work exists in a single MS., and is for the first time printed.

30. Ricardi de Cirencestria Speculum Historiale de Gestis Regum Angliæ. Vol. I., 447–871. Vol. II., 872–1066. Edited by John E. B. Mayor, M.A., Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. 1863–1869.

The compiler, Richard of Cirencester, was a monk of Westminster, 1355–1400. In 1391 he obtained a licence to make a pilgrimage to Rome. His history, in four books, extends from 447 to 1066. He announces his intention of continuing it, but there is no evidence that he completed any more. This chronicle gives many charters in favour of Westminster Abbey, and a very full account of the lives and miracles of the saints, especially of Edward the Confessor, whose reign occupies the fourth book. A treatise on the Coronation, by William of Sudbury, a monk of Westminster, fills book iii. c. 3. It was on this author that C. J. Bertram fathered his forgery, De Situ Brittaniæ, in 1747.

31. Year Books of the Reign of Edward the First. Years 20–21, 21–22, 30–31, 32–33, and 33–35 Edw. I.; and 11–12 Edw. III. Edited and translated by Alfred John Horwood, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister-at-Law. Years 12–13 Edward III. Edited and translated by Luke Owen Pike, Esq., M.A., of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law. 1863–1885.

The volumes known as the "Year Books" contain reports in Norman-French of Cases argued and decided in the Courts of Common Law. They may be considered to a great extent as the "lex non scripta" of England, held in the highest veneration by the ancient sages of the law, and received by them as the repositories of the first recorded judgments and dicta of the great legal luminaries of past ages. They are also worthy of attention on account of the historical information and the notices of public and private persons which they contain, as well as the light which they throw on ancient manners and customs.

32. Narratives of the Expulsion of the English from Normandy 1449–1450. —Robertus Blondelli de Reductione Normanniæ: Le Recouvrement de Normendie, par Berry, Hérault du Roy: Conferences between the Ambassadors of France and England. Edited, from MSS. in the Imperial Library at Paris, by the Rev. Joseph Stevenson, M.A., of University College, Durham. 1863.

This volume contains the narrative of an eye-witness who details with considerable power and minuteness the circumstances which attended the final expulsion of the English from Normandy in 1450. Commencing with the infringement of the truce by the capture of Fongères, and ending with the battle of Formigny and the embarkation of the Duke of Somerset. The period embraced is less than two years.

33. Historia et Cartularium Monasterii S. Petri Gloucestriæ. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by W. H. Hart, Esq., F.S.A., Membre correspondant de la Société des Antiquaires de Normandie. 1863–1867.

This work consists of two parts, the History and the Cartulary of the Monastery of St. Peter, Gloucester. The history furnishes an account of the monastery from its foundation, in the year 681, to the early part of the reign of Richard II., together with a calendar of donations and benefactions. It treats principally of the affairs of the monastery, but occasionally matters of general history are introduced. Its authorship has generally been assigned to Walter Froucester the twentieth abbot, but without any foundation.

34. Alexandri Neckam de Naturis Rerum libri duo; with Neckam's Poem, De Laudibus Divinæ Sapientiæ. Edited by Thomas Wright, Esq., M.A. 1863.

Neckam was a man who devoted himself to science, such as it was in the twelfth century. In the "De Naturis Rerum" are to be found what may be called the rudiments of many sciences mixed up with much error and ignorance. Neckam was not thought infallible, even by his contemporaries, for Roger Bacon remarks of him, "this Alexander in many things wrote what was true and useful; "but he neither can nor ought by just title to be reckoned among authorities." Neckam, however, had sufficient independence of thought to differ from some of the schoolmen who in his time considered themselves the only judges of literature. He had his own views in morals, and in giving us a glimpse of them, as well as of his other opinions, he throws much light upon the manners, customs, and general tone of thought prevalent in the twelfth century. The poem entitled "De Laudibus Divinæ Sapientiæ" appears to be a metrical paraphrase or abridgment of the "De Natnris Rerum." It is written in the elegiac metre, and though there are many lines which violate classical rules, it is, as a whole above the ordinary standard of mediæval Latin.

35. Leechdoms, Wortcunning, and Starcraft of Early England; being a Collection of Documents illustrating the History of Science in this Country before the Norman Conquest. Vols. I., II., and III. Collected and edited by the Rev. T. Oswald Cockayne, M.A., of St. John's College, Cambridge, 1864–1866.

This work illustrates not only the history of science, but the history of superstition. In addition to the information bearing directly upon the medical skill and medical faith of the times, there are many passages which incidentally throw light upon the general mode of life and ordinary diet. The volumes are interesting not only in their scientific, but also in their social aspect. The manuscripts from which they have been printed are valuable to the Anglo-Saxon scholar for the illustrations they afford of Anglo-Saxon orthography.

86. ANNALES MONASTICI. Vol. I.:—Annales de Margan, 1066–1232; Annales de Theokesberia, 1066–1263; Annales de Burton, 1004–1263. Vol. II.:—Annales Monasterii de Wintonia, 519–1277; Annales Monasterii de Waverleia, 1–1291. Vol. III.:—Annales Prioratus de Dunstaplia, 1–1297. Annales Monasterii de Bermundeseia, 1042–1432. Vol. IV.:—Annales Monasterii de Oseneia, 1016–1347; Chronicon vulgo dictum Chronicon Thomæ Wykes, 1066–1289; Annales Prioratus de Wigornia, 1–1377. Vol. V.:—Index and Glossary. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, and Registrary of the University, Cambridge. 1864–1869.

The present collection of Monastic Annals embraces all the more important chronicles compiled in religious houses in England during the thirteenth century. These distinct works are ten in number. The extreme period which they embrace ranges from the year 1 to 1432, although they refer more especially to the reigns of John, Henry III., and Edward I. Some of these narratives have already appeared in print, but others are printed for the first time.

37. MAGNA VITA S. HUGONIS EPISCOPI LINCOLNIENSIS. From MSS. in the Bodleian Library, Oxford, and the Imperial Library, Paris. Edited by the Rev. JAMES F. DIMOCK, M.A., Rector of Barnburgh, Yorkshire. 1864.

This work contains a number of very curious and interesting incidents, and being the work of a contemporary, is very valuable, not only as a truthful biography of a celebrated ecclesiastic, but as the work of a man, who, from personal knowledge, gives notices of passing events, as well as of individuals who were then taking active part in public affairs. The author, in all probability, was Adam Abbot of Evesham. He was domestic chaplain and private confessor of Bishop Hugh, and in these capacities was admitted to the closest intimacy. Bishop Hugh was Prior of Witham for 11 years before he became Bishop of Lincoln. His consecration took place on the 21st September 1186; he died on the 16th of November 1200; and was canonized in 1220.

38. CHRONICLES AND MEMORIALS OF THE REIGN OF RICHARD THE FIRST. Vol. I.:—ITINERARIUM PEREGRINORUM ET GESTA REGIS RICARDI. Vol. II.:—EPISTOLÆ CANTUARIENSES; the Letters of the Prior and Convent of Christ Church, Canterbury; 1187 to 1199. Edited by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Vicar of Navestock, Essex, and Lambeth Librarian. 1864–1865.

The authorship of the Chronicle in Vol. I., hitherto ascribed to Geoffrey Vinesauf, is now more correctly ascribed to Richard, Canon of the Holy Trinity of London. The narrative extends from 1187 to 1199; but its chief interest consists in the minute and authentic narrative which it furnishes of the exploits of Richard I., from his departure from England in December 1189 to his death in 1199. The author states in his prologue that he was an eye-witness of much that he records; and various incidental circumstances which occur in the course of the narrative confirm this assertion.

The letters in Vol. II., written between 1187 and 1199, are of value as furnishing authentic materials for the history of the ecclesiastical condition of England during the reign of Richard I. They had their origin in a dispute which arose from the attempts of Baldwin and Hubert, archbishops of Canterbury, to found a college of secular canons, a project which gave great umbrage to the monks of Canterbury, who saw in it a design to supplant them in their function of metropolitan chapter. These letters are printed, for the first time, from a MS. belonging to the archiepiscopal library at Lambeth.

39. RECUEIL DES CRONIQUES ET ANCHIENNES ISTORIES DE LA GRANT BRETAIGNE A PRESENT NOMME ENGLETERRE, par JEHAN DE WAURIN. Vol. I. Albina to 688. Vol. II., 1399–1422. Vol. III., 1422–1431. Edited by Sir WILLIAM HARDY, F.S.A. 1864–1879. Vol. IV. 1431–1443. Edited by Sir WILLIAM HARDY, F.S.A., and EDWARD L. C. P. HARDY, Esq., F.S.A., of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-law. 1884.

40. A COLLECTION OF THE CHRONICLES AND ANCIENT HISTORIES OF GREAT BRITAIN, NOW CALLED ENGLAND, by JOHN DE WAVRIN. Albina to 688. (Translation the preceding Vol. I.) Edited and translated by Sir WILLIAM HARDY, F.S.A. 1864.

This curious chronicle extends from the fabulous period of history down to the return of Edward IV. to England in the year 1471 after the second deposition of Henry VI. The manuscript from which the text of the work is taken is preserved in the Imperial Library at Paris, and is believed to be the only complete and nearly contemporary copy in existence. The work, as originally bound, was comprised in six volumes, since rebound in morocco in 12 volumes, folio maximo, vellum, and is illustrated with exquisite miniatures, vignettes, and initial letters. It was written towards the end of the fifteenth century, having been expressly executed for Louis de Bruges, Seigneur de la Gruthuyse and Earl of Winchester, from whose cabinet it passed into the library of Louis XII. at Blois.

41. POLYCHRONICON RANULPHI HIGDEN, with Trevisa's Translation. Vols. I. and II. Edited by CHURCHILL BABINGTON, B.D., Senior Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. Vols. III., IV., V., VI., VII., and VIII. Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH RAWSON LUMBY, D.D., Norrisian Professor of Divinity, Vicar of St. Edward's, Fellow of St. Catharine's College, and late Fellow of Magdalene College, Cambridge. 1865–1883.

This is one of the many mediæval chronicles which assume the character of a history of the world. It begins with the creation, and is brought down to the author's own time, the reign of Edward III. Prefixed to the historical portion, is a chapter devoted to geography, in which is given a description of every known land. To say that the Polychronicon was written in the fourteenth century is to say that it is not free from inaccuracies. It has, however, a value apart from its intrinsic merits. It enables us to form a very fair estimate of the knowledge of history and geography which well-informed readers of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries possessed, for it was then the standard work on general history.

The two English translations, which are printed with the original Latin, afford interesting illustrations of the gradual change of our language, for one was made in the fourteenth century, the other in the fifteenth. The differences between Trevisa's version and that of the unknown writer are often considerable.

42. LE LIVERE DE REIS DE BRITTANIE E LE LIVERE DE REIS DE ENGLETERE. Edited by JOHN GLOVER, M.A., Vicar of Brading, Isle of Wight, formerly Librarian of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1865.

These two treatises, though they cannot rank as independent narratives, are nevertheless valuable as careful abstracts of previous historians, especially "Le Livere de Reis de Engletere." Some various readings are given which are interesting to the philologist as instances of semi-Saxonized French. It is supposed that Peter of Ickham was the supposed author.

43. CHRONICA MONASTERII DE MELSA AB ANNO 1150 USQUE AD ANNUM 1406. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by EDWARD AUGUSTUS BOND, Esq., Assistant Keeper of Manuscripts, and Egerton Librarian, British Museum. 1866–1868.

The Abbey of Meaux was a Cistercian house, and the work of its abbot is both curious and valuable. It is a faithful and often minute record of the establishment of a religious community, of its progress in forming an ample revenue, of its struggles to maintain its acquisitions, and of its relations to the governing institutions of the country. In addition to the private affairs of the monastery, some light is thrown upon the public events of the time, which are however kept distinct, and appear at the end of the history of each abbot's administration. The text has been printed from what is said to be the autograph of the original compiler, Thomas de Burton, the nineteenth abbot.

44. MATTHÆI PARISIENSIS HISTORIA ANGLORUM, SIVE, UT VULGO DICITUR, HISTORIA MINOR. Vols. I., II., and III. 1067–1253. Edited by Sir FREDERIC MADDEN, K.H., Keeper of the Manuscript Department of British Museum. 1866–1869.

The exact date at which this work was written is, according to the chronicler, 1250. The history is of considerable value as an illustration of the period during which the author lived, and contains a good summary of the events which followed the Conquest. This minor chronicle is, however, based on another work (also written by Matthew Paris) giving fuller details, which has been called the "Historia Major." The chronicle here published, nevertheless, gives some information not to be found in the greater history.

45. Liber Monasterii de Hyda: a Chronicle and Chartulary of Hyde Abbey, Winchester, 455–1023. Edited, from a Manuscript in the Library of the Earl of Macclesfield, by Edward Edwards, Esq. 1866.

The "Book of Hyde" is a compilation from much earlier sources which are usually indicated with considerable care and precision. In many cases, however, the Hyde Chronicler appears to correct, to qualify, or to amplify—either from tradition or from sources of information not now discoverable—the statements, which, in substance, he adopts. He also mentions, and frequently quotes from writers whose works are either entirely lost or at present known only by fragments.

There is to be found, in the "Book of Hyde," much information relating to the reign of King Alfred which is not known to exist elsewhere. The volume contains some curious specimens of Anglo-Saxon and Mediæval English.

46. Chronicon Scotorum: a Chronicle of Irish Affairs, from the Earliest Times to 1135; and Supplement, containing the Events from 1141 to 1150. Edited, with Translation, by William Maunsell Hennessy, Esq., M.R.I.A. 1866.

There is, in this volume, a legendary account of the peopling of Ireland and of the adventures which befell the various heroes who are said to have been connected with Irish history. The details are, however, very meagre both for this period and for the time when history becomes more authentic. The plan adopted in the chronicle gives the appearance of an accuracy to which the earlier portions of the work cannot have any claim. The succession of events is marked, year by year, from A.M. 1599 to A.D. 1150. The principal events narrated in the later portion of the work are, the invasions of foreigners, and the wars of the Irish among themselves. The text has been printed from a MS. preserved in the library of Trinity College, Dublin, written partly in Latin, partly in Irish.

47. The Chronicle of Pierre de Langtoft, in French Verse, from the earliest Period to the Death of Edward I. Vols. I. and II. Edited by Thomas Wright, Esq., M.A. 1866–1868.

It is probable that Pierre de Langtoft was a canon of Bridlington, in Yorkshire, and lived in the reign of Edward I., and during a portion of the reign of Edward II. This chronicle is divided into three parts; in the first, is an abridgment of Geoffrey of Monmouth's "Historia Britonum;" in the second a history of the Anglo-Saxon and Norman kings, to the death of Henry III.; in the third, a history of the reign of Edward I. The principal object of the work was apparently to show the justice of Edward's Scottish wars. The language is singularly corrupt, and a curious specimen of the French of Yorkshire.

48. The War of the Gaedhil with the Gaill, or The Invasions of Ireland by the Danes and other Norsemen. Edited, with a Translation, by James Henthorn Todd, D.D., Senior Fellow of Trinity College, and Regius Professor of Hebrew in the University, Dublin. 1867.

The work in its present form, in the editor's opinion, is a comparatively modern version of an undoubtedly ancient original. That it was compiled from contemporary materials has been proved by curious incidental evidence. It is stated in the account given of the battle of Clontarf that the full tide in Dublin Bay on the day of the battle (23 April 1014) coincided with sunrise; and that the returning tide in the evening aided considerably in the defeat of the Danes. The fact has been verified by astronomical calculations, and the inference is that the author of the chronicle, if not an eye-witness, must have derived his information from eye-witnesses. The contents of the work are sufficiently described in its title. The story is told after the manner of the Scandinavian Sagas, with poems and fragments of poems introduced into the prose narrative.

49. Gesta Regis Henrici Secundi Benedicti Abbatis. Chronicle of the Reigns of Henry II. and Richard I., 1169–1192, known under the name of Benedict of Peterborough. Vols. I. and II. Edited by William Stubbs, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, Oxford, and Lambeth Librarian. 1867.

This chronicle of the reigns of Henry II. and Richard I., known commonly under the name of Benedict of Peterborough, is one of the best existing specimens of a class of historical compositions of the first importance to the student.

50. Munimenta Academica, or, Documents illustrative of Academical Life and Studies at Oxford (in Two Parts). Edited by the Rev. Henry Anstey, M.A., Vicar of St. Wendron, Cornwall, and lately Vice-Principal of St. Mary Hall, Oxford. 1868.

This work will supply materials for a History of Academical Life and Studies in the University of Oxford during the 13th, 14th, and 15th centuries.

51. Chronica Magistri Rogeri de Houedene. Vols. I., II., III., and IV. Edited by William Stubbs, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford. 1868–1871.

This work has long been justly celebrated, but not thoroughly understood until Mr. Stubbs' edition. The earlier portion, extending from 732 to 1148, appears to be a copy of a compilation made in Northumbria about 1161, to which Hoveden added little. From 1148 to 1169—a very valuable portion of this work—the matter is derived from another source, to which Hoveden appears to have supplied little, and not always judiciously. From 1170 to 1192 is the portion which corresponds with the Chronicle known under the name of Benedict of Peterborough (see No. 49); but it is not a copy, being sometimes an abridgment, at others a paraphrase; occasionally the two works entirely agree; showing that both writers had access to the same materials, but dealt with them differently. From 1192 to 1201 may be said to be wholly Hoveden's work: it is extremely valuable, and an authority of the first importance.

52. Willelmi Malmesbiriensis Monachi de Gestis Pontificum Anglorum Libri Quinque. Edited, from William of Malmesbury's Autograph MS., by N. E. S. A. Hamilton, Esq., of the Department of Manuscripts, British Museum. 1870.

William of Malmesbury's "Gesta Pontificum" is the principal foundation of English Ecclesiastical Biography, down to the year 1122. The manuscript which has been followed in this Edition is supposed by Mr. Hamilton to be the author's autograph, containing his latest additions and amendments.

53. Historic and Municipal Documents of Ireland, from the Archives of the City of Dublin, &c. 1172–1320. Edited by John T. Gilbert, Esq., F.S.A., Secretary of the Public Record Office of Ireland. 1870.

A collection of original documents, elucidating mainly the history and condition of the municipal, middle, and trading classes under or in relation with the rule of England in Ireland,—a subject hitherto in almost total obscurity. Extending over the first hundred and fifty years of the Anglo-Norman settlement, the series includes charters, municipal laws and regulations, rolls of names of citizens and members of merchant-guilds, lists of commodities with their rates, correspondence, illustrations of relations between ecclesiastics and laity; together with many documents exhibiting the state of Ireland during the presence there of the Scots under Robert and Edward Bruce.

54. The Annals of Loch Cé. A Chronicle of Irish Affairs, from 1014 to 1590. Vols. I. and II. Edited, with a Translation, by William Maunsell Hennessy, Esq., M.R.I.A. 1871.

The original of this chronicle has passed under various names. The title of "Annals of Loch Cé" was given to it by Professor O'Curry, on the ground that it was transcribed for Brian Mac Dermot, an Irish chieftain, who resided on the island in Loch Cé, in the county of Roscommon. It adds much to the materials for the civil and ecclesiastical history of Ireland; and contains many curious references to English and foreign affairs, not noticed in any other chronicle.

55. Monumenta Juridica. The Black Book of the Admiralty, with Appendices. Vols. I., II., III., and IV. Edited by Sir Travers Twiss, Q.C., D.C.L. 1871–1876.

This book contains the ancient ordinances and laws relating to the navy, and was probably compiled for the use of the Lord High Admiral of England. Selden calls it the "jewel of the Admiralty Records." Prynne ascribes to the Black Book the same authority in the Admiralty as the Black and Red Books have in the Court of Exchequer, and most English writers on maritime law recognize its importance.

56. MEMORIALS OF THE REIGN OF HENRY VI.:—OFFICIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THOMAS BEKYNTON, SECRETARY TO HENRY VI., AND BISHOP OF BATH AND WELLS. Edited, from a MS. in the Archiepiscopal Library at Lambeth, with an Appendix of Illustrative Documents, by the Rev. GEORGE WILLIAMS, B.D., Vicar of Ringwood, late Fellow of King's College, Cambridge. Vols. I. and II. 1872.

These curious volumes are of a miscellaneous character, and were probably compiled under the immediate direction of Bekynton before he had attained to the Episcopate. They contain many of the Bishop's own letters, and several written by him in the King's name; also letters to himself while Royal Secretary, and others addressed to the King. This work elucidates some points in the history of the nation during the first half of the fifteenth century.

57. MATTHÆI PARISIENSIS, MONACHI SANCTI ALBANI, CHRONICA MAJORA. Vol. I. The Creation to A.D. 1066. Vol. II. A.D. 1067 to A.D. 1216. Vol. III. A.D. 1216 to A.D. 1239. Vol. IV. A.D. 1240 to A.D. 1247. Vol. V. A.D. 1248 to A.D. 1259. Vol. VI. Additamenta. Vol. VII. Index. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, D.D., Fellow of Trinity College, Registrary of the University, and Vicar of Great St. Mary's, Cambridge. 1872–1884.

This work contains the "Chronica Majora" of Matthew Paris, one of the most valuable and frequently consulted of the ancient English Chronicles. It is published from its commencement, for the first time. The editions by Archbishop Parker, and William Wats, severally begin at the Norman Conquest.

58. MEMORIALE FRATRIS WALTERI DE COVENTRIA.—THE HISTORICAL COLLECTIONS OF WALTER OF COVENTRY. Vols. I. and II. Edited, from the MS. in the Library of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford. 1872–1873.

This work, now printed in full for the first time, has long been a desideratum by Historical Scholars. The first portion, however, is not of much importance, being only a compilation from earlier writers. The part relating to the first quarter of the thirteenth century is the most valuable and interesting.

59. THE ANGLO-LATIN SATIRICAL POETS AND EPIGRAMMATISTS OF THE TWELFTH CENTURY. Vols. I. and II. Collected and edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A., Corresponding Member of the National Institute of France (Académie des Inscriptions et Belles-Lettres). 1872.

The Poems contained in these volumes have long been known and appreciated as the best satires of the age in which their authors flourished, and were deservedly popular during the 13th and 14th centuries.

60. MATERIALS FOR A HISTORY OF THE REIGN OF HENRY VII., FROM ORIGINAL DOCUMENTS PRESERVED IN THE PUBLIC RECORD OFFICE. Vols. I. and II. Edited by the Rev. WILLIAM CAMPBELL, M.A., one of Her Majesty's Inspectors of Schools. 1873–1877.

These volumes are valuable as illustrating the acts and proceedings of Henry VII. on ascending the throne, and shadow out the policy he afterwards adopted.

61. HISTORICAL PAPERS AND LETTERS FROM THE NORTHERN REGISTERS. Edited by JAMES RAINE, M.A., Canon of York, and Secretary of the Surtees Society. 1873.

The documents in this volume illustrate, for the most part, the general history of the north of England, particularly in its relation to Scotland.

63. MEMORIALS OF SAINT DUNSTAN, ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY. Edited, from various MSS., by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford. 1874.

This volume contains several lives of Archbishop Dunstan, one of the most celebrated Primates of Canterbury. They open various points of Historical and Literary interest, without which our knowledge of the period would be more incomplete than it is at present.

64. CHRONICON ANGLIÆ, AB ANNO DOMINI 1328 USQUE AD ANNUM 1388, AUCTORE MONACHO QUODAM SANCTI ALBANI. Edited by EDWARD MAUNDE THOMPSON Esq., Barrister-at-Law, and Assistant-Keeper of the Manuscripts in the British Museum. 1874.

This chronicle gives a circumstantial history of the close of the reign of Edward III. which has hitherto been considered lost.

This volume contains the "Chronicon Anglicanum," by Ralph of Coggeshall, the "Libellus de Expugnatione Terræ Sanctæ per Saladinum," usually ascribed to the same author, and other pieces of an interesting character.

67. MATERIALS FOR THE HISTORY OF THOMAS BECKET, ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY. Vols. I., II., III., IV., V., and VI. Edited by the Rev. JAMES CRAIGIE ROBERTSON, M.A., Canon of Canterbury. 1875–1883. Vol. VII. Edited by JOSEPH BRIGSTOCKE SHEPPARD, Esq., LL.D. 1885.

This Roll throws considerable light on the History of Ireland at a period little known. It seems the only document of the kind extant.

70. HENRICI DE BRACTON DE LEGIBUS ET CONSUETUDINIBUS ANGLIÆ LIBRI QUINQUE IN VARIOS TRACTATUS DISTINCTI. AD DIVERSORUM ET VETUSTISSIMORUM CODICUM COLLATIONEM TYPIS VULGATI: Vols. I., II., III., IV., V., and VI. Edited by Sir TRAVERS TWISS, Q.C., D.C.L. 1878–1883.

The Historical Works of Gervase of Canterbury are of great importance as regards the questions of Church and State, during the period in which he wrote. This work was printed by Twysden, in the "Historiæ Anglicanæ Scriptores X.," more than two centuries ago. The present edition has received critical examination and illustration.

74. HENRICI ARCHIDIACONI HUNTENDUNENSIS HISTORIA ANGLORUM. THE HISTORY OF THE ENGLISH, BY HENRY, ARCHDEACON OF HUNTINGDON, from A.D. 55 to A.D. 1154, in Eight Books. Edited by THOMAS ARNOLD, ESQ., M.A., of University College, Oxford. 1879.

Henry of Huntingdon's work was first printed by Sir Henry Savile, in 1596, in his "Scriptores post Bedam," and reprinted at Frankfort in 1601. Both editions are very rare and inaccurate. The first five books of the History were published in 1848 in the "Monumenta Historica Britannica," which is out of print. The present volume contains the whole of the manuscript of Huntingdon's History in eight books, collated with a manuscript lately discovered at Paris.

This Register, of which a complete copy is here printed for the first time, is among the most ancient, and certainly the most treasured, of the muniments of the Bishops of Salisbury. It derives its name from containing the statutes, rules, and orders made or compiled by S. Osmund, to be observed in the Cathedral and Diocese of Salisbury. The first 19 folios contain the "Consuetudinary," the exposition, as regards ritual, of the "Use of Sarum."

DOMESDAY BOOK, OR the GREAT SURVEY OF ENGLAND OF WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR, 1086; fac-simile of the Part relating to each county, separately (with a few exceptions of double counties). Photozincographed, by Her Majesty's Command, at the Ordnance Survey Office, Southampton, Colonel Sir HENRY JAMES, R.E., F.R.S., &c., DIRECTOR-GENERAL of the ORDNANCE SURVEY, under the Superintendence of W. BASEVI SANDERS, Esq., Assistant Keeper of Her Majesty's Records. 35 Parts, imperial quarto and demy quarto (1861-1863), boards. Price 8*s*. to l. 3*s*. each Part, according to size; or, bound in 2 Vols., 20*l*. (The edition in two volumes is out of print.)

This important and unique survey of the greater portion of England* is the oldest and most valuable record in the national archives. It was commenced about the year 1084 and finished in 1086. Its compilation was determined upon at Gloucester by William the Conqueror, in council, in order that he might know what was due to him, in the way of tax, from his subjects, and that each at the same time might know what he had to pay. It was compiled as much for their protection as for the benefit of the sovereign. The nobility and people had been grievously distressed at the time by the king bringing over large numbers of French and Bretons, and quartering them on his subjects, "each accord-" ing to the measure of his land," for the purpose of resisting the invasion of Cnut, King of Denmark, which was apprehended. The Commissioners appointed to make the survey were to inquire the name of each place; who held it in the time of King Edward the Confessor; the present possessor; how many hides were in the manor; how many ploughs were in the demesne; how many homagers; how many villeins; how many cottars; how many serving men; how many free tenants; how many tenants in soccage; how much wood, meadow, and pasture; the number of mills and fish ponds; what had been added or taken away from the place; what was the gross value in the time of Edward the Confessor; the present value; and how much each free man or soc-man had, and whether any advance could be made in the value. Thus could be ascertained who held the estate in the time of King Edward; who then held it; its value in the time of the late King; and its value as it stood at the formation of the survey. So minute was the survey, that the writer of the contemporary portion of the Saxon Chronicle records, with some asperity—"So very narrowly he caused it to be " traced out, that there was not a single hide, nor one virgate of land, nor even, " it is shame to tell, though it seemed to him no shame to do, an ox, nor a cow, " nor a swine was left, that was not set down."

Domesday Survey is in two parts or volumes. The first, in folio, contains the counties of Bedford, Berks, Bucks, Cambridge, Chester and Lancaster, Cornwall, Derby, Devon, Dorset, Gloucester, Hants, Hereford, Herts, Huntingdon, Kent, Leicester and Rutland, Lincoln, Middlesex, Northampton, Nottingham, Oxford, Salop, Somerset, Stafford, Surrey, Sussex, Warwick, Wilts, Worcester, and York. The second volume, in quarto, contains the counties of Essex, Norfolk, and Suffolk.

Domesday Book was printed verbatim et literatim during the last century, in consequence of an address of the House of Lords to King George III. in 1767. It was not, however, commenced until 1773, and was completed early in 1783. In 1860, Her Majesty's Government, with the concurrence of the Master of the Rolls, determined to apply the art of photozincography to the production of a fac-simile of Domesday Book, under the superintendence of Colonel Sir Henry James, R.E., Director-General of the Ordnance Survey, Southampton. The fac-simile was completed in 1863.

* For some reason left unexplained, many parts were left unsurveyed: Northumberland, Cumberland, Westmoreland, and Durham, are not described in the survey; nor does Lancashire appear under its proper name; but Furness, and the northern part of Lancashire, as well as the south of Westmoreland, with a part of Cumberland, are included within the West Riding of Yorkshire. That part of Lancashire which lies between the Ribble and Mersey, and which at the time of the survey comprehended 688 manors, is joined to Cheshire. Part of Rutland is described in the counties of Northampton and Lincoln.

FAC-SIMILES OF NATIONAL MANUSCRIPTS, from WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR to QUEEN ANNE, selected under the direction of the Master of the Rolls, and Photo-zincographed, by Command of Her Majesty, by Colonel Sir HENRY JAMES, R.E., F.R.S., DIRECTOR-GENERAL of the ORDNANCE SURVEY, and edited by W. BASEVI SANDERS, Assistant Keeper of Her Majesty's Records. Price, each Part, with translations and notes, double foolscap folio, 16*s*.

This volume contains fac-similes of the Ashburnham collection of Anglo-Saxon Charters, &c., including King Alfred's Will. The MSS. represented in it, range from A.D. 697 to A.D. 1161, being charters, wills, deeds, and reports of Synodal transactions during the reigns of Kings Wihtred of Kent, Offa, Eardwulf, Coenwulf, Cuthred, Beornwulf, Æthelwulf, Ælfred, Eadward the Elder, Eadmund, Eadred, Queen Eadgifu, and Kings Eadgar, Æthelred the Second, Cnut, Henry the First, and Henry the Second. This work forms a comprehensive Palæographic Series for Ireland. It furnishes characteristic specimens of the documents which have come down from each of the classes which, in past ages, formed principal elements in the population of Ireland, or exercised an influence in her affairs. With these reproductions are combined fac-similes of writings connected with eminent personages or transactions of importance in the annals of the country to the early part of the eighteenth century.

The specimens have been reproduced as nearly as possible in accordance with the originals, in dimensions, colouring, and general appearance. Characteristic examples of styles of writing and caligraphic ornamentation are, so far as practicable, associated with subjects of historic and linguistic interest. Descriptions of the various manuscripts are given by the Editor in the Introduction. The contents of the specimens are fully elucidated and printed in the original languages, opposite to the Fac-similes—line for line—without contractions—thus facilitating reference and aiding effectively those interested in palæographic studies.

In the work are also printed in full, for the first time, many original and important historical documents.

Part I. commences with the earliest Irish MSS. extant.
Part II.: From the Twelfth Century to A.D. 1299.
Part III.: From A.D. 1300 to end of reign of Henry VIII.
Part IV. 1.: From reign of Edward VI. to that of James I.
In Part IV. 2.—the work is carried down to the early part of the eighteenth century, with Index to the entire publication.
